Rocket Fails to Orbit Satellite About Moon

Ike Eyes Needs for U.S. Critic of Military, Economic Programs Abroad

President to Make Decision Before His Good Will Trip

BY JOHN SCALI
Washington—President Eisenhower will decide within the next few days how much to ask from congress for military and economic aid overseas.

Authoritative officials say Eisenhower personally will make the final decision on the size of the program before he leaves next Thursday for his 20,000-mile good will journey into 11 nations.

Top state department officials appear confident the president will approve a figure slightly below $4 billion — about the amount the administration asked congress to provide for last year's program. Congress, however, cut that request to $3,200,000,000.

Opposed to Cuts
Administration foreign aid advocates are banking on Eisenhower to reject moves to slash foreign aid spending despite official concern over the record $4 billion deficit in overseas earnings this year.

Overriding the Soviet bloc and communist Yugoslavia, the assembly voted 51-10 last night in favor of a steering committee recommendation for the debate. Finland, Israel and 13 members of the Asian-African bloc abstained.

The debate probably will be held late next week. Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, accused U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of fabricating reports of brutalities in communist Hungary to help push through the vote for debate.

He said the assembly was taking a "dangerous path — the path of straining relations between states."

2nd Stage Apparently Not Fired

BY HOWARD BENEDICT

Cape Canaveral, Fla.—The most powerful rocket ever developed by this nation failed on its maiden flight today and ruined a U. S. bid to put the first satellite into orbit around the moon.

The giant Atlas-Able rocket thundered aloft exactly on schedule at 2:26 a.m. Perched atop it was a 372-pound payload designed for the lunar orbit.

An hour after launch, the national aeronautics and space administration reported that second stage signals were lost 70 seconds after launching and added:

"There is no record of the second stage having fired and we must presume that the second stage did not fire. 'Visual observations were that a piece fell off the rocket . . . apparently this was above the liquid oxygen tank on the Atlas' first stage."

Stay Behind Russians
Observers saw a fiery chunk break loose from the rocket about 20 seconds after launch and spiral into the Atlantic ocean.

The failure was a bitter blow to U. S. hopes of jumping back into the space race with Russia, which in recent weeks has scored spectacularly with its Lunik II and III rockets. One smashed into the moon; the other whirled into a wide orbit around the moon and earth and took the first pictures of the moon's dark side.

There is no backup vehicle for today's shot, so it probably will be several months before it can again be attempted. "This was the second failure for an Atlas-Able ticketed for a shot at the moon. On Sept. 24, another one of the 10-story high rockets blew up on its pad during a static test of its engines."

That rocket was set for an early October launching. If it had been successful, the United States would have beaten Russia to the first pictures of the moon's far side. The Soviets accomplished this feat shortly after the scheduled American launching in October.

Scanning Device
Today's ill-fated satellite carried a scanning device to take crude pictures of the lunar surface. It also contained instruments to study the moon's environment.

A successful orbit would have given the U. S. a space first. Scientists here believe this would have been a greater accomplishment than either of the last two Lunik shots because of the difficulty of placing the payload in a precise position in relation to the moon.

Conrad Extends Record Flight

Houston — Max Conrad, the 56-year-old flying grandfather from Winona, Minn., told the federal aeronautics agency here today that he plans to extend his record breaking light plane flight to San Francisco.

The FAA said Conrad radioed at 3:07 a.m. asking for the weather picture west to San Francisco. He reported that he was about 100 miles east of Galveston, Texas, heading due west over the Gulf of Mexico.

Conrad took off from Casablanca, Morocco, Tuesday at 2:01 a.m. He smashed the late Bill Odom's 10-year distance mark of 4,857 miles when he flew by Florida late yesterday.

Father, 2 Sons Die in Trailer

Asphyxiation of Deer Hunters Laid To Faulty Heater

Milwaukee — The asphyxiation deaths of a father and his two teenaged sons in a house trailer have brought to 25 the number of fatalities in the current Wisconsin deer hunting season.

The victims, Walter Marks, 47, of Chippewa Falls, and his sons, Eldred, 17, and Wayne, 15, had parked the trailer for use as a hunting camp near a small lake six miles east of Minong in Washburn county. Their bodies were found Wednesday by another hunter.

Dead Several Days
Washburn County Coroner Lester J. Olson said the father and sons had died of asphyxiation, apparently caused by a faulty heater. He said they had been dead for several days.

Olson said the heater was of the type which the state conservation department had urged by used with extreme caution.

Since the 16-day hunting season began, one other hunter, 52-year-old Leon Chute of Madison, died in a trailer fire believed to have started from a faulty heater. In addition, 11 persons have died of gunshot wounds inflicted in the woods, and 10 others have died of heart attacks.

40 Homes Destroyed Small Texas Towns Imperiled by Fires

Marshall, Texas — Flames kicked by fierce winds raced through grass and brush in northeast Texas yesterday, destroying about 40 homes and threatening small towns.

Fires burned today in widespread sections and firefighters remained alert.

Texas forest service officials, who counted 70 fires at one time yesterday, laid the widespread outbreak to careless burning of leaves and trash.

Damage throughout the northeast section was estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Wind Extra Hazard
The only death reported was that of Mrs. B. Q. Adams, Sr., who died of a heart attack while fighting a grass fire. She lived in the Smyrna community in extreme northeast Texas.

"The fierce wind blew the flames across the ground. We had all kinds of fire fighting equipment but we just could not stop it," said Henry Fink of the Gilmer fire department. He and about 30 firemen plus high school students who were let out of school fought the fire all day.

He said "the fire settled down in the swamps where we can't get at it. It's not a threat to the city but it is threatening some farm homes." The swamps are two miles east of Gilmer.

Fink said about 12 homes were destroyed but no one was injured.

Sheboygan Man Dies in Accident

Milwaukee — Wisconsin's 1959 highway death toll has reached 732 on this Thanksgiving day. One year ago today the total was 735.

The first traffic fatality in the city of Sheboygan since Oct. 25, 1957, was recorded Wednesday night. Sixty-seven-year-old Fred Zerger, Sr., was killed when he was hit by an automobile as he walked across a street intersection.

Roland Jakober, 39, of Kason, Minn., and his daughter, Pamela, 4, were killed Wednesday night when their automobile collided head-on with another automobile on Highway 12 about 15 miles east of Mauston in Juneau county.

Five other persons were injured critically in the crash. Tom Gudis, 16, of Bruce, was killed late Wednesday when the pickup truck he was driving overturned on a town road near his Rusk county home. Gudis was thrown from the cab and crushed under the vehicle.

Labor Asks Backing For Withholding Plan
Milwaukee — Top officers of the Wisconsin State AFL-CIO called Wednesday for support of Gov. Gaylord Nelson's proposed withholding plan for income taxes as "our one hope of saving the day for progressive taxes."

President George Haberman, Vice President Charles M. Schulz and Secretary-Treasurer George W. Hall signed a letter to 1,300 local union affiliates.

UN to Debate On Hungary

Russia Declares Airing of Issue Increases Tension

United Nations, N.Y.—The U.N. general assembly will hold its annual debate on Hungary despite Soviet warnings that another airing of the issue will increase international tensions.

Overriding the Soviet bloc and communist Yugoslavia, the assembly voted 51-10 last night in favor of a steering committee recommendation for the debate. Finland, Israel and 13 members of the Asian-African bloc abstained.

The debate probably will be held late next week. Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, accused U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of fabricating reports of brutalities in communist Hungary to help push through the vote for debate.

He said the assembly was taking a "dangerous path — the path of straining relations between states."

Grade School Pupils See Their Teacher Become U. S. Citizen

Milwaukee — Miss Patricia O'Callaghan became a U. S. citizen Wednesday as her 28 sixth grade pupils watched the proceedings as a lesson in democracy.

"My students gave me flowers, a corsage, serenaded me with songs—it was one of the most happiest days of my life," the Irish born Miss O'Callaghan said.

Miss O'Callaghan came to the U. S. in 1953. "The children aren't taking civic or government courses yet," she said, "but I wanted them to see how democracy can work."

New Drive 'Smoke Screen' Catholic Position on Birth Control Unaltered

Washington — The Roman Catholic hierarchy of the United States says the term "population explosion" is a "terror technique phrase" used as a vehicle for what it called propaganda in favor of artificial birth control.

"The phrase, indeed, alerts all to the attention that must be given to population pressures," said a statement formulated by Catholic bishops, "but it also provides a smoke screen behind which a moral evil may be foisted on the public and for obscuring many factors that must be considered in this vital question."

The bishops said it is "simply not true" that artificial birth control is gradually becoming acceptable to the church. The statement, which largely reiterates long-held church doctrine, was formulated at a meeting of more than 200 bishops at the Catholic University of America here Nov. 18-19. It was published yesterday.

Opposed to Proposal
American Catholics, the statement said, will not support any public assistance, either at home or abroad, "to promote artificial birth prevention, abortion or sterilization whether through direct aid or by means of international organizations."

Last week the American Public Health association, which includes public health officials in North and South America, issued a statement that said in part:

"The healthful effects of family planning and spacing of births has been recognized by leaders of all major religious groups, as well as by

Disc Jockey Called To Testify Monday Regarding Payola

New York — Disc jockey Alan Freed has been subpoenaed to appear Monday before a grand jury probing payola in the radio and television industry.

The rock 'n' roll platter king, hunted by detectives all day yesterday after he failed to show up at the district attorney's office, was located shortly after he finished his "Big Beat" record TV show last night.

Asked why he failed to show up at the district attorney's office, Freed told newsmen: "I will not volunteer for anybody. My grandmother once told me, 'Never volunteer for anything.'"

Freed said, however, he would obey the subpoena.

Missing Former UN Official's Body Is Found

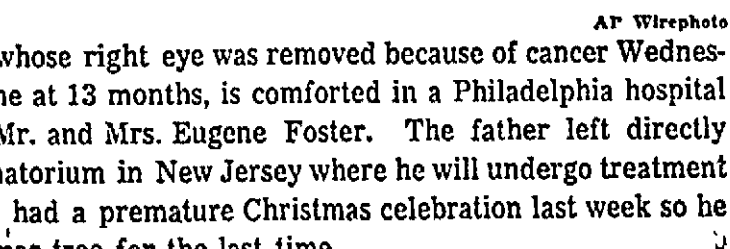

New York — Povel Bang-Jensen, missing former United Nations official, was found dead today in a Queens park. Police said the body of the 50-year-old man was discovered near a bridge path.

Bang-Jensen was last reported seen Monday morning when he said goodbye to his wife at his home at nearby Lake Success and set out for his Manhattan office.

He did not appear at his office and when he failed to return home Monday night his wife notified authorities.

During his association with the U.N., Bang-Jensen interrogated a number of refugees on behalf of the world organization's commission on Hungary, which made an inquiry into the 1956 Hungarian uprising put down by the Soviet Union.

The body was said to have been found in a clump of woods.

Little Jackie Foster, 7, whose right eye was removed because of cancer Wednesday, after losing the left one at 13 months, is comforted in a Philadelphia hospital by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Foster. The father left directly from the hospital for a sanatorium in New Jersey where he will undergo treatment for tuberculosis. The boy had a premature Christmas celebration last week so he could see a lighted Christmas tree for the last time.

Favor for Friend California Bank Has $3,714,610 Shortage

Los Angeles — " . . . Me trying to be bighearted and doing a favor. . . "

Those words, scribbled on the back of a piece of yellow accounting paper, give a clue to the beginning of what officials call one of the nation's biggest bank shortages — $3,714,610.96.

The man who wrote them — respected banker George A. Hewlett — is dead by his own hand.

His friend, former plumber John R. Hendrickson, 40, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of conspiracy and defrauding a national bank.

Hewlett, 40, was vice president and cashier of the Long Beach National bank, since merged with the U. S. National bank of San Diego.

Last May 1, threatened with exposure because of audits following the merger, he left his wife and daughter during intermission at a play, walked to a nearby vacant lot and shot himself in the heart.

His note said the whole fantastic situation started when he carried "Johnnie" Hendrickson for a couple of outstanding checks. Authorities say Hewlett issued one unbacked cashier's check after another to Hendrickson from Dec. 29, 1953, on.

No Profit for Banker
Hendrickson, father of seven who was declared bankrupt in 1950, plunged the money into fruitless oil ventures and furnace manufacturing plants, Assistant U. S. Atty. Bruce A. Bevan says.

Hendrickson, of San Rafael, Calif., himself once told an inquirer asking what he did with the money: "I wish I knew."

He lived well, drove flashy cars, had a nice home and his own airplane, Bevan says.

From all officials have learned, the banker never profited from the embezzlement.

"However, we don't know what would have happened if Hendrickson had made it good on his oil wells," Bevan adds.

When bank examiners questioned Hewlett about the absence of funds on deposit covering cashier's checks, he satisfied them by explaining that funds were in transit.

Last August Hendrickson agreed to a court judgment of $3,700,000 against him and agreed to turn over to the bank his various interests.

Santa Claus Returns To Appleton Friday

Marks Start of Retailers' Christmas Season; Stores Will be Open Extra Hours

Santa Claus returns to Appleton about 1:30 p. m. Friday to kickoff the retail Christmas season. He made his first official appearance at Valley Fair Saturday.

He is scheduled to arrive at Outagamie county airport at 1:11 p. m. aboard a North Central Airlines plane.

From there he will be whisked downtown by members of Appleton Downtown Retail association for an open convertible tour of College avenue.

Santa should be on the avenue about 15 minutes after he lands at the airport, Giles Flanagan, retailers secretary, said.

Usual Events

That would put him on the College avenue route somewhere about 1:30 p. m. Friday.

Santa again will be available to any organization making reservations through the Appleton Chamber of Commerce office, Flanagan reported.

All other Christmas plans of the retailers follows the annual pattern: Stores will be open many extra nights before Christmas; street light poles in the downtown area will be decorated; there will be a Christmas Eve "brown-out" of lights; music will be played from atop the Aid Association for Lutherans buildings on nights the stores are open, and city buses will run during the extra shopping nights.

Streets Decorated

Forty-nine city street light poles on College avenue were decorated. Retailers used 10 new displays, some of them experimental. Each pole will have a display, balsam rop-

Rockefeller Plans Visit To Green Bay

Dec. 16 Breakfast Meeting Part of 2-Day Tour

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay—The trip of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller to Milwaukee for a speech next month is being enlarged into a 2-day, 4-city tour of Wisconsin, including a stop in Green Bay.

Rockefeller is viewed as a possible contender for the Republican presidential nomination, and his trip through Wisconsin could be part of political soundings being made in his behalf. If he becomes a candidate, Rockefeller might have to choose the Wisconsin presidential primary next April for a decisive test with Vice President Richard Nixon.

It was learned that Rockefeller supporters are planning brief visits to Green Bay, Madison and Racine after a speech by the New York governor to a world affairs council meeting the night of Dec. 15. As plans now stand, Rockefeller would speak at a Green Bay breakfast meeting Dec. 16.

GOP Participation

Colburn Cheney, Brown county Republican chairman, confirmed the Green Bay stop. Cheney, who is backing Nixon for the presidential nomination, said local party facilities would be made available in keeping with the policy of the party's state executive committee.

"A policy of the state executive committee, which is to be implemented here, entitles all possible candidates for president to have a forum regardless of how we personally may feel. At the same time, Republicans should have the opportunity to see and hear all candidates," Cheney said.

Brown county Republican leaders who have declared themselves for 1960 are backing Nixon for the nomination. Rockefeller also will be visiting the district of Rep. John Byrnes, who is certain to be on a Nixon slate in April.

Last month a group of Wisconsin Republicans headed by Floyd Springer, Jr., public relations officer for Johnson Wax company, Racine, met with Rockefeller at a Chicago breakfast. At that time, it was indicated Rockefeller was urged to become a candidate in Wisconsin.

Instrument Society Meeting Set Dec. 1

Winners of an ideas contest sponsored by the Fox River Valley section of the Instrument Society of America will be announced at the 6:30 p. m. Dec. 1 meeting at the Wilburns south of Wisconsin Rapids.

Glenn F. Brockett, vice president of the section, will discuss the ISA.

Prizes for the ideas contest are a transistor radio, 35 millimeter camera and a travel alarm clock.

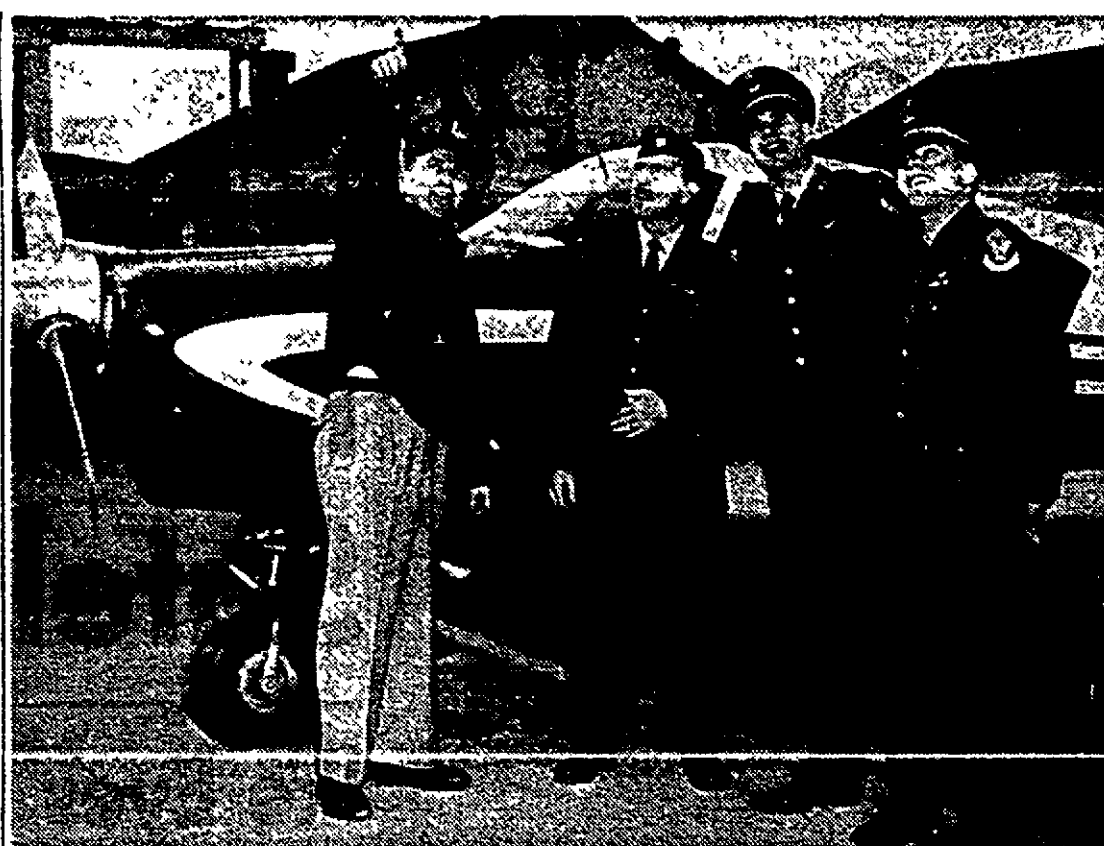

Child's Essay Tells Everyone The Wonders of Thanksgiving

What everyone has to be thankful for this Thanksgiving day, 1959, is amply outlined in this short essay written by Sheila Anne Martin, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Martin, 1609 E. Newberry street. The essay was written for her seventh grade history class at Sacred Heart school.

Thanksgiving

O Lord, I thank You for the gift of living in a world filled with beauty, excitement and pleasure.

I thank You for my religion... with its beauty and grandeur. For the intricate and elegant beauty of our cathedrals and churches. For the sacrifice of the mass and the great and miraculous privilege of receiving our Lord in the climax of the mass, the supernatural banquet in which we participate with God

Green Bay Show Pleasing With Gusto, Charm

BY JACK HOLZHUETER Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"The Most Happy Fella," prize-winning 1956 Broadway musical presented at Green Bay's Bay theater Wednesday night, lived up to its name.

There wasn't a soul in the jam-packed house that didn't come away "The Most Happy Fella" himself.

The infectious melodies of "Standing on the Corner Watching All the Girls Go By," "Big D" (for Dallas) and "Joey" will be hummed, whistled and just plain sung throughout the Fox Cities area for a long time, judging from the humming, whistling and singing in the lobby after the performance.

Richard Wentworth played Tony and Carolyn Maye, a member of the Broadway cast, played Rosabella, a charming waitress the aging ranch owner woos by mail. She, of course, succumbs.

But Tony, unsure of his charms, sends her the picture of his handsome foreman Joey, and she tumbles for the picture. Despite the confusion when she meets the real Tony, whose leg is in a cast, she goes through with the wedding—then momentarily falls for Joe, played by Lawrence Brooks. Tony and Rosabella eventually get together and Tony rejoices "I'm a Most Happy Fella."

Comedy interest is added by Herman (Robert Dixon), a cowboy who can't help smiling, and Cleo (Dee Harless), Rosabella's friend who is as delightfully cynical as she is red-headed.

The most notable ensemble performances were played by a trio of Italian farmhands and a quartet, "Standing on the Corner." Would that all men's trios and quartets had the same gusto for their work.

The attraction was sponsored by the Variety theater, in association with B'nai B'rith.

'Soft Sell' Approach

Human Rights Unit Feels Progress Made

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Ten years, four governors and six legislatures after its formal establishment by law, the Governor's Commission on Human Rights has concluded it has made significant progress in a "soft sell" approach on civil rights problems.

In an anniversary statement prepared by its executive director, Mrs. Rebecca Barton, Gov. Gaylord Nelson and the current legislature were informed that the commission is now the only civil rights agency in America which handles cases of discrimination although it has never been given specific authority as a law enforcement agency.

It handles them through investigation, consultation, persuasion, on limited occasions through the use of publicity and the referral of violations to the office of the state attorney general.

Educational Means

But it has relied basically upon educational means to persuade the people of the state.

Mrs. Barton, who became the first paid employee of the commission more than a decade ago, works with a tiny staff, a small appropriation of tax funds and in modest quarters in the state capitol. She has a keen awareness of the emotional complications inherent in a civil rights educational program.

Describing the story of the commission's work, she summarized:

100 Leaders

"It has never belonged to the school of thought that seems to see a virtue in unpleasantness and argument as such. But to confuse manner with matter is a grave error. Its only interest has been in favor of the disadvantaged groups for the protection of whose rights it was established. Because of this singleness of purpose the commission has been able to survive the normal curve in popularity and unpopularity, in praise and criticism."

Nearly 100 leaders representing a large variety of civic, economic, political, racial and religious groups have served as unpaid members of the commission during its first decade and thirty-five members serve today.

But through a "strange alchemy," the commission staff officer related, the varied individuals quickly arrived at a unity of purpose, and subordinated their particular biases and backgrounds to the commission's statutory concern.

No Movements

"During its history," she observed, "I have never sensed any attempts to swing the commission toward a pro-Catholic, Protestant or Jewish position, toward a pro-Negro or pro-white position, toward pro-urban or pro-rural, toward pro-Democratic or pro-Republican. The non-sectarian and non-political nature of the commission in operation has served as the well-spring of its strength."

Mrs. Barton said that the vigor of the commission spirit it has transformed a so-called "weak" law into a strong program.

But there are new challenges facing the group, she added.

"Research and possible legislation are indicated in migrant and Indian affairs, in private as well as public housing for non-whites, and in the field of public accommodations," she said. Some of those goals will be keynoted at a state-wide conference on civil rights which will be April 4 next year in Madison at the call of Gov. Nelson. Details are being planned by the commission.

Westbrook, Conn. — Deer had a bad time in this area within a space of six hours. A train killed two and injured another. Two others were killed on highways.

State troopers said it was an unusually high toll and probably was brought about by the mating season.

Cumulative Effects Of Agents Harmful

University Scientists Explain How Chemicals are Tested for Cancer

Madison — With the cranberry situation focusing public attention on cancer producing agents, two University of Wisconsin cancer researchers — Roswell K. Boutwell and James A. Miller — have explained how chemicals are tested for cancer production on animals.

The scientists commented that the government's removal from the market of cranberries sprayed with the herbicide aminotriazole was a legal necessity under a congressional amendment passed last year to the food and drug act. They also commented that if the precedent is set of letting low doses of cancer-producing agents appear in foods, the cumulative effects may become harmful.

Chemicals generally are tested for cancer-production in three ways, Dr. Boutwell explained. They are painted on the skin, injected under the skin's surface or added to food.

Time Consuming

Dr. Boutwell said the tests are time consuming. They frequently are carried out over the entire lifespan of the animals — about two years for rats, five or more for dogs.

He said over 600 chemicals are now known to produce cancer from such tests. He emphasized, however, that chemicals which produce cancer in one species may not in another. Thus, if a substance causes cancer in a rat, mouse, or dog, it still may not cause cancer in man. Of these 600 chemicals, only a few are known definitely to cause human cancer.

A small dose of these chemicals may not produce cancer. The two scientists emphasized, however, that the effects of small doses accumulate. The body cells do not heal from injuries received from cancer-producing agents.

Dr. Miller said that scientists have painted the skin of mice with one of these chemicals in a dose too small to cause cancer. They then waited and applied a second small dose. The total amount of chemical applied was less than that necessary to produce cancer if given at one time. However, the mice developed cancer.

The two scientists agreed that not only small amounts of one chemical, but small amounts of different cancer-producing agents may create accumulating effects which cause cancer.

'Sick' Cells

Why do body cells not recover from effects of these chemicals? The substances do not make cells "sick" in an ordinary sense. They produce permanent genetic

Motor Safety May Become 4-H Project

Chilton — The prospect of adding a new project, automotive maintenance, safety and care, to the county 4-H program has been introduced by a special committee.

The committee, composed of Ronald Dhein, Ed Rusch, Carole Suttner, Russell Gasch, Mrs. Clarence Brill, Carl Peik, John Augsburger, Ronald Hansen and Lowell Pierce, deliberated on the merits of the new project at a recent meeting.

If the project is approved by the executive board of the 4-H leader's council Dec. 15, it will only be offered in some parts of the county on a pilot basis. Only members over 15 will be eligible.

Verne V. Varney, Madison, acting state 4-H club leader, presented the project and outlined the program.

It was pointed out that the project is not in competition with the driver education program offered in high schools but supplements the school program.

The automotive project is a 3-year program.

Tuberculosis Increasing Threat to Middle-Aged

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Tuberculosis remains an important threat. It is less important, but it is a long, long way from being unimportant.

My remarks today, however, are not going to be just another warning against TB. Rather, I want to alert middle age Dr. Molner readers (more or less) to remember that for them, the threat of TB is greater than it used to be. It is greater in proportion, certainly.

Years ago — and perhaps not so many years ago, at that — we regarded tuberculosis as a disease of young people. If we got past young adulthood, the 20s and perhaps the early 30s, we pretty much felt that we needn't worry too much about TB and might better guard against health threats of other varieties.

Average Age Older

Today we know this is not so. The average age of patients acquiring TB has risen to 45 — or perhaps I should say that it is the age at which it is discovered, and it is acquired somewhat earlier.

That is the average. So for every person who finds out at 30 that he has TB, there is another who discovers it at 60!

Why is this average age increasing? Partly because of better diet, better health habits, and (I trust) progress in case-finding, which means we discover new patients before their cases have developed too far.

Chest X-Rays Best

The TB X-ray campaigns are the most effective method of doing this, and the results are gratifying. So get in the habit of having one of these chest X-rays when a TB unit is in your neighborhood.

But to get back to the point we were discussing, why don't mature adults show a reduction, instead of an increase, in TB?

This is something we cannot answer positively, but a very logical theory has been advanced.

We know that some individuals, probably a great many, are exposed to the TB germ (in fact, the great majority of us encounter it, and indeed perhaps virtually all of us do). Some, after contact, develop the disease. Some throw it off at once.

Others — and this is the crux of the matter — doubtless have mild cases of TB, not severe enough to make them obviously ill, but still the TB germ has gained its foothold in the lungs and has done some damage, and then is finally brought under control by defense mechanisms of the body.

Old TB Scars

We know this to be true by the number of old TB scars discovered while X-raying the lungs of people who "never had TB."

What's the answer? The TB germ, we have reason to believe, may be conquered by the body at times, yet some remnant of the germ remains lying in ambush under or in some old scar. No test will disclose its presence. It is not, in that dormant stage, contagious. But if the body's defenses become weakened, then the germ comes to life, and presently you have a full-blown active case of TB.

This may or may not be the real answer, but evidence indicates it. And regardless of the theory, TB does break out, more and more frequently, among mature adults. So be forewarned. Keep checking. If the germ has marked you for a victim, discover it soon, and defeat it. Knowing the facts, and having periodic X-rays, is the way to be safe.

Took No Courage

"Dear Dr. Molner: I read your comments about peace of mind and God. I do not know what your church is, but I wish to commend you highly for being courageous enough to mention God and Christianity in your column. God bless you. — K.P."

Thank you, but I can't see that it's courageous. Still — I loved your note!

The Unhappy Man Behind this pile of mail is Appleton Postmaster Francis Sumnicht. Inadequate addressing and insufficient postage left 20,000 pieces of mail stranded at the post office last year. Only first class mail is returned to the sender for correction. The rest lands in the dead letter basket.

Hints on Christmas Mailing

Letters to the North Pole Only
A Minor Problem at Post Office

Zero temperatures may herald winter, but a definite sign of the Christmas season should originate with the children. The Appleton post office has such a sign—a growing pile of letters addressed in uneven handwriting to "Santa Claus, North Pole."

Although most of the letters are simply addressed to the north pole, some are more specific. "Train and mailman bring this to Santa Claus" is scrawled across the back of one in red crayon, another is addressed to "Mr. Santa Claus, 1000-000 North Pole, U. S. A."

These letters do not present a serious problem. They will be delivered to a Santa Claus at a business or service club. But adult violators of simple postal procedures give the postal department serious headaches.

Easy Way Out

Addresses on Christmas mail can be vague to the point of non-existence, according to Appleton Postmaster Francis Sumnicht. This is one of the major problems faced by the post office during the Christmas rush. As the ultimate example, Sumnicht said, last year an unknown party mailed a full box of Christmas cards in a downtown mailbox without bothering to address or stamp them. In fact they weren't even taken out of the box or put into the envelopes.

Sumnicht said correct addresses are extremely important if mail is to be delivered. The full name, street and number, city, zone and state should be included. Many cards never reach their destination because they are addressed to an individual in Appleton without including the street and number.

"There are 66,000 people in our delivery area, and we can't know everybody," Sumnicht said.

20,000 Dead Letters
This year there again will be about 20,000 pieces of mail that will not reach their destination, Sumnicht said. He estimates 5 million pieces will be handled during the rush season, and of these 3 1/2 million will be Christmas cards.

Sumnicht made several suggestions for insuring safe and prompt delivery mail. Air mail Christmas packages to foreign lands should be mailed now. The deadline for boat mail packages already has passed.

Mail early. The big rush will begin Dec. 14 and 15. Sumnicht said Sunday, Dec. 13, will probably be the day most people stay home to make out Christmas mail, and mail received at the post office before that will not be caught in the mountain of incoming packages and letters.

Postage Rates
Use correct postage. A personal message may be included in cards carrying 7-cent air mail postage or 4-cent regular postage. Only a signed 4-cent stamp, designed for use in the 3-cent third class rate. Package containing cards or letters should be marked "letter enclosed" and proper first class postage should be added.

Cards smaller than three by four inches or larger than nine by twelve inches, must carry first class 4-cent postage. This is also true of cards with glass, tinsel, or other decorative material.

Buy all the stamps needed at one time. They are available in sheets or rolls of 100 4-cent stamps, designed for plastic containers.

Handling Bundles
Bundle all cards and letters. The "out-of-town" and "local" wrappers will be delivered or are available at the post office. All bundled cards should be placed with addresses facing the same direction and the stamps placed on the upper right hand corner of the envelope. Uniform bundles should be mailed at the post office and all bundles should be left tied.

Wrap packages carefully. Heavy wrapping paper, sturdy empty cartons, strong cord and paper adhesive tape will pay dividends in safe delivery of packages.

These simple procedures will aid handling of Christmas mail at the post office and facilitate safe and rapid delivery, Sumnicht said.

Christmas Day Not Popular for Puritan

During Puritan Oliver Cromwell's rule in England, fanatic Hezekiah Woodward published a tract calling Christmas day: "the old heathen's feasting day, the Papist's Massing day, the profane man's ranting day, the superstitious man's idol day, the multitude's idle day, Satan's working day, the true Christian man's fasting day."

Books Become Exotic Gift At Christmas

Can Take Place of Trip to Foreign Places, Elsewhere

How'd you like to give that someone special the gift he's always wanted—no matter what the cost?

Perhaps it's a trip to some foreign land or even a journey into space. Maybe it's a hunting trip or a full do-it-yourself course.

It's not as silly as it sounds, for you can do it by making your Christmas gift a book.

In the wonderful world of words the person who receives your gift will lose himself for hours. It's the next best thing to actually being there in person.

No Limit
There is no limit today to the subjects covered by books. It might be map reading, astronomy or building space stations that interests the person on your Christmas list.

Do-it-yourself bugs, and there are so many these days, are the persons many authors are writing for now. You can find books on any do-it-yourself effort from the simplest to the most complex. A man can learn the basics of building through these books or, if he is already an accomplished builder, he can pick up tips from experts which will make his work easier.

Outdoor Books
More and more books are on the shelves these days for the outdoorsmen of the country. Camping, rapidly becoming a top family recreation, is the subject covered by many authors. In these books you can learn how to "rough it" in comfort. You'll learn the methods of real woodsmen.

Fishing and hunting tricks and tips are written about in fire, entertaining style. These publications tell you where to go for the best of these sports and how to be most successful at them. They'll tell you about the country you might want to visit and the climate and conditions you'll find there.

But there's more than fact involved in the world of books. Fiction works take you into a land of make believe or parade the history of our country before your eyes with an imaginary plot to hold your interest.

There is so much to be found between the covers of books available in the Fox Cities today. A book on the subject he or she likes most will make this Christmas truly one to be remembered.

Intermediate Children Find it easy to learn French by seeing, listening and talking, experts say. Mrs. Kim Hoang Miller, teaching French to Appleton children for the first time this year, points to a "chemise" (shirt), while Kevin Mackey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mackey, 626 E. Grant street, and Mary Roche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Roche, 1710 N. Appleton street, look on. They are intermediate students at Jackson school. Mrs. Miller is a native of Viet Nam.

Mrs. Kim Hoang Miller

Vietnamese Woman Mingles Cultures in Appleton Classrooms

By JACK HOLZHUETER

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"Language is the gateway to the life of a nation." That statement is more than just a philosophy behind teaching French to Appleton grade school children for one new member of the French department staff.

To Mrs. Kim Hoang Miller, formerly of Viet Nam and now of Appleton, that statement is a way of life.

Mrs. Miller still is in the confusing throes of adjusting her Oriental habits to the Last of Series

American way. And now she is opening the cultural gateway to hundreds of intermediate grade children studying French.

Her story begins, of course, in Viet Nam, in the city of Hanoi, a large northern metropolis now ruled by the communists. In 1949, the communists first infiltrated the government, then took it over completely. This meant the Hoang family was in a great deal of trouble, for they were members of a high caste and Mr. Hoang was active in governmental circles as a European-educated electrical engineer.

Because of his activities, Mr. Hoang was jailed repeatedly. Each time his family freed him by bribing his jailors. Then they would move on.

Finally, they had to leave the northern provinces altogether, flying to south Viet Nam, where the communists were not allowed to infiltrate. But in the process, they lost most of what they had, and Mr. Hoang's health was severely impaired.

Classical Education

He was considered a dangerous element to both nationalists and communists. Nationalists considered him too French; communists thought he was too rich. Because of physical harm done to him by both elements, his left arm now hangs limp and useless at his side.

Mrs. Miller's education throughout the years of travail was never as haphazard as her life. Her family reared her in the classical tradition of governesses and convents, where sisters taught her impeccable French, seven years of Latin and six of Greek. In all her schooling, she gained only enough knowledge of Vietnamese to give directions to the family cook.

"It is an entirely different way of life," she says humbly, her head lowered somewhat. "Americans cannot understand people like us in Viet Nam."

When the family fled to south Viet Nam, young Kim got her first taste of relative independence. "We were overjoyed at being able to attend school with other children," she recalled, "but the family was horrified and ashamed."

This feeling of independence caused her to go out on her own and write a competitive examination for a Fulbright scholarship to the United States. She won handsily, and came to the University of Wisconsin in 1954.

"I didn't know a word of English," she explains. "It was awful. It took me 45 minutes to read two pages of English. First I would translate it into French, then I would read the French."

Because of her extensive background in languages, she was accepted as a junior at the university. She attended for one year, then was given a teaching fellowship at a school in Denver. She taught there a year and returned to Madison, where she won her bachelor's degree in February, 1958.

Married Gordon Miller

But in the interim the event occurred that changed her way of life more than any other. She met and married a university pharmacy student, Gordon Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney G. Miller, 1214 N. State street, Appleton. He now works in Appleton at the family drug store.

Marriage between a foreign national and an American is not to be taken lightly at any time. But when the marriage is between a young Oriental girl whose parents had arranged a marriage for her in Viet Nam . . . any amount of complications can happen.

"Prearranged marriage is not a bad idea for Vietnamese," Mrs. Miller explains. "Children never go anywhere alone. They are watched and chaperoned constantly until they marry. They cannot make wise choices under those circumstances. It is better for their parents to do it for them."

At first, Kim's parents couldn't reconcile their daughter's untoward behavior. But in time, the misunderstanding was ironed out, and now Kim is looking forward to visiting her family as soon as possible.

Marriage was not the only problem to face the young student. The immigration authorities wanted to deport her to Viet Nam, leaving her husband behind. Thanks to friendly Wisconsin congressmen, especially John W. Byrnes, Kim was permitted to stay in the country and in a few years will be eligible for citizenship.

Dreams of Aiding Viet Nam
At one point in the immigration struggle, she and her husband had to flee to Canada, cross the border, then re-enter the United States in order to remove one contingency that could have taken Kim from the country.

Despite the difficulties of becoming westernized and learning how to keep a western home, Mrs. Miller wants to return to Viet Nam. "There are so many more opportunities over there. I feel I could contribute to my country's welfare and prove to it that I remain Vietnamese at heart. I am married to an American because that's what I want, but I cling to some of the old traditions of my family, culture and country," she explains.

Her experiences of mingling one culture with another have instilled in Mrs. Miller an insistent desire to teach. "A second language broadens your view," she says, and her students in grade schools throughout Appleton seem to agree through their boundless enthusiasm for French.

"By knowing another language you become more conscious of knowing other people and not thinking you're the only one. This sort of awareness should permeate the whole life of an individual," she continues.

She dreams of the day when perhaps she can return to Viet Nam and teach her new language—English—to little Vietnamese children.

But in the meantime, Appleton school children suffice and Mrs. Kim Hoang Miller continues the endless and seemingly impossible task of mingling two cultures—both in her own life and in her classrooms.

Thanksgiving—Any Year

The TV and other scandals have caused many Americans to take stock of themselves, their values, morals and standards. They might also take a look at the writings of William Bradford of the time the first Thanksgiving was held, and of Abraham Lincoln who proclaimed Thanksgiving as an annual national holiday.

When the first Pilgrims landed, Gov. Bradford speculated about them almost with awe:

"Being thus arrived in a good harbour and brought safe to land, they fell upon their knees and blessed the God of heaven, who had brought them over the vast and furious ocean, and delivered them from all the perils and miseries thereof, againe to set their feete on the firme and stable earth, their proper element. . . . But here I cannot but stay and make a pause, and stand half amazed at this poore peoples present condition; and so I thinke will the reader too, when he well considers the same. . . . They had now no friends to welcome them, nor inns to entertaine or refresh their weatherbeaten bodies, no houses or much less townes to respire to, to seeke for succoure. It is recorded in scripture as a merite to the apostle and his shipwrecked companie, that the barbarians shewed them no small kindness in refreshing them, but these savage barbarians. . . . were readier to fill their sides full of arrows than otherwise. And for the season it was winter, and they that know the winters of this cuntry know them to be sharp and violent, and subjecte to cruell and fierce stormes, dangerous to travell to known places, much more to search an unknown coast. Besides, what could they see but a hideous and desolate wilderness, full of wild beasts and wild men? . . . For which way soever they turned their eyes (save upward to the heavens) they could have little solace or content on respect of any outward objects. For summer being done, all things stand upon them with a wetherbeaten face; and the whole cuntry, full of woods and thickets, represented a wild and savage heiw. . . . What could now sustain them but the spirite of God and His grace?"

When President Lincoln issued the proclamation setting aside the last Thursday in November as an annual day of thanksgiving, this nation was torn in half by civil war. Six months earlier, in April, 1863, Lincoln had set aside one day for prayer for "the pardon of our national sins." A month earlier he had said that "we have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven. We have been preserved, these many years, in peace and prosperity. We have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown; but we have forgotten God."

And in the Thanksgiving Day Proclamation he mentioned particularly that

"the year that is drawing to a close has been filled with the blessings of fruitful field and healthful skies. . . . peace has been preserved with all nations, order has been maintained, the laws have been respected and obeyed. . . ."

in spite of the frightful strife. The hardships were overlooked in view of the blessings received and these came not from men alone.

Today, like every other Thanksgiving Day in our history, we need to remember the material and spiritual blessings rather than the controversies. There is nothing that can make us face up so surely to our mistakes and our strengths as a humble heart and a fervent prayer.

Semantics and Tax Revision

There is a real danger that the discussions about state income tax rate revision now going on at the meetings of the state revenue study commission will be misunderstood, and that the purposes and methods of that group will therefore, become distorted in the public mind.

The other day, as an example, one of the leading spokesmen of the liberal point of view on the commission, James Doyle of Madison, suggested in one of the subcommittee reports a broadening of the base of the income tax structure by starting the rate at three per cent in the first bracket of taxable income, instead of the traditional one per cent rate.

There is a hazard that this may sound like "soaking the poor." Actually the significant phrase here is "taxable income." As Research Director John Gronouski of the commission usefully reminded, everybody who pays a tax to the state treasury is included in that first bracket of "taxable income." The man who earns $20,000 a year and the man who earns $5,000 is covered. Each of them will find a higher tax liability under such a system.

It is not our purpose here to discuss the merits of this particular Doyle proposal, tentative as it is, except to remark that its authorship is encouragingly suggestive of the more realistic approach of Democrats to state tax problems — perhaps as a consequence of the responsibility that has come with their victories at the polls lately.

What Mr. Doyle, a respected former chairman of the Democratic party organization of the state, reported to the committee is not nearly as important as the fact that it was he who got it said.

It has long been known that the vast bulk of the taxable income earned in Wisconsin is in the lower and middle income brackets. Indeed, Dr. Gronouski the other day underscored the fact that about half of all the "taxable" income is in the first two $1,000 brackets of the income tax scale imposed by the state. Thus it is crystal clear that if the income tax is to be relied upon for continued sustenance of a rapidly expanding expenditures budget, those lower brackets must take the strain.

Our own preference is for an even more broadly based tax, a modified sales tax grafted into the present fiscal scheme, which alone can produce the kind of revenues these studies are projecting and yet contribute significantly to the alleviation of other tax burdens such as the property tax. We are confident, moreover, that the more deeply this commission probes into our fiscal dilemma, the more surely it will turn to such an alternative.

There remain those uninformed, or perhaps irresponsible persons, who continue to pretend that we can finance these budgets through confiscatory levies upon higher incomes. But as the commission members have so clearly and courageously noted repeatedly thus far, there are not enough of those, and any further increases in the effective rates of the top income brackets of the schedule will make them competitively prohibitive.

The Decline of Thanksgiving

Somehow Thanksgiving does not seem to have the place it once did in American life. Even the stories we used to tell our children — of the Pilgrim Fathers, the First Thanksgiving, the miracle of the Indians joining in the ceremony — don't seem as popular any more. The only special attention Thanksgiving has received this year was caused by the cranberry ruckus.

Perhaps it is because we begin preparing for Christmas so much earlier now. (A wag has commented that Thanksgiving "is an American holiday devoted to putting up municipal Christmas decorations.") Or perhaps it is because, to modern Americans, a holiday the chief material feature of which is enjoyment of a large meal, just isn't very exciting — most of us eat rather large meals the year around. Whether is another way of saying that we have become so sated with our wealth that we take God's bounty for granted.

It is a fact that a poor man is much more likely to offer up thanks for the blessing of a full stomach than a rich man whose stomach always is full. This is a tragic aspect of the human character — the more we have, the less we appreciate it. Certainly it is one of our great American faults and one we should be honest enough to recognize.

For surely we Americans have more to be thankful for than any other people in history. At one and the same time we are enjoying the greatest material wealth ever achieved by any nation, and live under the most advanced political system Man has yet developed. We have no war ruins to remind us of all-too-recent fear and suffering, as have so many of our fellow humans in other countries. Starvation, malnutrition, epidemic disease, primitive living conditions, political tyranny, the awful despair of hopelessness are practically unknown in this land. And let's face it — we manage to close our eyes to most of those things as they exist in the world around us.

And yet Thanksgiving is and always has been a peculiarly American holiday, started by a poverty-stricken, fearful band of people stranded on the cold and unfriendly shore of New England over three centuries ago. These people did not know whether they would survive the coming winter, had no intuition that they were the forerunners of a new and great nation, knew only that they had been forced to flee to the wilderness so that they could worship God as they chose; yet they offered up thanks to their God for the pitifully few blessings He had bestowed on them. Certainly it is a tradition that we should remember with sincerity and humility: certainly thanking our Creator for the bounty with which He has surrounded us, and praying that all humans everywhere shall some day be able to share it with us, is the least we can do.

Helpful Neighbor Loses TV Set

Columbus, Ohio — UP — The morning after he made the final payment on his television set, Elmer Boggs sat watching it at home. The phone rang.

A man told him that a friend had been in an accident some distance away. Boggs jumped in his car and sped to the scene. No friend, no accident.

No TV set, either, he found when he got back. Neighbors saw three men drive up to the rear of Boggs' house while he was gone and load the TV and his new hi-fi set into their car.

Frank Joe

Bridgeport, Conn. — UP — At least Joe was frank. George Salley found his home had been robbed of about $50 and a note left by the thief: "I robbed your house and took the money and now I am on my way to Canada. Joe."

British Criticism Aside, We Won The War Even With Golf Playing

From The Chicago Tribune

Another critical appraisal of Dwight Eisenhower as supreme allied commander in World War II has come from Lord Alanbrooke, chairman of the British chiefs of staff during the war. His memoirs suggest that Gen. Eisenhower was strong on charm and human relations but weak as a military planner and negligent in his exercise of command.

At a critical point in 1944, shortly before the German counter-attack which became known as the battle of the bulge, Gen. Eisenhower was golfing. Alanbrooke says, instead of running the war. There is also a good deal of criticism of the inexperienced of the general in handling field commands and of strategy which the British chief thought would prolong the war.

Much the same sort of criticism has been offered by Field Marshal Montgomery.

Though this newspaper has never been an uncritical hero worshiper and has on occasion cited Mr. Eisenhower's deficiencies in political philosophy, we must confess that we get a little tired of hearing British generals tell how they could have done it better or faster. Britain was extremely happy to get the United States into the war. Prime Minister Churchill has confessed that that was what he "dreamed of, aimed at, and worked for," and, once American intervention was accomplished, he crowed that a Britain which had been knocked out of Europe would now "not be wiped out" and that "we had won after all!"

As Britain could never have won the war on her own power, it is ungenerous for British generals now to tell how much faster and better they could have done the job — assuming, of course, that they had American power at their disposal and had been allowed command of it.

Gen. Eisenhower was the nominee of his country for the job he assumed, and he took it without dispute from the British at the time. They did not criticize him during the war — at least openly — and they all conceded his talents as a conciliator and in welding diverse elements into an effective fighting front.

Gen. Omar Bradley, commander of the 12th army group, has replied to the Alanbrooke criticism, "We won the war."

That is true in the military sense. The deficiencies of the United States, and, equally, of Britain, lay in the incapacity of its political leadership to understand that military victory is worthless unless wars are fought for rational ends and victory does not bring national disadvantage. President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill could not see the obvious result if Germany and Japan were destroyed and soviet imperialism allowed to run wild. Military victory was succeeded by what has aptly been termed "the most terrifying peace" ever to follow a great war.

Looking Backward

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Nov. 27, 1880.

The day was a fine one — just cold enough to make the air feel keen and bracing, and necessarily appetizing. The attendance at the churches was rather limited, for the very good reason that the ladies were generally engaged in superintending dinner preparations at home.

Union services were held at the Presbyterian church and the Rev. George Vernor preached at the Episcopal church. The services in Rev. Mr. Zikerick's church were held in the evening, when the worshippers could feel thankful for the creature comforts they had been permitted to enjoy.

Family gatherings and dinners were in the afternoon and sociality was the order of the day. Business was suspended and the streets were quite deserted.

In the evening there were dances at Turner hall given

Editor, Post-Crescent:

In addition to any number of letters and telephone calls I have received, commending me for sponsoring the Soo Line locomotive exhibit in Telulah park, I also have received some letters from mothers, who were very critical of the vandal-proof fence, placed around this historical exhibit. Their main objection seems to be that it prevents their children from crawling up on the engine, sitting in the engineer's seat in the cab, etc.

In the first place, one of the conditions the Soo Line insisted on before they would agree to donate this loco-

Progress Being Made On New Tax Setup

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — It is evident that the Democratic state administration is determined to defer the job of basic, Wisconsin state and local tax revision until after the next elections, and that the prospect has irritated some of the persons interested in the subject.

Wyngaard

Without reference to the merits of such a plan or its probable derivation from partisan political interest, critics of Wisconsin fiscal affairs should not lose sight of the fact that the state is actually making significant, even surprising, progress toward the goal of a fiscal re-writing job.

Who could have guessed, with a background of knowledge of Wisconsin political history, that in a time of Democratic rule of state government in 1959 these things would have happened:

A Democratic state convention, under the obvious prodding of a realistic governor, would adopt an equivocal statement on the ways before hated sales tax?

A committee of state university economists, some of them liberal political actionists, would sign a report showing that some Wisconsin tax policies are out of line with the practices of competitive states? A Democratic majority in one house of the legislature preparing to push for the enactment of a revenue package that would repeal or reduce the individual income surtax — that favorite standby in the liberal bullpen for many past decades?

A Democratic governor consciously trying to hold down the maximum effective rate of individual income taxation, in deference to the state's competitive position, and daring in the process the "soak the rich" prejudices of so many of his party associates and influential campaign supporters?

A Democratic administration actually making a move to change the machinery of the personal property tax, denounced countless times before as unfair and discriminatory, but never before actually and seriously any state administration?

A Democratic administration actually proposing — as distinguished from academic pep talks — a "stop-gap" income tax revision that will have the effect of extracting larger sums from the middle and lower earners, the source of its voting power?

ASTONISHMENT

Any knowledgeable politician or political reporter, given a forecast about such developments half a dozen years ago, would have been incredulous.

But here they are, on the board, written in the record for all to see.

The partisan maneuvering about the time schedule of the governor's tax-revision study commission, and the argument about whether there should be a tax revision by this legislature or the next, have obscured these real, significant and somewhat astonishing gains toward the ultimate goal.

There is the final surprise, the fact that the state now is deliberating the enactment of a sales tax in some form and under the auspices of a political party that has spent more lung power and publicity talent on denouncing the sales tax, in any form and for any purpose, than it has devoted to any other issue in modern politics.

These are important happenings. The partisan give and take is fluff. This gradual shifting of position on basic issues is the big news of the year from Madison. Almost surely it points to great decisions ahead. The only question is when. The chance is that the decision won't come until 1961, with a new legislature, with a new governor or with the same governor with a new popular mandate.

That it is coming there is no doubt whatever. There will be a good deal of feinting and by-play in the process. But to those interested in the main target, basic refurbishing of the tax structure in an era when the growth of government service and money appetite appears inevitable, there is encouraging progress being made.

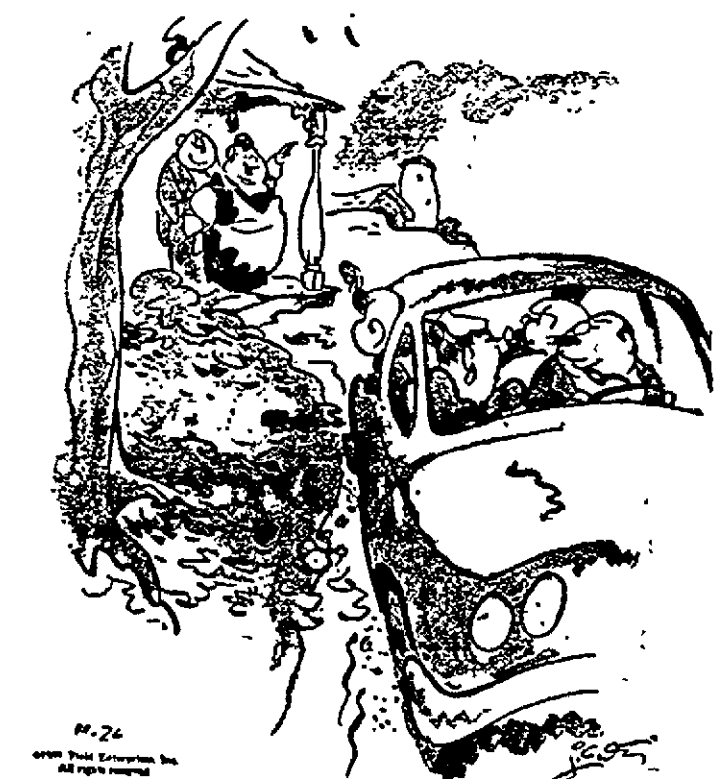

Americans Shouldn't Forget Ideology Fight

From The Arizona Republic

Americans should never forget — nor let the world forget — that the ideological struggle in the world today is between democracy and totalitarianism, between free enterprise and state capitalism, which actually is nothing but a whetted sword for socialism. It shouldn't allow anyone, even the head of the soviet state, to warp the meaning of these words to his own advantage.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lichty

"It was a fine dinner and the kids enjoyed their grandparents but it's still too early to be thankful . . . what with heavy traffic and you driving! . . ."

Old-Fashioned or Modern, Decorations are Festive

Christmas decorations seem to fall into two classes and this twain seldom meets.

For one type of family, the tree must be evergreen to express its holiday sentiment. No other will do, no fancy sprays nor unusual decor for this group. This is the camp of the frankly old-fashioned who love their trees festooned and hung with old and treasured trimmings that have been in the family for years. New ones are added, but they must fit into the scheme of the old-fashioned Christmas tree.

The artistic camp is very different. Their trees must be beautiful in tone, color scheme. These families search for the new idea, the unusual, the dramatic.

Matter of Taste
Both are right, according to family taste, and both may be achieved in the Christmas centers that are beginning to bloom in most Fox Cities stores.

Perhaps those with old-fashioned tastes will need a new supply of quaint and colorful imported tree trimmings. There are many available, the intricately blown glass horns, pin-on birds, white frosted scenic ornaments that make a Christmas tree a wondrous thing for small children. Balls of color, spotted, plain or frosted, bring bright patches to the greenery. Gaily painted figures, objects and oddly shaped ornaments add to treasured collections that come out of storage.

The moderns will find their choices just as easily. There are many one-toned tree ornaments that will make a beautiful contrast to a colored or white-flocked tree.

New Aluminum Trees
Huge, golden balls tied with red satin ribbons may be tied to the branches of a white-flocked tree. Golden balls may be chosen for one of the new silver-toned permanent trees now on the market. These lightweight aluminum trees come in three sizes and may be taken down, branch by branch and stored for another year.

Golden sun ornaments may be affixed to colored branches with enormous golden satin ribbon bows, or such tones as ribbons or such tones as turquoise, fuchsia or jewel red can be the predominating tone against a flocked tree of the same or contrasting shade.

It's all a matter of personal taste. Some families, particularly those of old-fashioned bent, prefer to have their trees twinkling with lights, tailored to fit piece of white money to make a home festive for the holidays.

Here are a Few Ideas for decorating walls or outside doors for the holidays. Two crossed styrofoam canes are dressed up with ribbon trim, sparkling stars and polka-dotted ribbon bow. A sample green wreath has a tinkling bell to give forth a merry tune each time the door is opened and an example of artwork is seen in the Christmas gentleman clown.

of the miniature variety that a wide slanted streamer of sparkle like tiny jeweled red oilcloth, topped with a stars.) Many of the moderns bow, to simulate a huge Christmas package.

Two crossed styrofoam canes, secured in the middle with a bit of greenery and large golden bell and bow, make a cheerful door effect. One of the most effective seen last season was a collection of Christmas cards tacked to a backing on the door. This is particularly effective when the house has a porch or cover that protects the card collection from the elements.

A doorway framed in evergreen boughs in which are entwined special outdoor lights makes a glowing welcome after dark. For the ambitious, the porch or housefront could be festooned with greenery and lights as elaborately or as simple as the budget affords.

When it comes to Christmas decorations, time and a little cooperative imagination frequently is needed more than money to make a home festive for the holidays.

Leather Boots Desirable as Christmas Gift

Many Styles for Women, Men Will Like Casual Shoes

Looking for a highly unusual, highly desirable present for her this Christmas? Give her a pair of high-style, high-stepping leather boots.

Finished in brilliant shades of unusual textures, soft and supple leather boots make a handsome, uncommon but practical gift. With hem-lines higher, the ankle-hugging boot for street wear—not to be confused with the all-weather storm boot—dramatically emphasizes feminine legs.

The pointed toe and high heel are the marks of an elegant dress boot. Some are cuffed with mink and other luxury furs, others are jeweled. A knee-high brushed leather boot closing all along the calf fits as snug and trim as a leotard.

For the man on your shopping list, a pair of casual leather shoes is a popular item. Because men have more time on their hands as the working hours decrease, the shoe industry has got in step, with more styles, colors and textures in footwear for after-work and weekends.

Popular weekend casuals include new brushed leather slip-ons with elastic goring hidden inside the tongue or visible at the sides to make the shoes snug but easy to put on.

At-home shoes—not to be confused with soft slippers—have firm leather soles and cushioned leather insoles. They can be worn any number of hours without foot strain.

If he's planning a resort or cruise vacation this winter, a pair of white casuals are a must. Washable white leather is used alone or in interesting combinations with brown and black.

Christmas Abolished By English Puritans

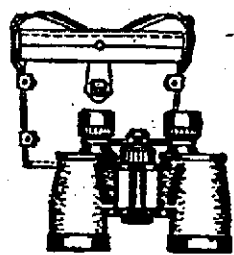

Christmas was once forbidden.

Opposition of the English Puritans to festivals culminated in the act of parliament in 1647 which abolished the observance of Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide. This was echoed in 1659 when the American Puritans enacted a similar law.

In New England, for example, those caught celebrating the holiday were fined five shillings.

A Maze of Cameras Confronts Harry Neubauer, 840 E. Cecil street, Neenah, as he looks over a new model camera in a Fox Cities store. The selection before Neubauer is just a sampling of the many makes, models and types of automatic cameras, flash units and polaroid land cameras available for Christmas giving. New models have automatic features guaranteed to give sharp pictures with professional touch.

Movie Cameras Make Popular Christmas Gift

Shutter Bug Always Looking For Quality, Modern Equipment

BY ROY VALITCHKA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Photography with a still camera may remain popular, but in a camera bug's search for quality and advancement in photography, the movie profession makes its bow.

"A movie camera will have 10 times the value of a regular camera 10 years from now because of the memory value it records," a Fox Cities camera dealer says.

Parents can record a young star at play with all the color and action of the moment. Years later that same reel will let them relive that moment.

Most Popular

Most popular for Christmas and 1960 will be the 8 millimeter cameras in automatic models.

The automatic feature in cameras is found in lenses which glide smoothly back and forth—providing precision normal, wide angle and telephoto lens coverage with continuous sharpness throughout the firing sequence.

Exposure on these cameras also is automatic. An electric eye measures light and adjusts the camera's iris continuously as an operator moves from sunlight to shade.

Movie Projectors

In the projection line, new movie projectors are on the market which play sound and silent movies with less than an operator's touch.

Movie screens, too, have made advances. Lenticulation has become a byword in purchase of a screen.

Lenticulation is breaking up of a screen into lenses so all surfaces reflect a higher quality of light from any angle with a greater degree of brightness—so bright a movie can be viewed in a room with a reading light on.

'Click, Focus, Click'

The field of photography has become a matter of click, focus, click. Automatic movement forward of a spent picture is regulated by mechanism in the camera. Pushing a lever forward advances a new frame for exposure.

Focus is coupled with the lenses. A split image (out of focus) is brought together and into focus with a button and at the same time the lenses are in focus and a picture as it will look on a slide is seen. Light meters built into a camera make delicate light problems a small detail in shutter operation. Many new models of Japanese cameras are found on the market. Lenses in these cameras are of surprising superior quality, one dealer noted.

Major Jump

A major jump in the photo industry has been made into tape recorders.

"It won't be uncommon to see photo stores carrying tape recorders this Christmas and in 1960," a dealer said. Most manufacturers of photo equipment also make the best precision recorders, he explained.

Boast No Flash

Polaroid cameras now boast pictures without flash bulbs.

Three major advances have made polaroid photography the ever increasing 60-second wonder. A tiny wink—light flash unit that works 1,000 times on a single battery to wipe out shadows and a polaroid exposure meter have afforded the polaroid camera fan the professional touch.

In the field of accessories, cameramen are moving more into their own processing and printing.

Complete darkroom layouts with enlarger, contact printer and necessary chemicals and utensils are sold in a package for less than $200. A single kit includes 22 pieces.

Binoculars Good

Binoculars are moving into the field for sportsmen and cameramen alike. The glasses come in a variety of powers for all types of work and in

Orders Quiz in Parker Lynching

Jackson, Miss. — (U. S. Federal Judge Sidney Mize will empanel a grand jury Jan. 4 at Biloxi to hear the Mack Charles Parker lynch case.

Mize said Sunday the case would get priority over routine matters.

He said he advised U. S. Atty. Robert Hauberg of his decision to empanel a new grand jury at Biloxi rather than recall the existing grand jury in Jackson.

Jackson sources expect the justice department to guide the case through the grand jury and any court action resulting from the investigation.

The justice department reentered the case after the Pearl River county grand jury declined last month to act.

a variety of German, Japanese and American makes.

Outdoorsmen hunting with a camera use binoculars to set up shots, hunters to stalk game and birdwatchers for closeup views.

Camera bags are big and streamlined. Flash units are moving toward the electronic flash, with greater life and less maintenance cost.

Instructions let the user know how to handle his Christmas gift photo equipment.

Luggage in Medley of Hues Awaits Fox Cities Shoppers

When Grandma took her traveling satchel from the upper shelf, it almost always was a sedate black or brown. Now color, rampant in all phases of modern life, has aptly been adopted by luggage manufacturers.

A medley of hues is available for the Christmas shopper in Fox Cities stores. Bright plaid cloth-type luggage, soft blues and greens, light grey, navy and natural shades in traveling pieces give a colorful look to today's traveler.

Some of the plastic coated pieces have the added advantage of easy cleaning. A damp cloth will vanish all spots of scuff and wear.

New aluminum, lightweight luggage is available in colors as well as the metallic shade. With greater numbers of travelers taking to the air each year, this luggage matches smart styling with functionalism.

One manufacturer makes a sleek, smartly styled piece in jet black, combined with white leather initials for a sophisticated travel ensemble.

The hatbox case, long hailed as the trademark of models, is a feminine favorite. Zippered for easy opening and leather handled for convenient carrying, this type case is available in a number of sizes and price ranges.

Hat Boxes Junior scale rounded hat boxes will be prized by the moppets for transporting costumes and tap shoes to dancing classes as well as for overnight sojourns. Mirrored inside covers serve as a boon to the train traveler, who substitutes the hatbox for the conventional overnight case.

For the businessman on the gift list, fine leather kits, divided into compartments, serve as ideal over-night cases. Sections on either side provide space for slippers and toilet articles, with a roomy section in the center for clothing.

For the career woman or man, shopkeepers suggest the attache case. This rectangular case may be initiated.

To Charm a Lady

A charm bracelet holds unusually attractive possibilities for gifting a lady, because you can custom-assemble it to tell a story that is hers alone. It can be a "gift that grows," too, because you can add gift charms anytime to symbolize new events and occasions.

Appleton Still Has Architectural Flavor of Towers, Fancy Dormers

By Marguerite Schumann

"Ornamentation is the principal part of architecture," wrote English author, art critic and social reformer John Ruskin well before any upstart from a 20th century drawing board could preach to him about functionalism.

A walk around Appleton, gazing skyward, surely bears in case anyone is interested, the pictured towered rooflines are at the following addresses: top row, left to right, 826 E. Alton street; 302 E. Lawrence street; 330 W. Sixth street; 315 W. Prospect avenue; 200 E. College avenue; 913 N. Oneida street; 417 N. Durkee street. Lower row: 330 E. College avenue; 705 E. College avenue; 524 E. North street; 844 E. College avenue; 316 E. Washington street; 727 E. College avenue.

Ruskin out. Many of the residences in the older sections of Appleton were built during the late 19th century, when Queen Victoria's architectural Reign of Terror was at its peak and they bristle with turrets, dormer windows and fanciful roof lines.

In the 1920s and 1930s when the unornamented cube was considered high taste in building, critics wrote disrespectful books about "Victorian atrocities." More recently young men have taken their pens in hand to point out that the elaborate unbalance of a Victorian house was caused by a wish to make the rooms with-in livable and sun-filled—that this was actually the first step in the form-must-follow-function school. At any rate, Victorian architecture has its stout defenders, and many are rediscovering the charm of living in the ample spaces of the last century.

19th Century Influences

Here is a quick list of the favored architectural influences of the 19th century; during the first half of the century—the classic styles of the federal and colonial periods; around 1850—steamboat Gothic, modeled after the literal "floating wedding cakes" of the great rivers; 1860—an eruption of Oriental turrets for the wealthy, Italian villas for the merely well-to-do, and "carpenter gothic" cottages for those of more moderate means. After the Civil war, a new style emerged—the Queen Anne or Elizabethan cottage style, which engaged in a winning battle to the death with gothic. Someone (obviously a fan of the gothic style) wrote that the Queen Anne house was "a tossed salad of Elizabethan, Jacobean and the style of Francis I with the structural underpinnings of none of them."

But someone else wrote: "It was picturesque at the same time that it was honest, and artistic at the same time that it was practical. Its shapely peaked roofs, second and third floor balconies, spindled verandas, occasional stained glass windows and corner towers were considered to be harmonious with the sincere and the quaint. What was more important, it was an architecture equally suitable to the wealthy and to the poor, and it demanded no skills in building of which every American carpenter was not the master."

Diversity of Styles

People who "collect" towers on their Sunday afternoon walks will find many of them appended to houses of the Queen Anne style, although there is a rich diversity of family styles around the town. A sensitive eye will see, for

Parking Ramp For Square Appears Dead

Ald. John Schumacher's suggestion for study of a Soldiers Square parking ramp apparently is doomed to death in the hold file of the city council's public safety committee.

"And, here," said Ald. Thomas K. Schneider, committee chairman, during Tuesday's committee meeting, "we have Ald. Schumacher's resolution for study of a parking ramp at Soldiers Square."

"We certainly are not ready for that yet," snapped one committeeman.

"Hold that, Mr. Chairman," said another.

3 or 4 Years Away

Schneider placed the resolution back in the committee folder and went on with other business.

Later, during discussion of the shopping mall report, one committeeman said, without contradiction, that the city probably won't be ready for ramp construction for three or four more years.

A key factor, it was explained, is the lack of money available from parking meter revenues to defray the first year's interest and principle for a required bond issue.

example, several examples of medieval towers, with fierce saw-toothed crenellations around the top, or vestigial remains (translated into brick) of the slits and machicolations in a tower that allowed our European forebears to drop hot oil and stones over unwelcome callers. There are recollections of the bracketed Italian villa, the onion dome of the Byzantine empire, chateau - like tourelles (little round towers), and many that can be described most accurately as "Late General Grant."

Whatever the exterior architectural form, a tower has been a magic place for hundreds of Appleton's children, who spun the fancies of youth high above the street on rainy afternoons. It is even possible that today's teenagers criticized in many quarters for lack of imagination—are deficient in that way because of the vanishing tower

Chair Nice Family Gift

Luxurious Leather Furniture Pieces Choice of Many

Some gifts are strictly personal, but many are a family affair. These are the major gifts—usually large items for the home—that parents will give to a young couple still building and furnishing their home.

Or, perhaps the younger family will present a chair or other important household article to the older folks who are redecorating. Still another modern custom is for a couple or family to chip in and give themselves a needed and decorative article for the home.

Handsome, luxurious leather-upholstered furniture heads the list of major Christmas gifts. An occasional chair of leather, a love seat or even a full-size sofa is a versatile asset to the decorator, since leather has the virtue of fitting in with any decor, period or contemporary. For older people with traditional tastes, elegant period pieces combine antique hard-wearing white leather with gracefully carved walnut, mahogany or ebony wood frames. There are baroque and regency pieces in delicate-appearing but leather. To complete the picture, there are hundreds of beautiful leather lamp bases, a prized leather chair or sofa table lighters, cigaret boxes, can supplement it with a coffee table or end tables top-and-head curtains, wall coverings and even decorative leather wall plaques.

Novel 'Exodus' Lures Tourists to Israel

Best-Seller by Leon Uris Helps

To Stimulate Travel as Planned

BY W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Staff Writer
New York — "Exodus" really means exodus, they are discovering in Israel.

"More tourists fly in to Tel Aviv with copies of Leon Uris' best-selling novel than with copies of the Bible," says Yohanan Beham, director of the Israel government tourist office.

Do you want to see the fabled mines of King Solomon? Or do you want to see where Uris' heroes and heroines battled both the Arabs and the English? Do you want to sight-see in Acre, the Knights Templars stronghold, or Acre where Uris' Ari engineered the prison break?

Do you want to see Mt. Canaan for Mt. Canaan's sake or because Uris' Sutherland lived in a villa across the road from your inn?

'Exodus' Features
There is now an "Exodus" tour that you can arrange through your travel agent. There is also, of course, an "Exodus" dance in the repertory of the Israel company called Inbal — due to visit the United States soon.

For "Exodus" itself, there are 400,000 hardbound copies in print, plus a paperback Bantam edition with a first printing of 2,900,000, called the biggest in paperback history. Beham said there was hope, when Uris went to work on the successor to his popular "Battle Cry," that it might stimulate travel to Israel.

Planned This Way
It was sort of planned this way. With an advance from his original publisher Doubleday, and from MGM, Uris went to Israel to investigate the fictional possibilities, and there decided on a novel to cover the founding of the new state.

The Israeli government did not subsidize him, but took him on a trip to key points. He also visited Cyprus, where he opens his long fast-paced story, and several cities in Europe, including Warsaw, from which Jews fled to their promised land.

Beham said his own original idea had been a lighter work more on the level of the entertainment provided by the Italian films. But Uris' somber account now appears to have been the proper, and the effective, approach.

Has Been Criticized
Jews have criticized it; they are shocked, for instance, by the episode of the boatload of children whose lives the adults threaten to sacrifice. But Be-ham says there is historical justification for many of the characters, places and happenings.

He can name the man modeled on Orde Wingate, Britisher who defended the Haifa pipeline against the Arabs; he says the kibbutz called "Rose" by Uris is in fact named "Coriander."

The travel folder advertising the trip promises to show you where Ari attacked on Mt. Zion, the place where Aki-va was buried, the Gaza strip where Karen was killed, and the view over the Sea of Galilee enjoyed by Ari and Kit-ty.

Idea Not New
It's not the first time a book has set people to boarding ship and plane. A lot of travel is to vacation resorts. But a big part of the exodus year-in year-out to Europe is for the sake of Europe's cultural treasures.

Uris' novel is no literary masterpiece, but for current drawing power it belongs in the ranks with the church where Bach played the organ, the little square where Delacroix had a studio, Dickens' London, Stendhal's Italy, Balzac's Paris and Flaubert's Rouen.

Outagamie Bond Sales at 58 Pct. Of Year's Goal

Outagamie county sales of series E and H savings bonds for the 10 months ended Oct. 31 stood at $1,318,982, or 58.3 per cent of the year's goal. Calumet county totals for the same period were $247,748 or 59.6 per cent; Waupaca county, $41,882 or 67.6 per cent; Winnebago county, $1,597,908 or 59.9 per cent.

October bond sales in the state totaled $6,014,180 and were 26 per cent higher than the $5,347,000 sales recorded in September.

The boost in interest rate to 3 1/2 per cent attracted many new purchasers, according to Harold F. Dickens, state di-

Stage Star Walter Slezak, costumed and ready for his debut at the Metropolitan Opera company Wednesday night, poses before the picture of his father, Leo Slezak, famed Met tenor. The elder Slezak made his own debut at the Met in Verdi's "Otello," just 50 years ago. Walter, a longtime opera fan, sang the role of Zsupan, the pig farmer, in Johann Strauss' "The Gypsy Baron." Known best for his comedy roles on Broadway, the actor fulfilled one of his cherished dreams when he appeared in opera.

Conductor Believes Children Need Free Choice in Music

"If the urge for music is in a child, it will come forth no matter what you do. You can't defeat it."

This is the advice given to anxious parents by Dr. Howard Mitchell, distinguished conductor of the National Symphony orchestra in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Mitchell, under whose leadership the National Symphony orchestra has carried on a broad program of concerts for children, says serious music study must come from a child's free choice. "It was mine," he says, "and that's why I enjoyed it."

First Step
The first step toward getting a child to play any musical instrument is to bring him or her into contact with music, advises Dr. Mitchell. Then let him play any instrument he wants to play — whether it's the piano, violin, trumpet, drum or whatever.

"Children frequently want to change instruments," he says. "There's nothing wrong with this. In fact, a child gains from experience with different instruments. He may want to change to another instrument because he likes it, or it offers a better chance to play in a group."

The conductor doesn't believe there are certain qualities in a youngster that must correspond to certain musical instruments. A noisy extrovert might become an excellent drummer, but he might become a very good violin player, too.

"If a child has no special desire to start with a particular instrument, the piano is the best one on which to begin lessons," says Dr. Mitchell.

A student can learn more about harmony and harmonic structure from piano music than from music which has but one line of notes," he says.

How much should a child be "made" to practice? A half hour a day, regularly, says Dr. Mitchell, is a good minimum. "And that's a lot if the child sticks faithfully to it." Parents can break it up into 15 minutes before school and 15 minutes in the evening, he says.

Avoid Battles
"But practicing must never become a battle between parents and child. You can't force a musical instrument on a child and still have it mean anything. If a youngster genuinely does not want to continue with an instrument once he has had a good taste of it, drop the lessons," he advises.

He credits the emphasis on marching bands, which stress spectacle rather than musicianship, with drawing away from the school orchestras. "This is too bad," he comments.

Comedy Seems Funnier on Radio Than TV

Slapstick Replaces Imaginative Humor Of Spoken Word

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood — When will comedians be coming back to television? Maybe never.

We may have to face the fact that TV is not a medium in which comedy can thrive and survive.

Take "The Dennis O'Keefe Show," which made its debut Tuesday. O'Keefe is one of the movies' better handlers of funny stuff. He can double-take with the best of them. But his talents weren't enough to save the insane script.

There could be humor in having a sophisticated man act like a teenager to disenchant a swooning young girl. At least it was funny when Cary Grant did it in "The Bachelor and the Bobbysox-er." But the situation had such obviousness on the O'Keefe show that the guffawing laugh track sounded more idiotic than usual.

Lack Offbeat Comedy

Then came "Fibber McGee and Molly," with the laugh way track more restrained and the comedy gentler. Bob Sweeney is right as Fibber, receives about $14,000 a year but Kathy Lewis seems to miss the comic nuances as at Citronelle, Ala. The council, Molly. All the supporting which has 63,000 boys, has characters except Hal Peary purchased 680 acres of land (as Mayor Latrivia instead of with the profit).

the Gildersleeve he origi-nated) lack the offbeat qual-ity they had on the McGee radio show.

Maybe producers feel TV comedy characters have to be straighter, more like the they're right. But this under-lines why radio was a per-fect medium for comedy and TV isn't.

Back in those dear, dead days of bigtime radio, we could imagine Fibber's clos-et, Jack Benny's vault and Fred Allen's alley. Those things were funnier to us than if we could see them. Char-lie McCarthy was not just a dummy, he was a mischiev-ous boy who said outrage-ously funny things.

Only Red Skelton
When TV came in, the net-works signed up every com-e-dian in sight, thinking that comedy would remain as su-preme as it had in radio. But one by one the comedy shows died, until only Red Skelton remains.

Comedy was successful in radio because it relied on the wit and humor of the spoken word alone. Add the element of sight and there is the temptation to delve into slapstick. Everything becomes lit-eral instead of imaginative.

There will always be a de-gree of comedy on TV and some of it will be funny. But ah, those days of radio. . .

Mobile, Ala. — The Mo-bile Area council of Boy Scouts has found an easier way to make money than through Christmas tree sales the comedy gentler. Bob Sweeney is right as Fibber, receives about $14,000 a year but Kathy Lewis seems to miss the comic nuances as at Citronelle, Ala. The council, Molly. All the supporting which has 63,000 boys, has characters except Hal Peary purchased 680 acres of land (as Mayor Latrivia instead of with the profit).

Anti-Monopoly Laws Needed For Labor

Unions Use Power To Control Industry And Congress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — From coast to coast the news has just been blazoned across the front pages that the U. S. government has filed suit against 18 steel companies for alleged violation of those sections of the anti-trust laws which deal with "restraint of trade."

Lawrence

Nothing has been proved yet, but the average man will believe steel companies have done something awful or the government wouldn't have sued them.

The sad truth is that labor unions, which can do more damage to the American economy than the steel men, cannot be prosecuted. Congress has refused to pass any laws to forbid conspiracies in restraint of trade among labor unions. Employers in a single industry cannot get together to fix prices but a labor union can shut up all the plants in the same industry and demand a uniform wage. This means a fixed labor cost throughout the industry, which in turn affects the price.

Why doesn't congress pass such an antimonopoly law to cover unions, too? Because, in addition to their monopoly power in an industry, most of the big unions are banded together in a huge effort to try to "rig" congress. This isn't unlawful either. The method is to pour millions of dollars of campaign contributions into the election funds of senators and representatives. James R. Hoffa, a czar of the Teamsters union, has brazenly announced a fund is being collected to help defeat all those senators and representatives who recently voted to enact the new labor reform law, which is aimed at racketeers.

Charges Against Companies
What are the steel manufacturing and fabricating companies supposed to have done to bring down the official wrath of the department of justice? They are charged with having conspired to control the market in seven states for "reinforcing bars" used to strengthen concrete in heavy construction. The complaint by the government says that, in collusion with the steel companies, the makers of the bars allocated the fabrication jobs among themselves, filed identical bids on projects, agreed not to buy cheaper foreign-made bars, and tried to freeze out smaller fabricators.

If true, this is a blow at small business. But it is trivial in effect compared to the plight of small steel manufacturers who are compelled by the unions to pay the same high wages as their well-heeled competitors.

If the principle of antimonopoly laws is valid in the case of the employers, it is sound also in the case of the unions. The unions label any such proposal as "union-breaking." Certainly it means breaking up monopolies in labor, but there is no more logic in the argument against it than to say that the antitrust laws break up an individual company's right to do business as a separate company.

The basic point is collusion and conspiracy. Workers have the right to join a union in their own plant and to strike if they cannot agree with the employer through collective bargaining, but have they a right to monopolize an entire industry and conspire to bring on an industry-wide strike? This is the issue con-

Safety Council Backs Patrol For I-System

Budget Request Asks 40 Men Annually For Next Three Years

The Wisconsin Council of Safety has provided legislators with a summary of the state motor vehicle department's plans for patrolling the new interstate highway system in Wisconsin.

The department's budget now before the legislature proposes an increase of 40 men a year for the next three years in the 250 man state patrol, to bring the force to 370 men by 1962.

The council has gone on record as favoring an increase in the state patrol as a way to reduce deaths, injuries and property damage on Wisconsin highways.

No Change Elsewhere
Present high accident routes to which state patrolmen are assigned are not expected to change materially after completion of the I-system, except at locations where closely paralleling routes exist.

Where parallel routing of a freeway is expected to reduce substantially the accident experience on the existing route, it is planned to divert present patrol officers to the freeway to conserve manpower. On other state highways, however, state patrolmen are to continue employing their selective enforcement efforts to assure efficient movement of traffic and to protect the motoring public.

Motorist Assistance
Since stranded I-system motorists no longer will have easy access to a nearby farm, a greater degree of service responsibility will fall on the patrol.

In some states where freeways now are in operation, a stranded motorist raises the hood of his car and returns inside the vehicle to await a patrolman. Experience has shown that about 18 per cent of an officer's time will be used to help motorists in distress. This amounts to 1½ hours each 8-hour shift.

The enforcing agency must be prepared to provide this service immediately after completion of the larger freeway sections. A higher percentage of stranded motorists will be some distance from their home area and will depend on the officer to secure honest and fairly priced aid.

Accurate Records
Engineers, police and legislators—having a vital concern in reducing accident hazards—will require accurate and complete records on freeways.

To study accidents effectively, one central agency must receive all reports and investigations. Direction of enforcement effort on the I-system should come from one traffic law enforcement administrator, the council says. If several agencies are involved, it will lead to duplication of effort, wide variations in tolerances of enforcement, and several levels of training. The public deserves uniform enforcement at all points within the state on the freeways, the council says.

All known enforcement on tollways and freeways in the United States has been the sole responsibility of the state patrol, with the exception of segments within the limits of large cities.

Lions Club to Promote Sale of Safety Flares

Kaukauna — Plans for a safety flare sale with proceeds earmarked for charitable purposes were outlined at a meeting of the Kaukauna Lions club Tuesday.

The project was undertaken in cooperation with the National Safety council and object is to have flares in the hands of all automobile and truck drivers. Lack of flares around stalled or parked vehicles often cause traffic accidents and sometimes death, remarked Ray Morgan, Lion president.

Flares are universally recognized as a danger signal thus club members will be serving a double purpose by selling the items, indicated Morgan. The flares come three to a box at a reasonable cost.

Pilgrim Fathers Had Problems With First Delinquents, Billington Boys

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When the kids get to kicking and screaming and fighting this Thanksgiving day, think of the poor old Pilgrim fathers.

They came to the new world to get away from it all, only when they got here, they found they had brought it all with them. At least as far as the kids were concerned.

The Mayflower, history shows, was a floating kindergarten, loaded to the gunnels with wailing small fry. Of the 104 passengers aboard, 33 were children. They came in all shapes, psyches and volumes, but none wilder or woollier than the Billington boys, John and Francis.

These two pint-sized Pilgrims — John could not have been more than 7, Francis about 9 — were America's first juvenile delinquents, a constant pain in the neck to the patient, long suffering Pilgrim fathers.

First Frank
With no child guidance book to aid them, the colonists must have been hard pressed to deal with the boisterous Billington brothers.

The Mayflower was still riding at anchor off the tip of Cape Cod, several weeks before the celebrated Plymouth landing, when Francis was accused of nearly blowing the sturdy three-master sky-high.

His prank is recorded in full details in "Mourt's Relation," a journal written by William Bradford and Edward Winslow to attract new settlers to the colony.

"The fifth day (of December, 1620), 'so the journal relates, 'we through God's mercy escaped a great danger by the foolishness of a boy, one Francis of Billington's son, who in his fathers absence had got gun powder and shot off a piece or two and made squibs (pellets), and there being a fowling piece charged in his fathers cabin shot her off in the cabin.

"There being a little barrel of powder half full scattered in and about the cabin, the fire being within four feet of the bed between decks and many flints and iron things about and so many people about the fire. And yet by Gods mercy no harme was done."

In Trouble Again

History fails to record whether righteous anger ignited another fire in the seat of Francis' velveteen breech-

The traditional tranquil picture of proper Pilgrims on the first Thanksgiving promotes the illusion that the Plymouth colony had few social problems. But even those founding fathers sometimes had trouble making junior behave. Here's a footnote to history on America's first recorded pair of juvenile delinquents.

es, but punitive steps, if any, proved ineffective. A month later, Frankie was in dutch again.

By this time the Pilgrims had chosen the little hill overlooking Plymouth harbor for their permanent base. Hands, Mayflower crew included, set to work erecting the 20-foot square common house. Francis went exploring. Three miles inland a hill caught his attention. He shimmied up the tallest tree and had a look around.

Fresh Water Lakes

Such reckless disregard for his own and the colony's safety at a time when Indians were "skulking about" might have drawn the wrath of Capt. Miles Standish, the doughty defense chief, had not Francis returned with valuable information. He reported seeing "a great sea" and led the incredulous John Clark, first mate of the Mayflower, to the spot next day. Cut down to size from a boy's vivid imagination, the sea turned out to be only two fair-sized lakes, but the discovery helped save the colony from starvation. "They are fine fresh water," Gov. Bradford described them in his personal history of the colony, "fulle of fish and fowle. A brooke issues from it. It will be an excellent help in time."

Instead of a licking, Francis got a reward. The larger of the lakes was named "Billington Sea" in his honor and is so known to this day.

"About the latter end of this month (April, 1621)," Bradford wrote, "one John Billington lost himself in the woods and wandered up and downe some five days, living on berries and what he could finde."

Meanwhile, back at the fort, Miles Standish was in his usual towering rage, which was towering indeed for one who stood only 5 feet high. The redoubtable "Captain Shrimpe," as the irreverent called him behind his back, was known to be a "little chimney soon fired."

The Kids Again

The Billingtons, in particular, could always get his bile up. Not just the kids, but the whole family. Only a few weeks before Pappa Billington had given him some lip about standing night guard duty and narrowly escaped punishment.

And now it was the kids again. Swallowing his ire, the captain handpicked 10 men and set out in pursuit of the lost boy. John was located more than 50 miles away among the Cape Cod Indians, who were far from friendly. Upon arrival at Provincetown, Pilgrim hunting parties had ransacked their corn supplies and unknowingly desecrated their burial mounds. There even had been a brief skirmish, arrows against musket balls, with no casualties on either side.

The situation called for diplomacy. Bradford supplied it. His promise to make good on the stolen corn satisfied Chief Aspinet, who handed over the boy, "behung with beads and made his peace with us." Perhaps the chief was glad to get the lad off his hands.

The Billington boys managed to stay out of trouble at the first Thanksgiving feast, or at least they avoided any dishonorable mention in the official counts of that historic day. Later events, however, made up for this concession to conformity.

Hanged for Murder

The Billington name continued to be synonymous with trouble in the old chronicles. John, the younger, died of gangrene poisoning before he was 20, perhaps due to some mischievous accident.

The father, John the elder, was hanged for murder in 1630, the first colonist to be executed. The mother, Elen Billington, sat in the stocks "for slandering Deacon Doane." Francis, who lived to a ripe old age, married a widow with

James River Landing

Others Lay Claim to First Thanksgiving

On Dec. 4, 1619, a tiny ship anchored in what is now the James river in Virginia. De-barking, the ship's 38 passengers knelt in prayer and celebrated the day as one of thanksgiving — possibly the first such observance in the New World.

Two years later the Pilgrims who landed at Plymouth set aside a day for thanksgiving and Massachusetts Bay Colony celebrated a thanksgiving day starting in 1630. In 1683, President Lincoln designated the fourth Thursday in November as America's Thanksgiving day.

The Englishmen who landed at the mouth of the James river in 1619 had sailed from their homeland Sept. 16, 1619, to join the growing colony in Virginia. Their first order had read:

"Impr wee ordaine that the day of our ships arrivall at the place assigned for plantation in the land of Virginia shall be yearly and perpetually kept holy as a day of

Civil War Medal of Honor Found at Lawrence College Fraternity House

BY JAY JOSLYN.
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

In the search for Congressional Medal of Honor medals won during the Civil war, only one awarded a Wisconsin soldier has been found. It is owned by Mrs. Abbie Pond, housemother of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity at Lawrence College.

The national and state Civil War Centennial commissions, with the cooperation of the nation's newspapers, are seeking the medals and descendants of the winners for a memorial service at the Washington, D.C., cathedral, April 18, 1962.

Of the 1,504 medals awarded during the Civil war, 21 came to soldiers who enlisted in Wisconsin.

The Medal of Honor winner, represented in Appleton was a man of many parts who lived each facet of his life to the hilt.

James B. Pond was a printer, a member of John Brown's Kansas raiders, a Civil war hero, a western pioneer, an editor and one of the outstanding showmen of his day.

He is represented here by Mrs. G. E. Buchanan, 1005 E. College avenue, his niece, and Mrs. Abbie Pond, his former daughter-in-law.

Pond was born in Cuba, Allegany county, New York, June 11, 1838. His family migrated to Waukegan, Ill., where his brother George was born, and then in 1847 the family moved to Alto in Fond du Lac county, where Pond became an apprentice printer.

His memoirs reveal his family operated a "station" in the underground railroad, sheltering slaves on their way to freedom. Pond became an active abolitionist.

Beecher's Bible

In 1856 he was working on the famed "Herald of Freedom" newspaper in Lawrence, Kan., when he followed John Brown on his retaliation raids that gave Kansas its name of "Bleeding Kansas."

The printer had substituted his galley stick of a Beecher's Bible, the Sharp's rifle supplied by Eastern abolitionists.

Pond was to have different dealings with the Rev. Henry Beecher later.

His memoirs claim he pioneered in Colorado in 1859 and laid early claim to climbing Pike's Peak.

In 1860 he was editing the Markesan Journal, but he enlisted at Janesville in 1861.

On Oct. 6, 1863, Pond as a lieutenant was in command of two companies of the Third Wisconsin cavalry, reinforcing a company of the Second Kansas Colored volunteers at Baxter Springs, Kan. At full strength a company was 100 men.

In the vicinity was the bad-raider who operated as Col. Quantrill. He had from 600 to 1,000 cavalry troops and knew that Baxter Springs was guarded by the colored company.

Overran Camp

It was dinner time when Quantrill made his attack, getting close enough by sending forward troopers under the Union flag while others attempted to surround the camp through the timbers.

When the attack came the camp was overrun and Pond was caught within Quantrill's ranks. After the first onslaught despite many wounded, Pond's men regrouped and Quantrill was forced to retire.

While the raiders were reforming for an attack, Pond, between the lines and completely exposed, manned and fired a howitzer three times into Quantrill and broke up the attack.

Lt. Col. Charles W. Blair of the 14th Kansas cavalry was commanding an escort for Maj. Gen. James G. Blunt and came upon the engagement to put Quantrill to flight.

Pond was promoted to captain on March 9, 1865, and was discharged as a major on Oct. 11, 1865. He received his medal in 1898.

Brigham Young's Wife

He returned to journalism and started the first "Gentile" newspaper, the "Salt Lake Tribune," in Mormon, Utah, and in 1871 Brigham Young's ninth wife, Anna Eliza, apostatized and toured the nation with Pond as her manager.

The 2-year tour started Pond on his life's work. In 1874 he purchased a Boston lecture bureau and moved it to Union Square, New York City.

Until his death in Jersey City, N. J., on June 22, 1903, he introduced some of the finest personalities of the century to America.

Managed Beecher

His favorite personality was the Rev. Mr. Beecher, whose fiery sermons had induced his followers to send the rifles Pond and Brown and company used in 1856 in Kansas.

Among his famed clients were Mark Twain, George W. Cable, Bill Nye, Lew Wallace, Henry M. Stanley, A. Conan Doyle and Matthew Arnold.

He set a record by paying "Dr. Livingstone, I presume" Stanley $110,000 for 110 lectures.

Members of his family assisted in the bureau, traveling with the personalities, and Pond kept the rest of the family posted with weekly letters.

Son Takes Over

His son, James B., took over management of the bureau after his father's death and increased the stature of the organization until the '30s when he became editor of a theatrical magazine.

His divorced wife, in loaning Maj. Pond's medal to the historical society, also included correspondence from the major's and her former husband's days in the bureau.

Lived in Appleton

The documents, such as letters from Eugene Fields and Mark Twain, will be microfilmed by the society and returned to her. Also included in the documents were wartime diaries and letters.

Pond lived in Appleton for

a time in a house on the site just south of the Delta Tau Delta house and his brother, Orson Willard, Mrs. Buchanan's father, married a Marston girl and resided in Appleton.

The Pond family holds a unique place in the state's Civil war history. It is the only one in Wisconsin, perhaps in the nation, to have two Congressional Medal of Honor winners.

The other winner was George, who was born at Waukegan before the family arrived in Wisconsin.

He enlisted in Fond du Lac county on Dec. 27, 1861. On May 15, 1864, as a private in Company C, Third Wisconsin cavalry, he led a small group of men against 50 guerillas and liberated a group of Union prisoners at Drywood, Kan.

He continued in the army after the war and took part in the Indian wars before settling at Fort Scott, Kan., where he died in 1911.

Military Academy Operator Guilty of Mistreating Cadets

Seattle — The operator of a small suburban military academy is free on a suspended sentence after pleading guilty Tuesday to charges involving mistreatment of cadets.

Justice of the Peace William Hoar gave Thomas H. Hopkins, 60, three months, suspended, on two charges of second degree assault.

The prosecutor had asked a year in jail for Hopkins as punishment for an incident in which a cadet complained he had been kept on bread and water for five days in a guardhouse and hit with a "wagger stick."

A defense motion resulted in dismissal of a third degree assault charge against Mrs. Hopkins, 52. She is principal of the academy.

Hopkins was convicted of contributing to the delinquency and dependency of a minor several weeks ago.

Space Age Factor Seen in Toys for Thinking Children

Rocket Launchers, Chemistry Sets Geared to Events of Present Day

From a rocket auto at $180 to a 2-stage rocket launcher set selling at $10, the space age has taken over a large portion of toys being offered for Christmas sale this year in Fox Cities store.

There are, to be sure, many other fascinating toys of every description, but the space age

Practical Gift Sometimes Can Be Nicest One

Sheets, Blankets For Home Pleases Real Homemakers

The shopper who has a yen for searching out unusual, extra special Christmas presents should always ask the question, "What's wrong with a practical gift?"

The practical may be the answer to pleasing friend or relative, the very best way to say "Merry Christmas."

Every household must have its supply of sheets, pillow cases, blankets, towels, dish cloths and linens. And there's not a real homemaker who doesn't yearn for more of same, especially those of the finest quality, the newest color or style. There never seems to be enough and frequently most veteran housekeepers "make do" with what they have.

Here's where the canny shopper can match the unusual in color, quality and style with a practical gift that will be useful every day of the year.

Matching Sets

There are fine percale white sheets with fitted tops and bottoms; there are pillow cases to match that may be hemstitched or delicately trimmed with handwork to make them a bit more special. There are sheets in pastel colors to match bedroom decor; there are sheets gaily candy striped or even printed with nosegays.

Often a housewife wishes to own colorful bed linens, or sets of luxurious nylon but won't indulge in what she considers a bit too rich for the household budget. Christmas is the perfect time to fulfill this fancy with matching pillow cases to make one of the nicest gifts any homemaker could receive.

Dacron filled comforters with French crepe or percale coverings also make excellent gifts. Many of these feather-light and easy-to-laundry coverlets have dacron-filled pillows to match. They are available in florals, provincial prints and other all-over designs. One type seen in a Fox Cities store is printed percale on one side and a one-toned corduroy on the other.

Lightweight but Warm

Another recent newcomer in bed covers is the 100 per cent Acrilan blanket, fleecily napped and edged in matching wide nylon binding. These blankets wash readily, are guaranteed against shrinkage and are mothproof. Their colors are beautiful—buttercup yellow, petal pink, soft blue, spring green and several tones of beige.

Besides their comfort, these blankets are mildew resistant.

Another welcome gift is the electric blanket in twin, double or king size. Shrink-proof, moth-proof and warmth controlled, they are available in several shades, both in plain colors and printed patterns.

Gift towels come in every size, shade and design from colorfully-printed huck or terry kitchen towels to oversized bath towels. Many of the new bathroom sets have metallic thread trim along the borders of the towels to make handsome combinations in matching bath, hand and finger towels and wash cloths.

Sentimental File Helps Yule Shopper

Here is a tip for those busy mothers who find it difficult to recall all the friends and relatives who must be remembered at Christmas. Keep a "sentimental file," with a card for each person bearing pertinent information such as clothing sizes, favorite colors, hobbies, and gifts given in previous years. A note of the date of birth of younger additions is particularly useful. All these reduce the effort of thinking up gifts, and, of course, come in handy at birthdays, anniversaries and other special occasions.

Making Christmas Decorations can be a lot of fun. Here Mrs. Charles Eggenberger, left, 1735 N. Elinor street, and Mrs. Walter Meyer, 1336 W. Grant street, work at a Lincoln school PTA art workshop. Various Christmas displays not available anywhere else were made and sold.

Gracious Gift One Remembered After Day of Giving Is Forgotten

The most gracious gift, a wise man said, is the gift that will be remembered long after the day of giving is forgotten.

From the most thoughtful husbands, this Christmas, to the most thankful wives will go the most wanted gifts of all — a major electric appliance.

And what will you be giving her if such a major appliance is on your shopping list? For one thing she'll receive a beautifully engineered piece of furniture which will add a touch of elegance and luxury to even the most modern of homes.

More Important

But, possibly more important still, you'll be giving her leisure.

Whatever the appliance — a range, refrigerator, washer, dryer, ironer or sewing machine — it will mean so much to her — freedom from household drudgery, fewer steps to take, less work to do, more time to enjoy more fun with you and the children.

What about these appliances? Ranges: Electric ranges on the market this holiday season offer the ultimate in beauty and cooking convenience. Automation is more evident than ever in these new units.

Fox Cities Prepare Colorful Christmas

Special Store Hours, Decorations Arranged For Big Holiday Rush

With the scent of roasting turkey and pumpkin pie scarcely out of the Fox Cities air, Friday will herald the start of Christmas, 1959.

Stores will begin their month-long promotional effort and the bright lights of Christmas decorations will twinkle in the four cities and three villages.

Counting Friday, there are 24 shopping days left until St. Nick makes his annual visit, for which store owners are especially prepared with gifts to fit every budget. Merchants have added salesmen to take care of the expected rush.

Higher Sales

Merchants anticipate higher sales than ever this year, as they always seem to in the prosperous Fox River valley. Last year's slight recession didn't touch the Fox Cities and it is doubtful whether the steel strike will have the same effect here it has had in other parts of the country, merchants say.

Here is what shoppers can expect in each of the Fox Cities this year:

Appleton

Christmas decorations in downtown Appleton already are going up, including the same sort of motifs followed the last few years. Santa Claus, trees, red boots, lanterns, Japanese firefish and several new kladescoopes will hang from posts on College avenue.

At College avenue and Oneida street, there will be two large noel candles and two reindeer.

College avenue poles also will have Christmas lights and balls festooning them, along with a few round wreaths.

Downtown store shopping hours are: Open Monday nights (most stores) until 9 p.m.; open each Thursday and Friday until Christmas, and Dec. 22 and 23. Buses will run for shoppers' convenience.

Neenah-Menasha

Thanksgiving evening, Twin Cities merchants and the chamber of commerce will turn on downtown displays, extending from Menasha's post office to Neenah's post office.

Menasha again will have large lighted trees distributed in each ward and at both ends of the business district and at the square. Spruce trees, lighted in various colors, will extend from each lamp post on the busiest streets in the city.

Neenah is adding Christmas overhead lighting decorations in its S. Commercial street business section as well as along Main street and in the downtown shopping center.

The lighted plastic units again will greet shoppers. Lighted spruce trees also will jut out from the ornamental light poles.

Santa Claus will arrive aboard the Neenah firemen's float Friday and will tour both Neenah and Menasha that evening. He will be in the business districts on the nights the stores are open — Mondays and Fridays for Neenah and Wednesdays and Fridays for Menasha.

Stores will remain open each evening from Dec. 17 to 23.

Chamber of Commerce is making available 6-foot Christmas trees in stands for members to place either inside or in front of their stores. Some stores are using the outside flower boxes and those on the light poles for Christmas decoration.

Kaukauna

Kaukauna will be decorated as it was last year, with downtown poles sporting greens and lights. There also will be a municipal Christmas tree.

Stores will be open the last three nights before Christmas and each Thursday and Friday in December. They will be closed the day after Christmas and the day after New Year's day. Some stores will be open Monday nights during December.

Kimberly

The usual downtown decorations will festoon Kimberly's main streets, and some of the old trimmings have been replaced this year.

Kimberly food stores and the hardware store will be open the last three nights before Christmas. The toy store will be open every night in December.

Little Chute

Little Chute, too, will use the same decoration theme it used the last few years. The businessmen's association, however, plans to add a few streamers. Stores will be open until 9 p.m. Dec. 7, 10, 11, 14, 17, 18, 21, 22 and 23. They will close at 5 p.m. Christmas eve.

Demand for Service Backfires on Thief

Milwaukee — When Llewellyn Culbert discovered the record player he gave his wife for her birthday was not in working condition, he hastily demanded that a department store service department repair the machine.

Repairs were made, but the only trouble, according to police, was that Culbert had stolen the machine from the store.

He was found guilty of theft.

Lavish Perfume Displays Await Fox Cities Shoppers; Scents and Containers Varied

BY KATHLEEN REARDON

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Looking lovely is not enough for the truly discriminating woman—to be unforgettable she must move in an aura of fragrance, leaving a haunting memory in her wake.

The taste for luxury appears in a woman almost as soon as her eyes focus. Thus, a new season's fragrance gift for any woman on your Christmas list. A perfume makes a woman known as the flower of her species and the Fox Cities shops are lavish in their Christmas perfume display.

There are six basic scents from which to choose: floral bouquet, woody, modern blend, spicy, oriental and single floral.

In choosing a particular perfume as a gift, have the person in mind. If a close friend and you know her taste, try to get her favorite fragrance. If a casual acquaintance, keep the perfume as casual and select a popular choice befitting to her mood.

New scents especially popular for a season's giving are many. A subtle, tasty blend of roses and jasmine excites the after-five costume. A breezy and casual perfume also ranks in prominence, and a tropical flower fragrance with a provocative air is perfect for the holiday season.

There are many new types of containers, elegant in Christmas splendor, from which to choose. Increasing in popularity is the spray cologne. The spray device solves the problem or decision of how much cologne to use. The metered device regulates and measures exactly the right amount of mist to use along with the perfume.

This spray control eliminates wasteful dripping and makes it possible to get many applications from the attractive bottles.

Handy purse cases also are welcome gifts. Just a size larger than a lipstick, it creates a portable perfume wardrobe, purse-size.

Lavish Packaging, of course, along with the perfume make attractive and beautiful atomizers and bottles which make fashionable Yuletide gifts. Smoked and clouded glass, china bottles with floral designs and clear cut glass bottles complement the fashionable dressing table. Replacing the bulb type atomizers are handy plunger types which do not perid with constant use.

Combined perfume and cologne gift sets come in lavish packages which are keyed to the Yule trade. Attractive sets are gift wrapped with dazzling jewels and flowers which will make them a shame to open.

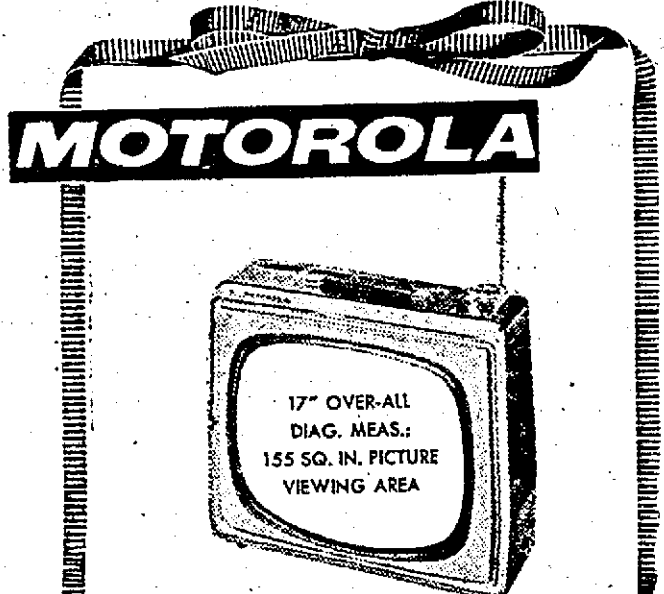

Another handsome gift is the chic lipstick and matching polish kit which comes in a variety of attractive and bright holders. There are many new shades of lipstick and polish this season, with the accent seemingly on the bright and ruby red, shaded or touched with gold.

A gold filled compact, lipstick and lipstick refill, in matching ornamentation is a pretty due for any feminine member of your gift list.

Manicure sets in leather cases are practical to receive, especially for the teenager who must begin to take an interest in keeping her nails properly trimmed and shaped.

Bath powder in elegant cosme-tuning: fur tops, bejeweled boxes and velvet coverings is a handy small gift to tuck in the Christmas stocking and which will be appreciated come the joyous day.

All Best Loved Symbols of Christmas Abound in Season's Holiday Greetings

Cards Take to Glitter, Color, Artistic Motifs

It's bound to be an unusually happy and joyful Christmas if the season's new holiday cards are any criterion. There seems to be an endless array of all the well loved Christmas symbols portrayed in many new and exciting ways.

It's going to be a sparkly Christmas! Creative designers have gone all out for twinkling, eye-catching effects that give many Christmas cards added sparkle and eye appeal. Call it glitter, sequins, shiny snowflakes, or whatever, all sorts of tinselly embellishments will do their dazzling best to make Christmas 1959 a beautiful one.

It's also going to be a gold and silver Christmas. Hundreds of new card designs take on the added luster of glowing metallic colors, either as borders to frame colorful illustrations or as handsome background or lettering. Frames of deeply embossed filigree gold set off beautiful sprays of holly, poinsettia or pine cones. The new gold and silver cards come in all sizes and shapes and literally sing out their "Merry Christmas" messages.

Madonna Popular For Christmas, 1959, the Madonna, as always, is the most popular religious subject for cards. Next come the three wise men, the Christ child, the shepherds, Mary and Joseph at the manger and artistic portrayals of colorful church windows, angels and cherubs. Many of these beautiful religious cards reflect the rich traditions of classical art, while others portray a modern conception of the age-old story of Christmas, and all that it signifies.

Folk art in strikingly colorful designs and specially created artists' cards also may be found for those who enjoy sending greetings with hand-crafted or artistic look.

Jolly St. Nick Santa Claus — once the exclusive property of children — has long since come into his own as a major Christmas symbol of happiness and good will. There is no task that Santa can't undertake as he's followed around in Christmas card displays. He seems equally at ease riding a bicycle, a rocket or relaxing in an old-fashioned rocker.

It's going to be a big year, too, for cards that say "Merry Christmas" or "Season's Greetings" with bold, eye-catching lettering often done in gold, silver or red. Often the pretty French "Noel" provides the message and decorative appeals on these popular cards.

There's greater variety than ever before of lovely floral designs appropriate for the season — holly and poinsettia, Christmas trees, wreaths and mistletoe. Colorful winter scenes also come in for their share of conveying Christmas wishes. Little towns nestle in snow filled valleys, sleigh bells seem to tinkle and chimneys ring out from distant church steeples.

Exciting designs depict Christmas tree ornaments, candles and bells, snowmen and glowing lanterns. Lighted windows and doorways, musical motifs, stockings and candy canes are all popular card designs.

Special Greetings There are many special Christmas cards intended for a thoughtful remembrance — cards that say "From Our House to Your House," or "To All of You From All of Us." There are special cards to send to the minister, doctor, mailman, newsboy and milkman, and even one that says "Merry Christmas to Our Baby Sitter!"

Special cards are available for family greetings, for aunts, cousins, grandparents and all variations of young fry. Some are de-Christmas," others are redesigned for "baby's first good wishes to newlyweds in the family."

One "out of this world" Christmas card for "a good little boy" includes a toy from Santa's scientific workshop. Another is a treasure hunt, complete with hidden spaces (but not too well hidden) for 10 shiny dimes.

There seems to be a card for every purpose and every person this year with one thing in common — a truly joyous wish for a happy yuletide.

Breakfast, Lunch — Mix or Match 'Em

Boonton, N.J. — Tired of cereals, bacon and eggs or pancakes for breakfast? Yearning for something new, something different?

Robert H. Cummings, editor of the Northern District Health quarterly, has the answer.

Eat stew, he says, or soup with a cheeseburger, or even fruit salad with cottage cheese.

Cummings mourns breakfast as "the most slighted meal in America," and says, if you're losing interest in the same old thing — change.

Disorder in Court

Flagstaff, Ariz. — Charles T. John, 40, just didn't know when he was well off. John was in court to face a charge of disturbing the peace. While waiting for his case to be called, he got into an argument with his wife, Zonie. John settled the argument by slugging his wife on the jaw. Police and court officials separated the two men in America," and says, and then held John on a more serious charge of aggravated assault.

More Bright and Beautiful than ever, Christmas cards this year features glitter, touches of rich gold or silver, artistic and religious interpretations of the holiday season. Santa Claus is as popular a motif as ever for wishing a Merry Christmas, but so are beguiling angels and appealing figures of children. There are many lovely madonna cards, the most popular of the religious greetings, and a wide variety of such subjects as the Three Wise Men and the manger scene. There are cards with original art work especially designed by modern artists for this season and there are those that are handsome copies of older works, such as the famous Currier and Ives winter scenes.

Holiday Idea

Christmas Cards Make Handsome Decorations

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Christmas cards soon to be received by the dozens can be the keys to a host of exciting decorating suggestions around house or apartment.

Certainly these messengers of good cheer from friends and loved ones deserve a better fate than to be stored in a box or tossed on desk or table.

By planning ahead a bit, it's surprisingly easy to create a real holiday-at-home atmosphere with colorful Christmas cards and a few accessories.

Christmas cards right on the front door, for example, may sound strange at first. Yet nothing arouses the spirit of Christmas better than a warm-hearted welcome when visitors drop in for a holiday visit.

Christmas 'Hello' Imagine their surprise and delight to find cheery Christmas cards peeking at them from a holly wreath lodged on the door. If the front door is protected from weather, a big red ribbon bow with several streamers suspended from it is attractive. Little twiglets of evergreen may be tucked around the bow and Christmas cards pinned to the streamers as fast as they arrive.

This use of wide ribbon for cards is both an easy and versatile way to display greetings. Here are a few examples of how streamers with cards pinned securely to them may be adapted to the home.

The ribbons may be hung against a wall, suspended from the molding; they may be hung along a stairway or along the inner stairwell to make a pretty picture in stair-step pattern.

They can brighten a kitchen or breakfast room area on bulletin board or screen. They may be affixed in yuletide design against a dining room dado or suspended from a mantel.

If space is strictly limited, the simplest (and always effective) method of displaying cards is to pin the ribbons of greetings on curtains or draperies.

An effective display can be made by using a folding floor screen. Cover the screen with inexpensive red or green cloth, or alternately with both colors. The cloth may be stapled onto the screen. Then use colored thumb tacks to attach as many Christmas cards as the screen will hold. Cards look handsome when taped to a mirror as a frame, or hung across windows for passersby to see. This device serves as an attractive window decoration. They can become a part of other decorations, particularly on mantel or table. Bright cards give an added holiday look to fireplace mantel in traditional yuletide warmth and color. Place red or green candles at either end of the mantel, set a miniature manger scene in the center, then us the most beautiful of Christmas cards as decorations to fill in the intervening spaces.

Pure Silk Lounging Pajamas, Imported From Japan, Can be Glamorous, Practical as Well

Is she the tailored type or does she really long to be glamorous and feminine? There are many styles of at-home clothes on display that any woman would be flattered to find under the tree, even though she might never dream of buying them for herself.

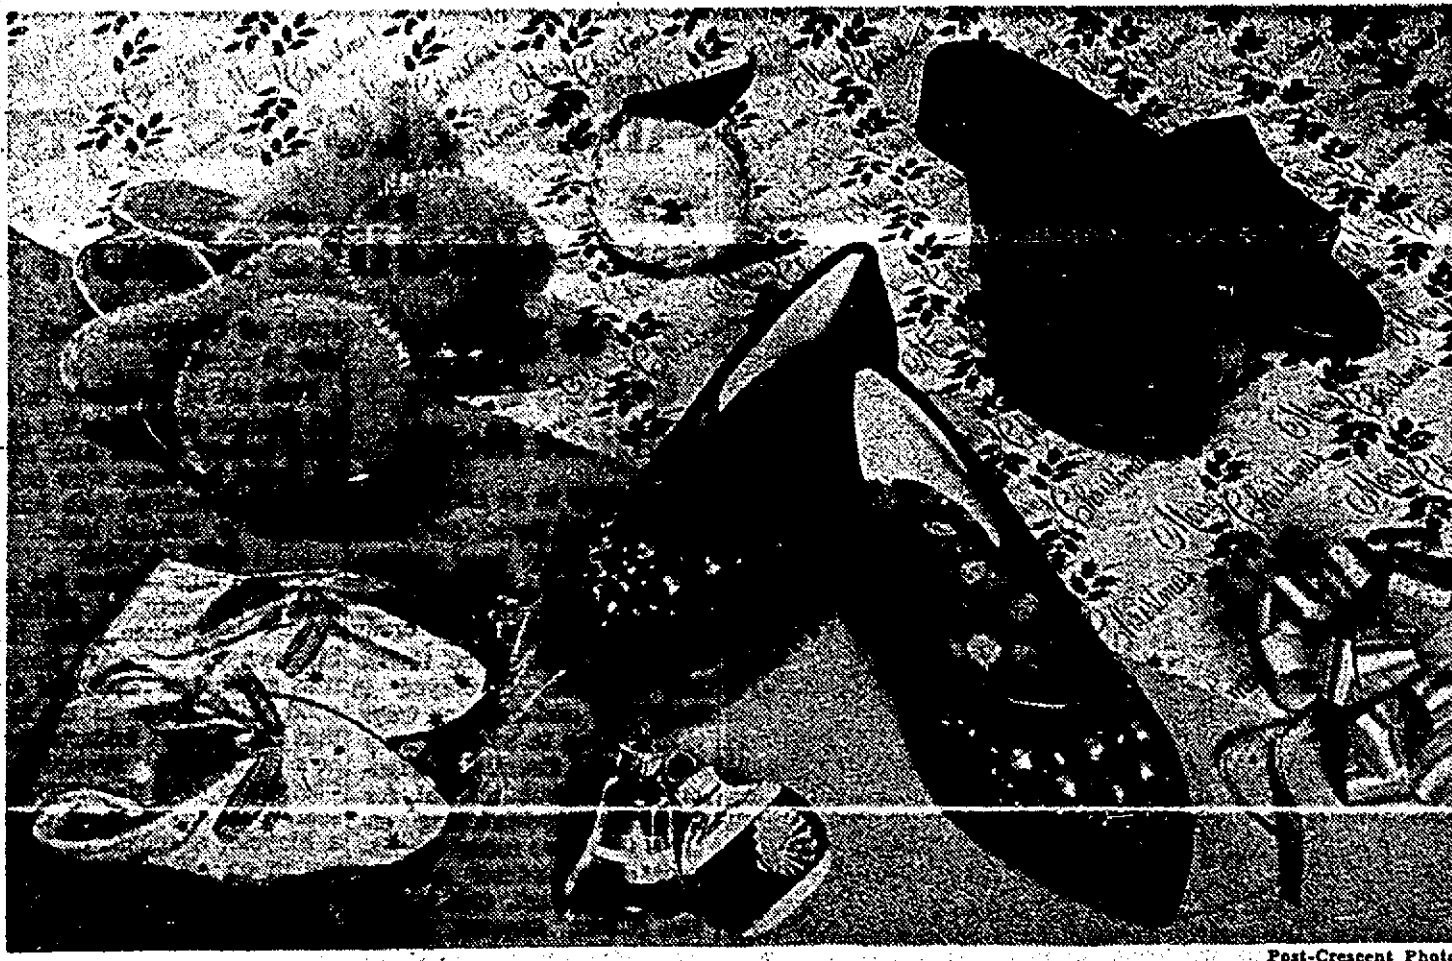

Pure silk lounging pajamas, imported from Japan, with a crimson jacket and beige trousers, are a glamorous as well as practical addition to any feminine wardrobe. The jacket can be worn with cocktail dresses as well, and the trousers with elegant blouses or cashmere sweaters. They can be in other color combinations and would make the television viewer at least as intriguing as any picture on the screen. For the woman who is a good cook, but doesn't want to look like one, there are lounging pajamas in delectable colors, with such wide trousers that they look like formal dinner dresses. There are white nylon peignoirs, trimmed with lace and tied with pale blue satin ribbons, with nightgowns to match.

Robes

The pocket of a tailored robe serves as its own case for a tie silk tailored robe that folds completely. A zipper to close the package is concealed in the side of the pocket. There are challis robes with matching gowns, and long sleeved satin, dacron and cotton robes in prints, plaids and solid colors.

Brunch coats and dusters come in all fabrics, quilted, corduroy and brocade. Seeing the family off for the day in one of these would make any husband look forward to returning to the fireside. And of course the ever practical terry cloth can be had in colors and plaids this year. For the gal who reads, in

Non-Support Counts Held Open by Court

Two cases in which wives had charged their husbands with failing to support them have been adjourned from workweek to week in municipal court. Dale Seager, 21, of 1023 W. Commercial street, was ordered to keep the peace with his wife, Janice, and to obtain a $1,000 bond after the court was told the man was ill. He was charged by his wife, Adeline, 1913 E. Newberry street.

Teacher Fears He May Have Been Blackballed

Croton Falls, N.Y. — Ousted schoolteacher James R. Worley gratefully acknowledged expressions of public sympathy, Wednesday, but voiced fear he has been blackballed in his profession.

Worley was dismissed from his post as teacher and chairman of the English department at Fox Lane High school in nearby Mount Kisco. He was charged with insubordination in refusing to submit detailed written plans for his classwork two weeks in advance.

Such extensive planning stifles imaginative teaching, he contended. Teachers in Nassau county, also in the New York City metropolitan area, offered to provide him with a lawyer and two parents of Fox Lane school asked him to tutor their children. But as to his professional future, Worley said: "The administrators in other districts may offer me a new job. I hope they are waiting in the wings, but so far the wings don't seem crowded. The hierarchy of administrators in education is very close, and perhaps have been blackballed."

Needs Nickname, Candidate Says

Portland, Ore. — "Nobody knows me," said A. J. Nahorney, "without my nickname."

And, he said, it was a bitter blow when the Sailors Union of the Pacific ruled that nicknames could not be used on union election ballots.

Nahorney, 38, ran last year for the office of secretary-treasurer, hoping to unseat Morris Weisberger of San Francisco. Almost nobody voted for him, he said, because they didn't know who he was.

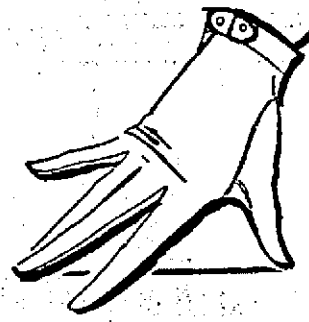

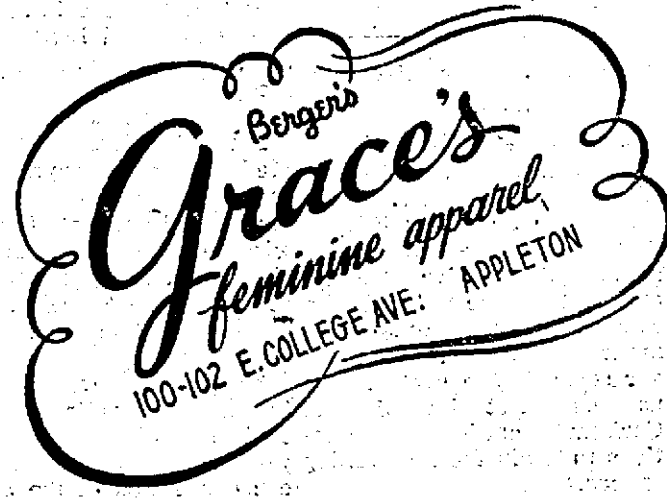

"I'm a rank and filer who is tired of being pushed around," he said in explaining why he went to court and put his nickname into his legal name.

So this year against Weisberger on the SUP ballot in the 2-month voting period opening Dec. 1 is the name he is certain all will know: A. J. "Pack-Rat" Nahorney.

These Days

Writer Backs Previous Stand on Responsibility for TV Rigging

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
New York — It is always fascinating to get the other fellow's point of view and I got it plentifully in the case of Charles Van Doren. Let's see, he poured in the gist of the letters is that I had written an absolving Van Doren of all sins, misdemeanors, felonies, etc., and that therefore, I, too, am wicked. Occasionally, one recalled that I had written that I thought the punishment should fit the crime and that the punishment should include all who are guilty of a vile hoax.

Most who wrote disagreed with me. But the reasons for disagreeing were varied. They ran in two schools:

One, that Van Doren is guilty of perjury.
Two, as he is more educated than the managers of his network, the heads of the sponsoring companies and the advertising agencies, he is more guilty than the others.

Presentment Kept Secret
Regarding point one, neither my readers nor I know anything about the alleged perjury. A grand jury handed down a presentment. Judge Mitchell D. Schweitzer took the unusual and not understandable step of suppressing the presentment. It was not made public and to this day exactly what was said is a well-kept secret. That presentment should be made public or Judge Schweitzer should give a satisfactory explanation for its suppression.

There was no indictment of any kind. The district attorney of New York county has not prosecuted Charles Van Doren for perjury. It is therefore incorrect to accuse Charles Van Doren of perjury because the misdemeanor has not been established in a court of law before a jury of his peers.

Perjury is the "wilful and corrupt taking of a false oath with regard to a material matter in a judicial proceeding." In some states, all false swearing is perjury. How-

Library to Close Dec. 26 Board Also Hears Mayor's Letter on Payment of Bills

The Appleton public library will be closed Saturday, Dec. 26, the library board has decided.

The board also heard a report on an employment survey conducted in Appleton by the state employment service recommending increases in personnel at the library for certain jobs. The board asked the report be reviewed by the finance and personnel committees to study qualifications set up in determining requirements for various types of work.

Mayor Clarence A. Mitchell wrote to outline an opinion by Don L. Jury, city attorney, that all city board members must certify bills for payments. The library board does not meet in the summer and three members have been delegated to authorize payment of bills, then audited by the board in the fall.

Board members said they felt approving bills was a formality and the law says members must approve, but does not specify how many members must approve.

The board also made arrangements for the library board and staff social meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 7 Miss Patricia Ewen, Neenah, youth librarian, and Mrs. John Stevens, board member, will be in charge.

ever, under our system of jurisprudence no man is guilty of an offense unless and until he is proved to be so by due process of the law.

Who Really Cheated?
Point two, there can no longer be any question but that there has been considerable cheating on the television quiz programs. That has been established beyond doubt.

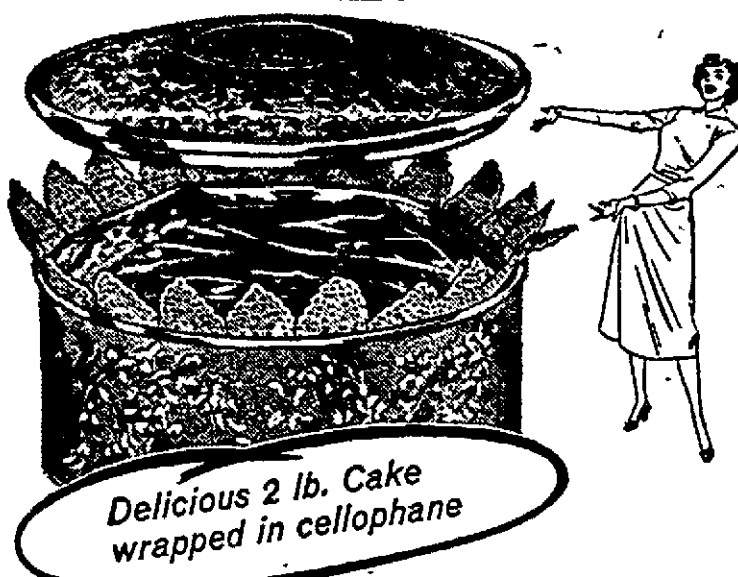

Who is really responsible? Who benefitted most by the cheating? The questions have not been answered and probably never will be, because it is always someone down the line who is hired to take the blame.

Too many men now proclaim their innocence of a hoax that was general in the business. It is impossible, unbelievable, they did not know what was happening in properties worth millions of dollars. It is unbelievable men occupying such positions, who must know their way around, did not know what other men were doing with their money and their property to say nothing of their sacred honor. I wrote and still maintain public opinion has been too rough on Charles Van Doren and too lenient on all the other persons involved in this hoax.

Crooked is crooked and foul is foul. But the giver is as bad as the taker; the hirer for a murderer is as evil as the murderer. Before these investigations are over, television will undoubtedly become lye pure for a while until tricky minds find another gimmick to amuse those who like to watch television who nit is interesting and exciting. The public may tire of westerns and murders and television will have to come up with something, it already having failed at humor.

I wonder how many of those who want Charles Van Doren to be stoned, cheat about their income taxes. It would be interesting to know.

From the Two Newest States in the union come the sarong clad Hawaiian girl with leis, sandals and surf board and the warmly bundled Alaskan in furry parka and snow boots. The two dolls are part of an internationally flavored collection designed by one manufacturer. Other dolls in the series are a black-haired Madam Butterfly from Japan, a Scandinavian miss, girls from the Netherlands and British Isles.

International, Beatnik, Girl Scout Dolls Appear Life-Like

BY PATRICIA SCHULTZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"I've been trained to pose with poise and grace; As I stand erect, you can tilt my face; I'm so proud of my hair, you can wash and comb; Please make me happy and take me home."

This jingle, describing one of the "almost as large as life" playmates of little girls, might be applied to the majority of dolls in the current Christmas collection.

The new dolls, manipulated by their owner-companions, appear more life-like than ever before. They twist and turn, smile and cry, sit and stand, kneel and walk. Their hair, as well as hands and faces, can be washed and dried.

"I'm a flirty, roving-eyed pixie, sassy freckle-faced show-off, frantic - antic tomboy," boasts the tag dangling from the finger of a green-eyed, orange-haired beatnik. The gal from endsville is costumed in green slacks, striped over-b blouse, yellow sandals and glittery framed sunglasses.

The same freckle-faced lass, minus the coffee house garb, comes with red and white striped leotard and shirt and navy blue jumper. A brimmed straw hat, bound with red ribbon, tops her carrot-colored coiffure. A smaller sized version of the same doll is an imp in provincial print skirt, beige suede vest and velvet-trimmed hat.

International International flavor is reflected in the series of dolls designed by one manufacturer. A petite Japanese doll with obi sashed kimono and hibiscus blossoms in her hair, a Scandinavian lass with long bobbing blond braids, a white bonneted Dutch girl and a British miss are included in the colorful collection.

The familiar green uniform and beret hat of the Girl Scout ender slacks, cowboy hat and pink checked blouse; a smart skirt, blouse and hat for shopping, a yellow oil-skin for rainy afternoons; and a green satin and net ball-gown.

Novelty Dolls

One of the novelty dolls is a funny faced little man called "Perthy." A slight pressure on his head causes his blond locks to rise in the air. A clown doll, Raggedy Ann and Andy and a wise beyond years "Eloise" are seen in Fox Cities stores.

A party kit features festive frocks for the doll as well as party invitations for her mistress. The doll, of course, will be hostess.

Nebraska Navy Now Insured Against All Sorts of Disasters

Lincoln, Neb. —(AP)—

Nebraska's mythical navy, manned by nothing but admirals, is now insured against sinking, collusion, fallout, icebergs and stray whales.

The insurance policy, 2 by 4 feet, was presented to Gov. Ralph Brooks by the Nebraska insurance industry.

Governors have been presenting admiral commissions to officials, friends, distinguished visitors and local heroes for the last 28 years.

the toys, a glamour kit for the moppet has a fake mink stole, pearl necklace, diamond ring and orchid, so the young miss may be elegantly dressed for "a doll's world."

Include Warm Blanket Among Yule Presents

Electric Bedding Available in Wide Range of Colors

The old timers have been predicting a long, cold winter since way back last August, so warm blankets will be a welcome gift under the Christmas tree.

For the June bride who has found her hope chest didn't contain quite enough for the cold Wisconsin winters; for the housewife whose family has increased, this is a good time to add to the bedding supply.

Electric blankets can be had from $15 up, and come with the guarantee of the maker for years of service. There is a wide range of colors to match any bedroom decor, with single and dual heat controls for double bed blankets.

Conserve Space

Electric blankets have the added advantage of conserving on storage space. Only one blanket is needed for each bed, so when spring comes it can be disconnected and left on the bed for cool summer nights.

There are rayon, orlon, dacron and 100 per cent wool blankets in all colors—delicate pastels, lush, deep crimson, emeralds and blues, plaids, stripes and calico prints.

Cotton and flannel blankets for summer have pastel or white backgrounds with flowers gaily strewn here and there. These are very decorative folded at the foot of the bed for an extra blanket, and can be washed without extra precautions.

Comforters are light and extra warm in the new materials, and can be used to accent the color in draperies or carpeting.

Today's blankets can contribute to the color scheme and give someone a warmer, merrier Christmas.

Ties, Socks Always Appreciated Gift

Designers Come Out With 'Something New' Each Year to Give Variety for Shoppers

BY JAMES HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Ties and socks as yule gifts for the man on your list seem to be "ordinary" presents but nevertheless are always appreciated because of their usefulness.

Each year designers come out with something new, giving the shopper a variety from which to make selections.

Having the most effect on your choice will be age of the recipient. Teen-agers and young men have a special taste for things "in style," while the older man tends to be more conservative.

In picking a tie for a young man it may be best to question the clerk about what is most popular. Young men are particular and in most cases will wear a tie only when they have to. If it resembles one the other fellows are wearing it isn't quite so bad.

There are the ordinary long ties, bow ties and "shoe-strings." The latter are a short rope like affair usually worn with a buttoned sport shirt.

Long ties come in various styles. Some have tapered ends and some are cut square.

Some are wide and others narrow. A narrow tie may be better than a wider one for a man with a thin physique. The heavy set man probably will prefer a wide tie.

Bow ties must suit the individual's taste. Some men will wear nothing else, others will never put their hands on a bow tie. It is best to question a relative, if possible, to making a purchase.

Many ties are given as humorous Christmas gifts to friends. These include bow ties that light up, ties with special designs or ties in outlandish loud colors or mixtures of colors.

The selection in socks probably will depend on the use intended. There are socks for everyday dress, those for use in athletics and the heavy type used for outdoor activity.

Socks, like ties, come in a variety of designs and material. Younger men usually like brighter colors, while older men may prefer plain and solid colors.

For the high school or college athlete, white sweat socks are popular. Many wear them for everyday and can use several pair.

The Wonder Of Christmas

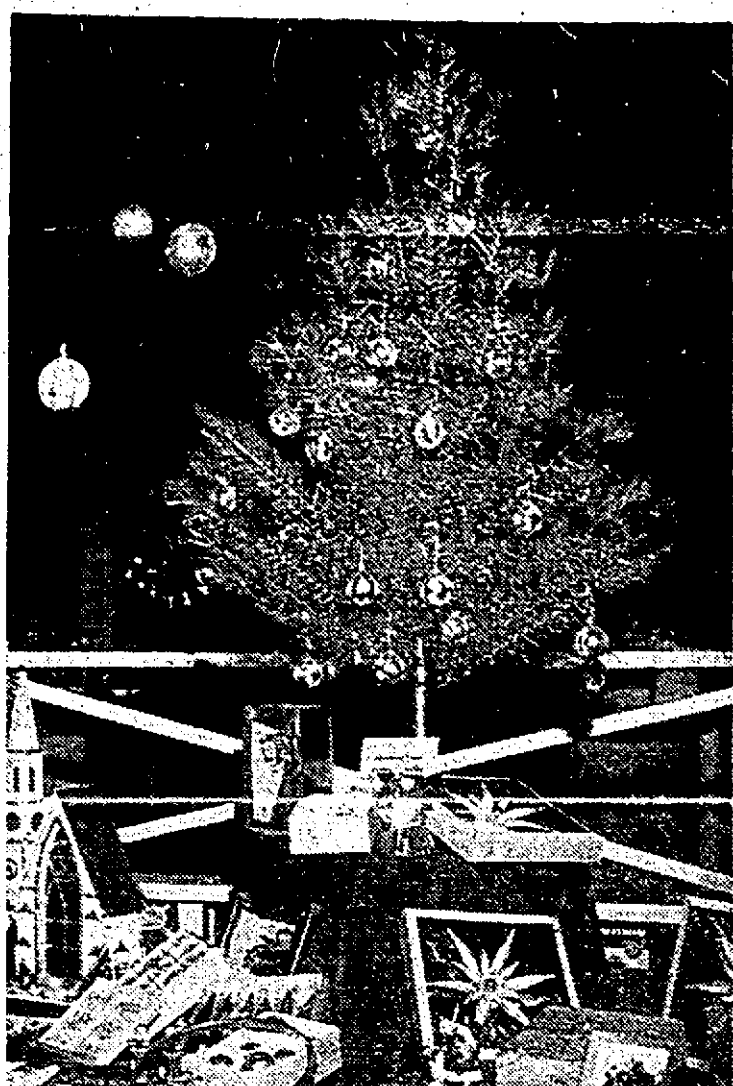

Look into the faces-of-the youngsters. Mirrored there are the joy, surprise, hope, prayer and faith of nearly 2,000 years of believing.

Whether Christmas means to you the candy cane, ancient carols, towering tree or pealing bell in a lofty church tower, Christmas for all of us is neatly tied in the package called "Childhood."

That's why Christmas, like the children who love it so, is wonderful!

Appleton Post-Crescent

One of the New lightweight aluminum trees on the market this year dominates this collection of Christmas decorations. The shiny boughs may be taken down after the holidays and the tree stored away in a slender tube not much larger than an oversized umbrella. Other decorations include a miniature church, an illuminated poinsettia and various trimmings for tree and the home.

Expect Retailers to Top '58 Sales Record

Purchaser Predicts 4 to 4½ Per Cent Buying Increase

New York — Retailers will top the record sales of the 1958 Christmas selling season by approximately 4 to 4½ per cent this year, it is predicted by Milton J. Greenebaum, president of Kirby, Block and company, one of the nation's leading resident buying offices.

Greenebaum noted that "originally we had anticipated an increase of approximately 6 per cent as compared to the 1958 Christmas season."

However, because of the extended duration of the steel strike and other contributing factors, such as unseasonably warm fall weather in various parts of the country, "we have revised our percentage thinking downward somewhat."

Regionally, Greenebaum contends that stores on the west coast and in the southwest should show the best volume performance during the entire fall selling period, including the November-December Christmas season.

Sales Increase

He based this regional observation on the fact that in the southern part of the country "where they always have a warm fall season, sales are continuing to increase and we are getting reorders on fall coats and on all types of articles."

This has not been true in and around New York and in some other parts of the country, notably the east and middle west. He said that the unseasonably warm weather in these parts of the nation re- on the part of the consumer in purchasing fall coats and other heavy merchandise for wear in the fall season.

But while the northern customers has been waiting, the southern consumer is buying in substantial quantities, he noted, with a marked preference for better quality merchandise. Greenebaum feels incidentally, that the consumer throughout the nation will continue to show increasing interest in quality goods.

It's going to be a big Christmas season for toys, he remarked, probably the biggest ever, and a banner period for the sale of all forms of children's wear.

Looking further ahead, to 1960, the Kirby Block president says it will be "a good retail year."

Conditions Good

"Economic conditions continue to be good, and barring unforeseen difficulties such as a wave of strikes in various industries, the disposable income should remain high, as well as total employment," he said, adding: "There is no reason to feel anything but optimistic for 1960. It is too early to predict any approximate percentage increase, but after the Christmas results we will be able to hazard a more precise prediction."

He said the best barometer that retailing has is the automobile industry, "an industry which affects more segments of the entire nation's business community than any other."

"There is every reason to believe the auto industry will do well, and if this proves correct, the entire industrial picture of the country for 1960 should be good," Greenebaum concluded.

Setting Christmas Day

In the fourth century, Dec. 25 was set aside by the church as the official day of Christ's birth. In some of the Eastern branches of the church, Jan. 6 is still celebrated as the great holiday.

Fire Chief Issues Annual Warnings

Recalls Tragic Kaukauna Blaze, Hopes for No Loss of Life Ahead

The tragedy of the Kaukauna fire which last year snuffed out the lives of six children hung heavy on Fire Chief Paul Neumann as he readied his annual fire hazards warning for the Christmas season.

"We've never lost a child through fire since I've been on the fire department. Never one in the city's history as far as I know. I sincerely hope there will be none this year," said Neumann.

The cardinal rule for parents, he said, is: "Don't rely on Lady Luck in place of a good baby-sitter." Children left alone at home would be trapped and helpless if fire or some emergency should strike, Neumann warned.

Never Leave Alone
"Never leave your children alone, not even for a few minutes," the chief urged. "A study by the National Fire Protective association shows that one out of every three child victims was alone and helpless when the fire struck."

Neumann also pleaded with parents to take these precautions to protect their children from fire at home and at play:

1. Be sure that baby sitters have specific instructions in case of fire. These include orders to get the children outside the instant smoke or gas is detected, the location of at least two escape routes, and how to get in touch with the fire department, parents, doctor, and police.

2. Keep young children — two and under — in constant sight, and mind.

Teach Respect

3. Teach older children how to use and respect fire. Don't forget: They learn best by your example.

4. Keep your home free of fire hazards by regular inspections. The fire department will help in this.

5. Train children of all ages how to get out of the house to safety in case of fire. Have at least two escape routes from every room, and be sure the youngsters know these routes by heart.

Every year, from a few days before Christmas to a few weeks after New Year's, a plague of fires rages up and down the country. Many are the result of hazards which exist only during the holiday season; of carelessness that would not be tolerated at any other time.

Handy Rules
Neumann describes the scene thus:

"A thousand Christmas trees burn in as many homes, each year. Hundreds of fires start from Christmas lighting. Flammable decorations threaten dwellings, clubs and stores. Discarded wrappings increase the number of rubbish fires."

These are some of the handy rules which the chief advises to householders:
Christmas trees should be kept in the house only from about a week before Christmas until a few days after New Year's.

Keep Tree in Water
"Cut off the base about an inch above the original cut, and keep the tree standing in water all the time it's in the house. Be sure to keep the water level up."

Keep the tree away from radiators, stoves and all other sources of heat. When you smoke, keep away from the tree. Secure the tree with wires. Keep it out of the path of fire escape routes from the room.

"It's important," says Neumann, "that Christmas lights are in good condition. A short circuit in worn wiring might be sufficient to start the tree burning. Sets bearing the label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., have been tested for fire hazards and pronounced safe by experts."

Fuses

If fuses are of proper rating, too many lights from one set of outlets will blow them. If this happens, Neumann advises elimination of some lights and replacement of the fuse with one of the same size and rating. An overloaded circuit is extremely dangerous, for fire may start in the walls, says the chief.

Christmas wrapping burns like tinder and should be removed as soon as possible. All wrappings should go into a waste basket and be removed to an outside, covered metal container as soon as the basket is filled.

Neumann also advises parents to be careful of heat-operated toys and new electrical gadgets if they are not approved by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. You can tell by the label.

Schools Seek Accreditation

Xavier Plans to Meet Standards Set Up by Agency

Xavier High school is actively seeking accreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and Fox Valley Lutheran High is thinking about seeking accreditation, school principals have indicated.

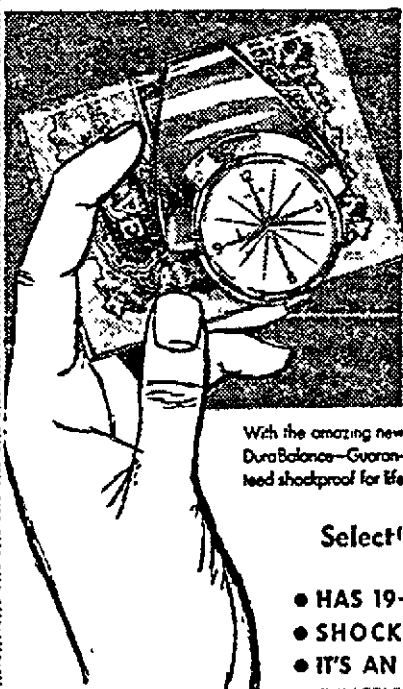

Xavier is planning its curriculum around North Central requirements and hopes to be accredited soon after the first class graduates, Brother L. Peter said. Xavier is in its first year of operation this year. North Central demands that a high school have produced one class before it can be accredited.

No Placement Problem
Fox Valley Lutheran High is thinking about seeking North Central accreditation, but up to now has not needed it to place any of its students in college, the Rev. Harold Warnke said. "We have students in college from Connecticut to Colorado and we've had no trouble placing them," he said. Lutheran High has had small classes up to now and sends most of its graduates to Lutheran colleges.

North Central last week announced it is raising its standards for accreditation. Four Fox Cities high schools are not accredited by the group, including Kimberly, which withdrew several years ago, and St. John, Little Chute, which is accredited by another organization.

The new standards probably will not affect the remaining schools, their principals said.

Boy, 13, Injured in Hunting Accident, Remains Critical

Hospital authorities at Antigo reported this morning that there was no change in the condition of a 13-year-old Appleton boy, injured in a hunting accident Sunday.

Russell Diedrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Diedrich, 1320 S. Lave street, remained in critical condition. He was shot by a hunting companion in Oconto county.

Russell, a seventh grade student at Sacred Heart school, underwent a 4-hour operation Tuesday night to relieve pressure on his brain. A Madison surgeon, Dr. Theodore Roberts, was flown to Antigo by the Civil Air Patrol through rain and snow to perform the operation. Pieces of brain tissue and bone chips were removed and small blood clots were relieved. Russell's father has been at his side since the accident Sunday. Two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Ronald Diedrich and a sister Mrs. Ronald Besette have been taking alternate 2-day shifts to stay with him.

Russell Diedrich

Friends and relatives are having masses said for Russell and schoolmates have joined in prayers.

Close Oneida St. Bridge to Drain Water From Canal

The makeshift Oneida street low level canal bridge will be closed to traffic Saturday and Sunday, Director of Public Works Duszynski announced Wednesday.

Contractors for the city water department and Wisconsin Michigan Power company will drain all water from the government canal to install water and gas mains, he explained.

During the period, the north approach to the S. Lave street bridge, which has been closed while a retaining wall is being replaced, will be open.

Motorists also may detour the Oneida bridge by using the narrow streets in the industrial island in the middle of the river, Duszynski said. The industrial streets connect to S. Lave street and the S. Lave street bridges.

The canal will be drained, Duszynski said, by closing the lock west of the Oneida bridge and opening the next lock several blocks downstream to the east.

Bleak, Cold Thanksgiving In Fox Cities

Thanksgiving day dawned cold, bleak and cloudy. It carried all the weatherman promised — even the snow flurries.

Tiny flakes began to fall in the Fox Cities shortly after 8 a.m. today. A state report said all highways are in good driving condition, however.

A mass of cold air powered by strong winds moved in from Canada today over states lying along the northern border, bringing a chilly weather. More is in the offing. Cold cloudy weather is expected through Saturday.

The cold air followed a snowstorm that whizzed into Wyoming and Colorado Wednesday and brought sub-zero readings to some sections.

Rawlins, on the southern Wyoming border, had 3 below today, coldest in the two states. Denver charted 20, a drop of 40 degrees from Wednesday morning.

Jacket, Coat Of Leather Pleasing Gift

Articles for Ladies, Men and Boys Available

A woman's favorite "Christmas wrapping" this year is a colorful, warmly lined leather jacket or coat. Lined in wool shearing, pile or fur, the new suede, cabretta, soft cowhide and kidskin styles are as many-hued as the presents under the tree.

A sleek cabretta or kid coat in carnation red, deep blue or earth brown adds cheer to the Christmas scene. Glove-soft leather is a feminine favorite in leather-and-tweed walking suits, in form-fitting dressmaker jackets and in full-length jeweled or furred evening coats. One present she will never forget is an elegant reversible white kidskin coat with a warm reverse side of ruby or royal blue velvet.

Fur collars are especially popular with soft cowhide leather coats and jackets this winter. It can be just a few inches of karacul on the collar of a tailored cowhide town jacket, or big billowy drifts of Canadian lynx forming a neck-to-knee length collar on a versatile weekend coat in butter-soft suede. Other sure-to-please combinations include suede with Norwegian blue fox, smooth cabretta or kid with civet, and various leathers with raccoon or muskrat.

Suede Jackets

Outstanding in the casual or sports group for cold weather are the shearing suede jackets, in both waist and hip lengths. A practical outfit for the market-bound suburban housewife or career girl is a hip-length jacket in shearing suede with a warm stand-up collar and deep pockets, complete with matching slacks.

A perky teenage girl will feel years more grown-up in an over-the-hips smooth or suede leather coat. Forest green in suede leather and Arctic white cabretta are favorites for an afternoon date. For the outdoor girl, there's a boxy suede midy with an oversize lamb's wool collar with a deep neckline that can be worn closed to keep out the wind or open to show a smart turtle-neck sweater.

The most-prized practical item in a man's casual winter wardrobe is a warm, masculine jacket of fine leather. In deep shearing lined suede or rugged cowhide, a leather jacket at Christmas will keep him warm and comfortable through the worst part of winter, still to come.

Wool Collar

Waist-length jackets of all-leather or leather with bulky knit trim have elasticized waist bands, or boxy, non-elastic bands in dressier styles. Large shearing or wool knit collars that can be worn up to protect the neck and ears are popular on both smooth leather and suede models. Colors range from black leather with black, gray and white trim to loden green, cocoa, tan, cream, silver gray and even pure white.

All-leather suburban coats cover the hips, and some reach almost to the knees. Warmer than ordinary overcoats, these quilted and pile-lined leather coats are snow- and sleet-proof. They are roomy enough to wear over a suit but the right length for driving. Both boxy and belted styles are popular. Diagonal flapped side pockets, double breast pockets and double breasted closings are among the new style features to look for.

Sponge-washable smooth leathers and washable or dry-cleanable suedes have made it possible for practical-minded mothers to gild their sons' Christmas wish for a leather jacket "like the other kids have."

The newest idea for boys is a grown-up looking leather car coat. In hard-wearing cabretta or cowhide, these hip-length coats are ideal for bike-riding or cheering on the school team. For warmth, pick one with a wool shearing, or a quilted lining. Style details such as toggle closings, slashed knit trimmed pockets and knit shawl collars appeal to the Beau Brummel lurking in every boy.

Electric Train Makers Reach Into Past, Future

Christmas Layouts Include Models Now
In Mothballs, Others Purely From Dreams

BY JAY JOSLYN

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The past, present and future meet in the ever-popular electric train sets being offered for Christmas.

The train layout is about the only place, outside of a museum where the old "iron horse" can be seen in all its glory, and in the electric train it whistles and puffs smoke.

As far as having a satellite in orbit over a tender like a guardian angel, the electric train is the only place it could happen.

The model train also has provided for the taste for violence that has been nurtured in the young by television. A set purporting to be a military conveyance pulls an array of arms and warlike accessories.

Explode Freight
One of the cars is a missile launcher. The suggested use of the launcher is to fire the missile at a freight car which will explode when hit.

Of more accurate historic and educational value is a new HO or hobby size model of the "General" locomotive that figured in the Andrews Raider Civil war expedition from Shelbyville, Tenn., to Big Shanty, Ga., that won the Congressional Medal of Honor for the 22 enlisted men in the party.

Another company has a similar wood burning locomotive, the "William Crooks" that made a name for itself in the move to the west. The set includes a western town and the inevitable Indians.

Authentic settings are provided for the layouts by the makers in offering scale landscaped tables and boards for the trains on sale.

Model Kits
Even more authenticity is found in the HO gauge models offered do-it-yourself fans. These models range throughout the possibilities of rolling stock.

Actually the kits have a nearly narcotic effect on skilled enthusiast because of that wide range of possibilities and the results when finished, gain importance in their historic value.

With the initiation of the national railroad museum in the Fox Cities neighborhood, these accurate models of rolling stock now out of use should increase in their popularity.

Transistors Promoted to Place in Home

New Models Can Bring in Chicago
Stations Clearly

Once regarded as the radio for the teenager or the vacationer, the portable transistor radio now has been promoted to a place in the home.

New models even include clock-radios operating off a battery and transistors. Standard dry cell batteries have been replacing the mercury battery as the power unit. They are more readily available and less expensive.

The teenage market has in the past accounted for most sales of the portable transistor radios, particularly the pocket type. Ninety per cent of the pocket type are foreign made and have a more limited range.

New Models

Besides the larger portable models which can be carried in a leather case slung over a shoulder or by hand, small table models are being offered this year, with many of them finding their place in the bedroom and kitchen.

Since they are cordless, they can be placed anywhere without concern for an electrical outlet. They also offer a clearer and wider tone range than is available in pocket-size radios where tone was sacrificed for size. A smaller speaker is limited in the depth of bass tones it can reproduce. Many models contain an ear phone jack for the person who wants to listen without disturbing others.

Yardmen Make Use of Discarded Bottles

Phoenix, Ariz. — For nine months last year Walter Waller and Carl Day, yardmen at Phoenix Union High school, collected pop bottles discarded by students.

They returned the bottles to the store and collected the 2-cent per bottle deposit.

When school opened this fall the campus was bordered with row after row of flowers. Waller and Day had saved the deposit money, purchased seeds and spent the summer planting and growing the flowers.

Central '5' Rallies To Register 69-66 Win Over Kimberly

'Bud' Wright Paces Redmen To Second Successive Victory

Sehboygan — A last-period fadeout by the Kimberly Papermakers enabled Sehboygan Central to spring a 69-66 upset victory here Wednesday night.

Leading by seven points, 55-48, going into the fourth period, it looked as if the Papermakers were on their way to their second straight win of the season. But, Central opened up with a fast-break attack that netted the Redmen their second win in two starts.

Forges Into Lead

In the first four minutes of the final stanza, Central outscored the Papermakers, 13-2, to forge into the lead. Kimberly went for nearly three full minutes without scoring a point.

With 3:50 left in the game, Central had a 61-57 lead. Dave Minten put the Papermakers back in the contest with a basket and free throw to cut the margin to 1-point.

Howie Schneider bagged one for Central to push the lead back to three points but Minten followed with another long shot. Tom Posewitz' fast break layup after a pass interception gave Central the 3-point margin back and Schneider iced it with a steal and layup.

In the last minute, Tom Peerenboom got a pair of free throws but Bill Azukas added a pair for Central to hold the lead. Just before the horn sounded Tom Rooyackers dropped one for Kimberly to make the final margin three points.

Jansen Fouls Out

Kimberly was hurting through the middle of the game as Darrell Jansen, 6-4 forward, picked up three fouls in the first period and had to sit out all of the second quarter. Jansen scored 14 of his 16 points in the third period and fouled out in the fourth.

Don Hearden and Jansen tied for scoring honors for the Papermakers with 16 each. Rooyackers and Minten each had 13.

For Central, 6-foot 4-inch center, "Bud" Wright took scoring honors with 19 points on eight baskets and three free throws.

Hackbart Wins Big 10 Total Offense Title

Iowa's Jeter Leads Rushers; Treadway Is Top Passer

Chicago — Quarterback Dale Hackbart of Wisconsin captured the total offense lead in Big Ten football with his performance against Minnesota in the season finale.

Hackbart ran for 74 yards against Gophers and passed for 122 to give him a 7-game total of 686, final official statistics showed today.

This pushed him to the No. 1 spot on total offense, ahead of Iowa's Olen Treadway with a total of 637 yards. Treadway, however, compiled his yardage in only six conference games.

Top Passer

Bob Jeter of Iowa took the rushing title with 443 yards in 71 carries for a 6.2 average. Illinois Bill Brown was next with 385 in 58 trips for a 6.6 average.

Treadway was ranked the top passer, gaining 663 yards on 63 completions in 111 attempts. He pitched four touchdowns. Michigan State's all-conference quarterback, Dean Look, was ranked second. He

Ghosts Tip Sheboygan North '5' 68-45, in Home Opener

The National Football league draft is covered with a couple of clouds this year. Not only will the established U. S. circuit have a compete for talent against Canada—which, up to now, has been a relatively minor problem — but it must face the challenge of the newly-organized, American Football league. No one knows for sure what role the new league will play—whether it will actually operate next year, whether it will succeed better than the old All-America conference did, etc. We can only hope that an all-out dollar war in a mad bid for talent can be avoided. Such a thing could crumble the entire pro football structure. Certainly, Green Bay can't compete in a "sky's the limit" money race. Not many clubs can.

On the assumption that many top college players will prefer the prestige and security of the NFL to the lure of a few extra AFL dollars, on possibly a short-term basis only, the established league should get more than its share of new stars. The current eligible collegiate crop looks a lot better than last year's. The Packers, of course, can hardly do worse, draftwise. Out of 30 players the Bays drafted in '58 and early '59, only two—Boyd Dowler and Billy Butler—are still with the club. No. 1 pick Randy Duncan skipped to Canada. No. 2 choice Alex Hawkins was released—but caught on with the champion Colts. Dowler, next in line, is making his mark with the Bays. Actually, about the only No. 1 choices of 1958 who have lived up to pro expectations are Detroit fullback Nick Pietrosante (from Notre Dame) and Cardinal speedster Billy Stacy (from Mississippi State).

We hope the Packers are more careful shoppers in the player mart than they were last year. The other day, Bill Austin, a Packer aide, said the team is interested in such players as Vanderbilt fullback Tom Moore, Oklahoma State quarterback Dick Soerge, Louisiana halfback Billy Cannon and Southern Methodist QB Don Meredith.

Marquette's basketball team will have one of the best rebounding duos in the nation this year in the persons of Walt Mangham and Don Kojis. Last season, they collared 45 per cent of the Warriors' rebounds—with Kojis getting 376 and Mangham 372.

Weyenberg and Borchardt Pace Kaukauna Win

BY JIM HARP Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Kaukauna — Getting revenge for last year's defeat, Kaukauna High school rolled to a 68-45 victory over Sheboygan North Wednesday night.

It was the second straight non-conference win of the young season for Coach Jerry Hopfensperger's cagers. Saturday, Kaukauna beat Wausau High.

Tall Leroy Weyenberg and shifty Bill Borchardt paced the Kaukauna scoring. Each had nine field goals, and Weyenberg added six gift shots while Borchardt had four. Weyenberg's 24 points were high for the game.

Commanding Lead
Kaukauna left little doubt to the outcome by moving to a commanding lead in the initial period. North had trouble finding the range and had to settle for six free throws before Ken Meyer hit a bucket with 42 seconds left in the quarter.

The Ghosts led, 18-8, after the first eight minutes of action and increased the margin with another 18-point second period while North managed 14. This made the score 36-22 at the intermission.

Weyenberg was the big gun in the first half getting 17 of his points and taking most of the rebounds. He picked up his fourth foul early in the fourth period and had to take it easy for a spell.

Borchardt caught fire and sparked the Ghost second half.

Packers Will Try New 'Team' Draft System in Philadelphia Monday

Detroit — The Packers have a sort of team draft system.

When the Packers passed out of the Lambeau era, Vainisi joined the Bays as an administrative assistant and chief (player) scout. He has worked under all Packer coaches except "Curly" Lambeau.

57 Fouls Blown in 57-56 Tilt

BY MIKE DREW Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — The 1959-60 Fox River Valley conference season figures to be one of the best in years, both in the quality of play and the evenness in ability of a number of top teams.

But, the league race may seem almost anti-climactic for the Appleton High Terrors if they don't stop getting involved in non-conference dog-fights.

Wednesday evening at the Menasha High gym, the Terrors shaded Menasha's Bluejays, 57-56, in a wild and woolly affair that had everything—with the exception of much good basketball. It was the second straight thriller-diller for AHS, which had lost a triple-overtime opener to Kimberly, 74-72, Friday night.

Bitterly - Fought Tilt
Menasha, now 2-1 on the season, had shaded AHS, 66-64, in two overtimes last season.

Wednesday's game, before about 1,500 fans, was tight and bitterly - fought all the way.

Referees Floyd Dietzo and Ted Scallisi of Two Rivers whistled a whopping total of 57 fouls—31 against Menasha and 26 against the winners in the loosely-played tilt.

Menasha, which pressed all the way, lost four players via the foul route—starters Bill Ritchie, Jim Stenson and Bill Prange and reserve Bill Gerhardt. Two other boys had four personals—starters Dave Ristau and Jay Drzewiecki.

Appleton, miraculously, had just one boy excused with his quota of five fouls—reserve Bill Hopkins. Starters Paul Vander Heyden, Harold Lodholz and Pete Treiber each finished with four.

The sizzler was tied 11 times, and the lead changed hands on 12 occasions. No

4 Saturday Tilts Could Have Effect On Bowl Pairings

Biggest Traditional Battle Will Match Army, Navy Elevens

BY JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer

About the best use you could make of your turkey wishbone today is to use it as a guide in predicting the weekend's football games. This is the Saturday where tradition reigns supreme and where past performances and statistics are thrown out.

None of Saturday's games will decide any conference titles, but four could have some bearing on closing out bowl pairings.

The biggest battle, from tradition and national interest, is the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia's 100,000 seat Municipal stadium. The game will be broadcast and telecast over NBC beginning at 12:30 p.m., CST.

Physical Peaks

Both teams have mediocre records—Army 4-3-1, Navy 4-1. But both are at physical peaks for the season and the expected passing battle between Navy's Joe Tranchini and Army's Joe Caldwell, a dandy pair of quarterbacks, could be offset by a fancy running game powered by Bob Anderson, of Army, and Navy's Joe Bellino.

Notre Dame (4-5) tries to wind up its season even, when it entertains Southern California, ranked seventh in the latest Associated Press poll. USC, which lost its first game in nine starts last week to UCLA, hasn't won at South Bend since 1939.

Mississippi, second-ranked behind Idle Syracuse, can't announce its bowl intentions until after it plays Mississippi State. Presumably, Ole Miss is headed for a replay of a 7-3 loss to Louisiana State in the Sugar bowl.

Georgia, the Southeastern Conference champ at 6-0, winds up against Georgia Tech, and the Bulldogs likewise must wait until after the game to say in which bowl they will play. The bet is the Gator bowl, Jan. 2 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Texas Christian (No. 8) already is signed for the Dec. 19 inaugural Bluebonnet game in Houston, but could spoil Southern Methodist's chances of landing the second spot in Philadelphia's Liberty Bowl, played the same date. The Liberty Bowl is reportedly interested in the Mustangs to meet Penn State, which accepted a bid earlier this week.

Miami (Fla.), on the wings of a 3-game winning string meets intra-state rival Florida (4-4-1) and a victory could put the Hurricanes (6-3) as the host team in the Orange bowl against Big Eight representative Missouri.

Other top rivalries which defy the picking of a favorite are Boston college-Holy Cross, Vanderbilt - Tennessee and Oklahoma State - Oklahoma, none of which will decide anything other than who will say "wait till next year."

Wilt Scores 45 As Philadelphia Downs Celtics

Hawks Defeat Pistons to Tie For Division Lead

By The Associated Press

Frank Ramsey was right. "Chamberlain will get better," said the Boston Celtic star on Nov. 7, referring to Wilt Chamberlain, the rookie star of the Philadelphia Warriors in the National Basketball association.

The Celtics, pro basketball champions, won that first meeting of the season with Philadelphia, 115-106, although Chamberlain scored 30 points. It was different Wednesday night when the teams met for the second time at the Boston garden.

Grabs 35 Rebounds

This time the 7-1 Wilt poured in 45 points, grabbed 35 rebounds and blocked six shots as Philadelphia won, 123-113. The victory cut the Celtics' lead over the Warriors to two games in the Eastern division and set the stage for the teams' first meeting in Philadelphia tonight.

In other NBA games Wednesday, the Syracuse Nats climbed within three games of the Celtics in the Eastern division by beating the Minneapolis Lakers, 100-93; and the St. Louis Hawks beat the Detroit Pistons, 104-97, to tie the Pistons for the Western division lead.

Chamberlain scored 12 of a 16-point Philadelphia surge in the second quarter that wiped out a 36-32 Boston lead.

Paul Arizin, Joe Graboski and Guy Rodgers helped the Philadelphia attack with 24, 21 and 18 points, respectively. Sam Jones topped Boston with 20.

Syracuse blew a 15-point lead against the Lakers, but rallied in the last quarter to win at Minneapolis. "Red" Kerr, 6-9 center, tossed in 23 points for the Nats. Larry Foust scored 21 for the Lakers who played again without their star, Elgin Baylor, hospitalized with the flu.

Bob Pettit scored 36 points for St. Louis as the Hawks ended Detroit's winning streak at three. Gene Shue led Detroit with 22 points.

John Plach Notches 647 'Industrial' Trio

Jim Agen Bowls 622 Aggregate in Merchants' Loop

John Plach walloped a 647 threesome Wednesday night in the Industrial league at Hahn's, kegging for the Appleton Coated Paper team. One of his games was a 244.

Knoke's (29-7) is four lines in front of the pack after winning just one of three games.

Jim Agen unfurled a 622

threesome for Big Shoe in the Merchants loop at the Elks club, including a 236 loner. "Tex" Techlin fired a 241 for Singer's and wound up with a 554. Jahnke's (25-11) is two games in front of Home Furniture.

Other Industrial honor counts: Wayne Lemberger, 599; Bob Mirkes, 241, 574; Hank Williams, 578; Gene Kronforst, 222, 557; Joe Ofenstein, 552; Fil Grearson, 572; Herb Simon, 564; Rudy Schultz, 563; Les Asmus, 559; Harold Council, 561; John Cotton, 580; Max Kroiss, 239, 589; Mark Catlin, 557.

In the Merchants loop John Kiley cracked a 552.

Bays Use New Draft System

season. Vainisi and Lewellen have compiled reports on scads of prospects from many bird dogs and Packer friends and alumni from around the country.

Lombardi's theory of drafting is different from previous coaches who generally drafted to fill certain positions.

The new coach's plan is to draft the best players available regardless of position, Vainisi said. This would apply until the third or fourth round when picks would be aimed at bolstering various positions — if good players are left for said spots.

By winning last Sunday, the Packers "lost" all chance of drafting first—oh, happy day! The two top players in the country are generally considered to be Billy Cannon, the LSU backfield great, and Don Meredith, SMU's passing whiz.

"Would you take Meredith?" Vince asked the other day. There's a new problem facing the National league club that picks him. Lamar Hunt, owner of the Dallas team in the new American league, said he must have Meredith, and he'll pay any amount to get him. Hunt already has selected him.

Cannon is a must. The Rams could conceivably win the first choice and if they do they'll probably pick him despite their Arnett, Matson, Wilson, Marconi and a few others. That would be real irony, since the Rams not only have an "all-pro" backfield but they annually get half the other club's top draft picks.

Lombardi is n't revealing his thoughts on who he might be picking in the first round. All clubs usually keep their picks secret.

The Packers probably will draft fifth or sixth Monday, pending the outcome of today's game and the Sunday battles. The Bays will get 17 players (out of a possible 20), having given up choices for Lamar McHan (third), Henry Jordan (fourth), Bob Freeman (fifth), and Ken Beck (fifteenth). They will get a fifth choice back, however, from Detroit in the Ollie Spencer - Ken Russell deal.

The Packer staff has been working on the draft almost every night (a couple of times until 1 a.m.) for the last three weeks.

Iowa, averaging 351 yards a game, won the offensive statistical crown. Illinois' defense yielded the fewest yards, 178 a game, and held opponents to the fewest points, an 8.4 average.

Wisconsin, the Big Ten champions, ranked seventh in both offense and defense.

Second in Scoring

Hackbart was second in scoring to Northwestern full-back Mike Stock, with 30 points to Stock's 33. Hackbart ran for four touchdowns and three extra points.

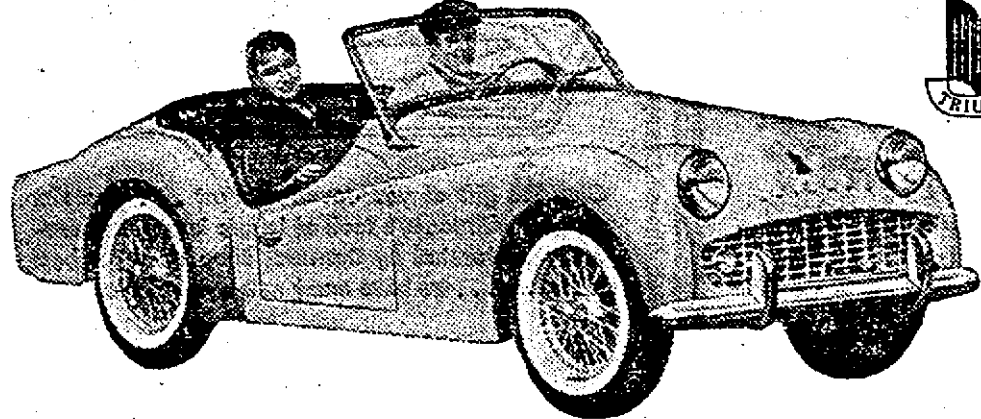

Hackbart finished second to Northwestern's Ron Burton in punt returns with eight for an average return of 8.4 yards. Burton averaged 13.4 on eight runbacks.

Bob Altman was tied for second in interceptions with three for a return of 83 yards. Illinois' halfback Marshall Dean Look was second with 24 Starks had four interceptions for an average of 38.5 and ran them back 74 yards.

The Badgers' Jim Bakken was a tight third with 43 for was the circuits leading punt-38.4.

Sports Equipment Fine for Women

Many Hobbies for Feminine Taste.

Sportswomen, young and old, will be pleased with a Christmas gift of the latest thing in equipment for their favorite sport.

Books and subscriptions to magazines are inexpensive, but much appreciated gifts and there are publications featuring new equipment, methods and clothing for almost any sport.

Golf enthusiasts will be some of the easiest people for whom to shop this Christmas with a variety of gift items from balls to matched sets of clubs. Although golfers will have to wait through snowy cold months to pursue their game, they will appreciate gifts of equipment.

A dozen golf balls is a thoughtful gift for as any golfer knows, balls are constantly being lost. A few tees can be added—perhaps even worked into the gift wrapping—and there are novelty tees of gold, pink and rhinestones to delight feminine tastes.

Gift certificates for clubs or golf shoes can be presented and will certainly be among the recipient's most treasured remembrances. Golf carts can be chosen by shoppers and there are also handy little gadgets available which attach to the carts and hold score cards, tees, cigarettes and wallet. Soft kid gloves will save many blisters during the season and can be selected in colors to match or harmonize with bags.

Tennis Gear
Tennis equipment, although also out of season, makes Christmas gifting easy and fun. Racquets, shoes and balls are all possibilities for the girl who likes her recreation on the courts.

Mothers will like badminton and lawn tennis sets for family fun during warmer months.

For the Miss or Mrs. who likes winter best of all, shelves in sporting goods shops are filled with ideal gifts. Skiers always need another pair of mitts—either the lined leather variety or the fabric gloves faced with leather palms. Wax, socks and wool headgear are good gifts for winter sports lovers.

Skis, poles and boots would be wonderful Christmas presents for somebody just beginning the sport or for the veteran who wants new equipment, but the buyer should be very sure he is selecting what the skier really wants.

Other Items
There are also many other accessories along the ski line for the skier who apparently has everything. Car racks, canvas bags for carrying or shipping skis and wine sacks.

Badger Gridders Resume Practice Sessions Dec. 10

Although Golf and Tennis are somewhat difficult to play with snow and cold in the air, enthusiasts of these sports will be delighted with gifts of equipment. A collapsible golf cart, left, holds a plaid golf bag containing a complete set of matched clubs and could be a special holiday gift. Cans of tennis balls are a good extra present with a racquet, and a bowling ball in a carrying case will please any woman who loves to bowl.

Outspoken Navy QB Seeks Better Blocking

Annapolis, Md. —(AP)—Midshipman James Gateley Maxfield, Jr., outspoken enough to be admired, says the Navy football line has to improve its blocking Saturday against Army or "We're going to be in trouble."

Maxfield is one of Navy's two quarterbacks and until he suffered torn ligaments in his left knee against Maryland Nov. 7 was No. 1. Now Joe Tranchini will start against Army, but Maxfield expects to be "showboating" before the audience of 100,000 in Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, too.

'Best' Game
"This is going to be my last game and best," he says typically.

It won't be for him or Tranchini, Maxfield declares "I'll throughout the first half with the visitors leading, 10-6, at the first quarter break and 25-23 at the half. Menasha opened its 38-32 lead one a pair of Stenson jump shots with about 2:30 left in the third stanza. But, the winners streaked for 13 of the next 15 points to hold a 45-40 bulge at the quarter rest.

Appleton maintained the lead until a nifty Ristau drive maneuver put the Bluejays on top, 54-53, with 56 seconds to go. Paul Vander Heyden dropped a pair of free throws with 37 seconds showing and LaViolette hit two with 19 seconds remaining for a 57-54 Terror lead.

Drzewiecki came through with a clutch drive-in basket for 57-56 with :03 remaining and the Menashans tied up LaViolette on the throw-in. But Dave tipped the toss-up out of danger into the Terror back-court and it was all over.

Injury-Riddled Bruins Hold Rangers Even

By The Associated Press
At first look, Marcel Paille doesn't appear to be the cure for the New York Rangers' troubles. But he'll have more chances very soon to prove his value to the club.

The Rangers, fifth in the National Hockey league standings and trailing the Boston Bruins by eight points, have been trying desperately to shake their slump. The latest move was to bring up goalie Paille and defenseman Jack Bowmans from their Springfield American league farm. But the shuffle produced nothing better than a 3-3 tie with the injury-riddled Bruins Wednesday night.

Only 16 Saves
On behalf of Paille, he didn't have much chance on the three shots that got past him. But he had to make only 16 saves against a Boston attack that was sputtering and inconsistent.

Bronco Horvath made the first goal while Paille was off balance after making a fine stop of Jerry Toppazzini's shot. Then, Vic Stasiuk got the puck in the clear and beat Paille with a 10-footer.

But hasn't been under fire in contact practice.

Besides his injured knee, Maxfield this season has lost several teeth — same tooth from a hole in the front. "I always seemed to get hit in the mouth and the false tooth pops out," he said with a grin. "So I said the heck with it, and haven't had another one put in yet."

Playing in Green Bay Boosts Packers' Chances of Winning hasty in his quick assurance to Milwaukee that two games would again be played in County stadium in 1960. Maybe Vince should have given it a second thought and held the question open for more deliberation. Assuredly, there are points in favor of a 4-2 split in games between Green Bay and Milwaukee: maybe on a long-range basis, Packers need the Milwaukee "market"; and maybe fewer season tickets could be sold in Green Bay if the two extra games were added to the docket. On the other hand, you can't argue with the fact that of all the "musts" in big league sports, two have top priority: you must win games, and you must make money. No question about it—the Packers do both better in their own City stadium.

The Packers' only five victories in the last two seasons (prior to today's game) have come at "home." Their record in City stadium in that span is five wins, one tie and two losses. In Milwaukee, they are 0-4 for the same two years. Gatewise, the Packers are ahead in Green Bay too, even though this year the differential was smaller because of the magnet of the team's unbeaten record going into the Ram game. In as tough a league as the NFL, you've got to play all the percentages to the hilt—and the Bays' chances of winning are greater at home. You don't catch the Colts, the Bears or the 49ers moving their home games out of the parks that prove lucky for them year after year.

The Baltimore Orioles don't have a single player from Wisconsin in their farm system. They probably hope that their new tie-up with the Fox Cities Foxes will interest some state stars in joining their organization.

The high school basketball season is kind of a grueling grind that now lasts about four months. At times, coaches have complained about the season's length and the tension involved. But, seemingly, they aren't unhappy enough to want to change the status quo. Kimberly's Gil Frank reports that at a recent coaches' sectional confab, he proposed that maybe no games should be played until Dec. 1. Gil says that he was practically banished to outer space for the suggestion.

The wholesale defection of Milwaukee Braves' scouts to the Philadelphia Phillies' camp appears to be a pretty good indication of how "Birdie" Tebbetts and John McHale rate with their underlings. And, it's quite a testimonial to John Quinn's popularity.

For the first time in history, the Midwest conference will send teams to the West coast for basketball competition this season. The Coe and Grinnell quintets will fly to California for Jan. 8-9 games against Whittier and Pomona colleges.

Sports Gift Items Provide Wide Range Of Selection, Price

In or Out of Season Makes Little Difference to Receiver

BY MIKE DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Sports items which would make good Christmas gifts for men are as many and varied as the large number of athletic pursuits which — each in its season — captures the males' interest.

Gift buyers can find numerous items in every price range. This includes the expensive, (outboard motors, high-powered shooting equipment), down through the medium range, (golf clubs, fishing tackle, bowling balls), and the inexpensive gear, (bait buckets, charcoal grills, hunting clothes).

Most sporting gifts can be personalized, and printing of the names on any item can make them a bit better gift. Among the items which a hunter would be interested in are, of course, guns and ammunition.

Dacron underwear. A recent development is dacron-insulated underwear. Some models have a new non-metal zipper which works on a burr "stick-em" principle. Dacron is excellent for use in hunters' underwear and sleeping bags because it is nearly as efficient an insulator as down and costs less than half as much. In addition, dacron won't leak, is non-allergic, vermin proof and won't mildew.

Outdoorsmen, whether they are hunter - fishermen or merely frequent spectators at athletic events in this chilly Wisconsin climate, would find the popular blanket-in-a-bag a good item. Some of the carrying cases contain bladders which can be blown up, converting the bag to a cushion when the blanket is removed.

Plastic Coolers. Fishermen will appreciate tackle boxes, plastic coolers which can be used as minnow buckets for ice fishing or any new types of tackle, and there are always many. Insulated boots for hunting and fishing are available, as well as fine quality hunting and fishing socks.

A large amount of special clothing and related equipment is needed by real skiing enthusiasts, of course, and the number of skiers is growing each season. Personalized skis are being sold, bearing a plastic identification plate. Ski poles, ski bindings, nylon ski parkas and ski pants also make a welcome present.

Out Of Season. Although a Christmas present of golf equipment would be a trifle out-of-season, the buyer can find a large category of items even now which would please a golfing friend. A new development is the golf bag with built-in tubes in which the individual clubs are inserted.

Package golf sets are being marketed which are less expensive than a full set but give the novice and average golfer the essential clubs. Several types of carts are available.

One of the less expensive, but highly appreciated, gifts for golfers are personalized golf balls, which make positive identification easy.

Another sport — with golfing and skiing — which is growing by leaps and bounds, is bowling. The usual method of giving a bowling ball is to present the recipient with a gift certificate which the bowler can take to the store after Christmas so the ball can be fitted to his hand.

Inserted in Tie Box. The certificates often are inserted in a tie box or other smaller box to maintain the element of surprise.

A perfect in-season Christmas gift could be a pair of racing or hockey skates.

Other items which would be appreciated by the whole family include croquet, badminton sets, billiard or ping pong tables.

Paul Laus tossed in a basket and free throw in the final seven seconds Wednesday evening to give the home-standing Menasha High School junior varsity basketball team a 48-46 win over Appleton.

The victory was the second in three games for Menasha while the Terrors, who erased a 17-point deficit, are 0-2. The Jays were ahead 37-11 after one quarter and 32-20 at the half. They built their lead to 37-20 by mid-way in the third quarter.

Get Hot. The Terrors got hot and scored 26 of the game's next 34 points, going ahead at 46-45 with 40 seconds left on a pair of John Wendt free throws. Laus long pusher from the side with seven second to go made it 47-46 and he added a single free throw with one second showing after a Mike Lee foul.

Lee finished with 16 points, counting 10 of them in the final 10-minute push. Wendt totaled 15, eight in the last 10 minutes. Laus captured game honors with 20 points while teammate Steinmetz totaled 15.

Menasha made two fewer fielders than Appleton but whipped in 16 of 22 free throws. AHS made 10 of 17.

Thanksgiving Hopped, Skipped All Over Calendar Until 1941 Decision

BY CHARLES HOUSE

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

One of the dandiest reasons for giving thanks on this Thanksgiving day is the plain and simple fact that it comes on Thanksgiving day.

The United States has popped the date of our annual celebration about like a badminton bird for 165 years. It became the unwritten law of the land that the big day would be observed when the president said so by proclamation.

In 1783 the people of the United States celebrated it on Dec. 11. In 1793, President Washington set the date at Feb. 19.

John Adams in 1798 proclaimed—increasingly—that Thanksgiving day should be observed on May 9. In 1799, he switched the day back to April 25.

If the nation was disturbed by such odd dates for the observation of the harvest, just think what happened during the administration of James Madison who was so bold as to proclaim two days in 1815—Jan. 12 and April 13.

That strange set of proclamations did what you think it might have done. Following presidents steered clear of decision with the result that our country had no formal Thanksgiving day—not for 47 years!

The result was that folks who liked the custom—and almost everybody does—chose to observe it when the mood was upon them. If the mood came in June or December, it was all the same to them; they observed it.

President Abraham Lincoln re-established the custom of presidential proclamation for the date of the giving of thanks. He did it on his own initiative without direction from the congress by suggestion of a lady, one Sarah Hale of New Hampshire.

But Lincoln did not then choose a day we now consider appropriate. His selection in 1862 was April 13. Then, in 1863, he again issued a proclamation for the observance of Thanksgiving day—Aug. 6.

Merit in Decision

The emancipator's selection of observation dates may be away from our present custom of choosing the last Thursday in November, but there was merit in his decision to proclaim the date. From that day to this, every president has chosen a date. It was an unwritten rule, but it became customary to observe on the day the president decided it should be.

In 1865, Andrew Johnson chose Dec. 7.

In 1869, Ulysses S. Grant named Nov. 18.

But the biggest snafu in Thanksgiving history came in 1939 when President Roosevelt decided that the Christmas shopping season could be lengthened in the interest of prosperity and merchants. Since most people customarily do little or no Christmas shopping until after Thanksgiving, Roosevelt reasoned that the nation would benefit by an earlier than usual Thanksgiving. He chose Nov. 23.

Confusion Reigned

His deviation from recent custom became a fiasco which upset the nation and made the United States the laughing stock of the world. One of our fondest celebrations had no specific date!

In the United States, confusion reigned. Someone redesigned the old doggerel verse so that it read:

Thirty days hath September, April, June and November;

All the rest have 31—until we hear from Washington.

Wisconsin's governor, Julius Heil, a Republican, termed the Rooseveltian date "a Democrat Thanksgiving." He promptly issued one of his own—Nov. 30.

Elsewhere in the U. S., other governors complained of Roosevelt's "high-handed act" and chose a date of their own. A national turmoil ensued.

State at Odds

In Wisconsin, federal employees had Thanksgiving on Nov. 23, but city schools remained open. County, state and city employees had to work. On Nov. 30, federal employees had to work but city employees and others observed Thanksgiving. Some schools were closed; some were open. The banks were closed.

Confusion was everywhere. Many families which dined together, the American custom on Thanksgiving day, found that it was not possible because some members of the family group had to work on the first Thanksgiving and some had to work on the second. Some schools remained faithful to the president; others to the governor. Many families found it necessary to have two of the same.

The fiasco lingered somewhat into 1940, but Gov. Heil decided that Wisconsin had had enough. He issued a proclamation to support the date—Nov. 21—chosen by the president.

Trouble was, proclamations—by custom and usage—have become the unwritten laws of the land. Almost every public official is legally permitted to issue a proclamation—presidents, governors, mayors and even lesser office holders may do it and they have.

But in 1941, a beleaguered congress was sick of the whole thing and took this most important day out of the just one more reason to give thanks on Thanksgiving day.

Bears Forsake Dumps, Disappoint Tourists

Madison.—The Wisconsin berry crop was good this year. As a result, tourists were disappointed.

Why? Bears in the northern resort country were so happy with their ample supply of wild berries they didn't bother to venture into isolated town dumps looking for food. Tourists often parked their cars near these dumps to watch the bears.

through since the time of the Pilgrim fathers. In that year the congress issued a resolution which was signed by President Roosevelt. It gave Thanksgiving a long-needed permanent "birthday," and it said definitely and finally that Thanksgiving is to be held on the fourth Thursday in November "in each year after 1941."

And that is why you have just one more reason to give thanks on Thanksgiving day.

Homemakers Has Exchange Of Recipes

Winneconne — Among the favorite recipes exchanged at a recent meeting of East Winneconne Homemakers club was chocolate chip chews, made by Mrs. Clarence Hale.

For the first layer, one-half cup butter, one-half cup light brown sugar, one cup sifted all-purpose flour is required. Cream butter and sugar. Work flour in until well-blended.

AAUW Panel Lists Seven Trends in Education Program

Neenah — Seven trends important in today's educational program on the national level and being actively considered in the Neenah school system were discussed by a panel of Neenah school representatives at Neenah-Menasha branch of American Association of University Women's Tuesday meeting.

Harold Mennes, Neenah superintendent of schools, cited the growth of the community, both in Neenah and on the national level as the first trend. He listed the growth in Neenah from 12,000 in 1859 to an estimated 20,000 now and a growth in the teaching staff from 70 to 138 in Neenah schools.

With an estimated United States population of some 220 million by 1975 and a present teaching shortage of some 135,000 persons, the superintendent stressed the need for urging more young people to enter the teaching field.

Dr. Donald Scott, curriculum coordinator for Neenah schools, discussed the "in-service cooperative study program" now in its 13th year.

Miss Mary Willits, Neenah elementary supervisor, listed the values of the in-service program as providing a constant re-evaluation of the school program; allows for introduction of new techniques and methods; aids in changing scope and sequence of curriculum; improves the use of resource material; allows for practice of democratic approach and for teachers to affect policy and encourages the feeling of "all belonging to the same family."

More and more testing is being done today, Dr. Scott pointed out. The fourth trend, that of providing more and more for individual differences, was illustrated with the Neenah system providing not only a class for trainable children and a program of enrichment for the gifted child, but an added music program and substantial study course for majority of students falling into the average grouping.

Scholarship The trend toward greater emphasis on scholarship was discussed by Mr. Mennes, who said he feels the students over a period of the last 10 years, are turning out better work. He stressed the need for better work to meet college entrance requirements.

Advanced placement is definitely a trend in today's education, Dr. Scott stated in a discussion of that area in Neenah schools and how it relates to advanced work.

He described the advanced science plan where 18 students are now taking advanced biology at Neenah High school and about possible plans for other advanced courses at the senior level.

He added that all schools are in agreement on the wisdom of advanced placement, but more and more colleges are becoming interested in this program.

The seventh trend, emphasis on foreign languages in the elementary grades and high school, was discussed by Miss Willits.

Thursday, Nov. 26, 1959 Appleton Post-Crescent C2

The program was introduced by Mrs. John Bletzinger, elementary and secondary education chairman for the AAUW branch. Mrs. Harold Adams, Appleton, will present a program, "The College Woman: Her Enjoyment of Music," Jan. 26.

Display Crafts For Yule Season

Yule Parties Planned by Eagles Unit

Neenah — Two holiday parties were planned by Neenah Eagles auxiliary at a Thursday meeting. The auxiliary are aerie will hold a joint dinner party at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 10.

A Christmas party for children will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Dec. 20. On the December committee are the Mmes. Bert Hunsicker, Walter Klavetter, Richard Bork, Anna Gibson and Celia Helein.

Awards went to the Mmes. Emma Henebry, Orville Luebke, William Blohm, Elizabeth Verhyen and Bork.

Skills Combined With Imagination For Holiday Gifts

Neenah — Imagination combined with simple skills and festive group spirit resulted in numerous homespun holiday gifts at a recent meeting of Community Mothers Study club.

Emphasizing gifts and decorations which children can make or items to be constructed as a family activity, a colorful assortment of games, tree ornaments, candy dishes and presents were completed at the meeting held at Mrs. Joseph Cowling's home, route 2, Neenah.

A Christmas tree was made from wax paper cones by cutting the cones in one-half inch widths, wrapping in shiny aluminum foil or other paper. After shaping into tree form, the cones were fastened together with tape.

Mrs. George Tipler demonstrated a simple game constructed from five coffee cans screwed to a triangular board with one can at the top, two in the second row and three in the third row. Small rubber balls are bounced into the various cans. Each can is worth a different number of points.

Tree Ornaments
Club members made ornaments from egg cartons by painting the cartons with poster paint. Four basic cuts were used for tree ornaments. The cartons were decorated with sequins, beads and glitter.

A star-shaped ornament would be made by fastening the parts of an egg carton to a square shaped piece of styrofoam. Glue the egg carton into place, then use a small corsage pin, inserting colored beads to the pin.

Mrs. Cowling shaped her painted egg carton into cone shape and covered it with aluminum. A bell was inserted. Mrs. Kermit Brill demonstrated how jewelry boxes can be formed from paper-covered match boxes. Using the small size box, which safety matches come in, she attached several and covered with colored paper. These small boxes may be used for paper clips or other desk supplies.

Mrs. Donald Schneider made a cone cookie canister by spraying or covering with paper a large shortening can. Cut one large cone and one small cone, using peach colored paper for the face and red for Santa's cap. Fluffy cotton forms the beard.

By using two old wire lamp shade frames, covered with tinsel, Mrs. Victor Weide made a table arrangement. The tinsel was tied to the lamp shade, using picture wire. Attach bells and red ribbons to the inside of the shade.

Caroler Favors
Favors of Christmas carolers were shown by Mrs. Thomas Weber. Circles of red paper were cut for the skirts, attached to a candy cane stick with marshmallows added for the face. Pipe cleaners served as arms.

A green thumb glove, made by Mrs. Russell Fitzgerald, was fashioned from a pair of canvas gloves with rick-rack added for decoration and round pieces of colored press-on-tape attached to the thumb. For holiday cookie jars, spray coffee cans with the special glitter glue and apply glitter.

A small centerpiece was originated by Mrs. Edwin Maxwell, who painted a Santa Claus face on the front side of a clear candy dish. A Santa hat was made to fit the top of the dish.

Soap Gift
For a gift of soap, Mrs. Maxwell cut designs from old greeting cards and applied them to the flat side of bars of white soap, by placing her moistened finger on the soap to glue the design. The soap was then dipped in wax.

Another container was made by gluing white cord around a shortening can. Red or green twine may be mixed with the white cord. Then apply shellac, attaching a carrying cord to the top of the can.

Lean Pantry Makes Good Cook, Says Cowboy Star

A lean pantry makes a good homestead to the posh Beverly Hills rural home with swimming pool, where Gene lives, the dapper cowboy television hero, who says good chefs are born of necessity.

Gene learned to create delectable cuisine by peering into near-empty refrigerators during his hash days. It might surprise his multitude of women fans to know that the handsome star of "Bat Masterson" can turn tidbits into gastronomic delights.

"I'm not broke now," he says, "but I still raid the ice box and concoct a terrific goulash or a sensational ragout out of leftovers. My Clams Linguini is a dish to charm a fish."

His favorite culinary achievement, he says, is salmon croquettes, a tasty recipe from his mothers kitchen in Brooklyn, where Gene spent his boyhood.

But pride for father brings problems.

The Barrys' friends have been made through their children.

"Children and dogs can make or break you socially," says Gene.

New Filmy Colors Featured In Gift Lingerie for Miss, Mrs.

Beige, Cocoa
Honey Tones
Most Popular

BY CAROL RICHARDSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Slips, nightgowns and baby-doll sets in filmy tones of beige, cocoa, honey and rich ivory solve the problem of what to give any Miss or Mrs., young or old, on any Christmas gift list.

"Oohs" and "Ahs" are invariably heard from recipients of luxurious lingerie which is also practical because of its wearability and washability. Christmas, 1959, will see the brown tones predominating over the traditional pastel shades which will still remain favorites with many feminine tastes, however.

Dusters, robes and housecoats have assumed an air of luxury. Rich embroidery of a darker shade trims light-colored robes and many white quilted dusters are trimmed with gold or silver metallic threads. Short lengths are more popular than floor-touching robes, which gather and show marpet soil much easier than the short dusters.

Slippers to match—in cozy, comfortable styles or glittery, glamorous footwear, make an excellent companion gift with robes and dusters. Elasticized metallic slippers are especially comfortable, although pretty enough to wear for informal home entertaining. Brocade, lace dotted with gold and quilted styles are also sparkling companions to lovely robes and dusters.

In the warm, fuzzy category, to wear with flannel nightgowns, shirts and baby-doll pajamas, are pastel shearing slippers, slipper socks and furry scuffs.

Tailored Slips
Slim, tailored slips are perfect for wear with holiday sheath dresses and although narrow as an arrow, they are still trimmed with feminine lace and embroidery.

Coordinated lingerie ensembles of full slip, half-slip, bra and panties are luxurious gifts and will certainly give the recipient an elegant holiday feeling when she wears them underneath a cocktail or dance gown. Again the brown tones predominate—and very fashion conscious women like to have their gifts as new and up-to-date as this year's Christmas tree.

The new brown and beige tones are very versatile too—the beiges and deep ivories provide 'neath the scenes contrast, to any number of winter colors and deeper browns harmonize or match brown suits and dresses. Other popular fall and winter lingerie colors include the usual green tones, mauve, violet and purple and smokey gray.

Matching sets of peignoir and nightgown is a luxurious Christmas gift sure to please even the most discriminating name on anybody's list. And the beautiful ensembles are as much fun to select as they are to wear.

White Ensemble
One Fox Cities store features a delicate white set trimmed with wide, gold-beige braid at the yoke of the peignoir and the straps of the short nightgown. A matching set of baby-doll pajamas features the same luxurious trim set off with a wide, cocoa-colored ribbon.

Sturdier sleepwear for very chilly winter evenings, college dormitories and ski resorts is available in gay, printed flannel and soft challis fabrics. Norwegian jacquard patterns are used in ski pajamas which have ribbed cuffs, necklines and waists and a Swiss print fashioning a demure nightshirt featuring challis sleeves edged in lace.

A treader theme is used for pajamas with a brief top covered with flounce ruffles and slim, tapered pants. Shades of pink and blue are still popular with the flannel set and will please many young girls at Christmas time.

Looning costumes and flowing housecoats hint of the luxurious this Christmas season and have been fashioned in shimmering satin and rich-looking brocades. A discriminating hostess would love such a gift—especially from the man in her life.

Velvet Trim

Beige and Brown Tones in filmy, feminine styles are tops for Christmas lingerie gifts this holiday season. At left in the fireplace scene above is a short nightgown with matching peignoir in beautiful white, trimmed with a yoke and ribbons of soft beige. Two paillette roses trim the gown. Center is a shortie gown of deeper brown with a pink under layer and splashes of flowers. A quilted robe is at the right and a complete matching ensemble of baby doll pajamas, half-slip and pants are in the lower right corner.

Leather Gifts are Useful, Luxurious

Wide Variety of Items, Prices Available for Christmas Shopper

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Leather items always make luxurious and useful gifts for men and leather affords a permanence that many gifts like incorporated in their presents.

Leather gifts for Christmas come in a wide range of prices from an expensive set of alligator leather luggage to a shoe horn or shoe brush.

A new type of suitcase which is popular for airplane travel is a bag with its body of a cotton-nylon substance, leather trim and straps and leather top and bottom—casual luggage. The cotton-nylon material is treated to make it scrubbable and moisture-proof.

2 Suiter

The most common set of luggage is one "2-suiter" and a "companion". The "companion" is a smaller suitcase for weekend or overnight trips. Suitcases also come in 3-suiters, 1 - suiters and, of course, duffle bags. The leather duffle, or sport bag, supplements the sets.

A new form of suitcase is the attache case, a small case with squared-off corners for carrying both papers and clothes on an overnight trip. Speaking of newness, a new trend in duffle bags, and in leather shaving bags, is the outside zipper. In the duffle, the outside zipper can be used for carrying dirty clothing.

The new feature in leather billfolds is a tougher and more flexible set of windows. Some wallets are thinner and previously - used gold trim has been taken off of some.

Leather liquor cases are available as well as a combination coffee - liquor travel case which contains a percola-

Bicycle Is Always 'Eye Sparkler' Gift

BY JAMES HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Although it may not get much use until the spring and summer months, a bicycle gift to a boy or girl for Christmas is a sure "eye-sparkler."

In some cases the youngster may already have a bicycle. This opens another avenue of gift buying as many new and conventional accessories to go with the bike are on the market.

Bicycles are of various kinds. There are standard size, junior size and budget style. To make your selection a little wider, manufacturers offer bikes with regular balloon tires or "skinny" tires.

The thin-tired bike is the English style. It is of light weight and designed for speed. It is usually equipped with hand brakes and some have gear shifts for starting or coasting.

Both the regular and English types come in a style for boys or girls. The girls bike will have the center cross bar removed.

Cost of the bike will be dependent on how many accessories or how much chrome you want. Buying a bike will probably be something like the experience of buying a car. There are any number of optionals available.

In accessories, there are items for decorative purposes and others that serve a useful design.

Flashy chrome pieces are available to spruce up the bike appearance. There are articles like crash-bars, similar to those used on motorcycles, which delight younger boys. Other items include smart looking windshields, luggage racks, wheel guards and fender braces.

A speedometer is usually the item the bike is without. They give the proud owner a sense of superiority because they can always tell "how fast they are going" or "how far they went."

Future Design

Speedometers come with the future design that space travel depicts. They undoubtedly will be a big favorite with the youngsters of today.

Useful items which youngsters like to have on their bicycles include baskets for the front or the dual set which fits on either side of the rear wheel, saddle bags, a kick stand, head or tail lights, bell, horn or new brakes. One modern feature is a small radio which mounts in the center panel. An aerial goes with it and such luxury is a sure hit with any bike owner.

Manufacturers are constantly coming out with new innovations in accessories and this Christmas season is no exception. There will be many things to select from for the bike-loving youngsters.

Final Judgment Made in Estate Of Neenah Man

Oshkosh — Final judgment in the estate of Robert E. Cass, Neenah, who died Dec. 5, 1958, was made by County Judge Herbert J. Mueller Tuesday. The estate, totaling $26,643, was left to his widow, Bernadine, 320 Bellin, Neenah.

A petition for probate in the estate of Richard A. Wolterding, route 1, Neenah, who died Nov. 11, was filed Tuesday. The estate estimated at $10,000 in personal property and $30,000 in joint property was left to the widow, Dorothy E. Wolterding, a daughter Barbara, and a son Douglas, all of route 1, Neenah.

Drivers Forfeit in Menasha Police Court

Menasha — Mrs. William E. Tyrivier, 732 First street, forfeited $15 and costs Wednesday on a charge of failure to yield the right-of-way. Police Justice Arthur J. Ales accepted the forfeiture.

She was charged as a result of a 2-car accident at Eighth and Warsaw streets Monday, when Wilbert W. Edwards, 732 Lincoln street, was injured and his car damaged.

James H. DeBruin, 25, 805 Marquette street, Appleton, forfeited $10 and costs Wednesday in Ales court for speeding. He was clocked at 40 m.p.h. on Racine street Monday.

tor, a large - necked thermos in which ice cubes can be carried and shot glasses.

Other items featuring leather include: manicure sets, travel clocks, barometers, playing card - carrying cases, key cases, shoe horns and clothes, hair brush sets, and brief cases.

Most leather gift items can be personalized without extra charge.

The price of leather has increased recently. This is mainly because—according to one local dealer in leather goods—the Russians are outbidding us for South American hides.

Leather is much more durable than its chief competitor, plastic, getting softer when bent rather than breaking, as plastic does.

Zephyrs Tip North 63-56 For 3rd Win

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Milwaukee — After a mediocre first period, St. Mary found the key to success in the second frame and went on to subdue Milwaukee North, 63-56, here Wednesday night.

In chalking up their third triumph, the Menashans moved out of range with a string of 14 straight points in the second period. The North men fought back strong in the second half but couldn't get any closer than six points.

The Menashans found that they could use the pressing defense on their clever ball-handling Vanderhyden and the tactics seemed to disorganize them in the second period. Jerry Laemmrich, Jim Koerner and company rebounded well against the rangy hosts.

Rueckl Injured
St. Mary lost starting Guard Jim Rueckl with a leg injury in the second period. Rueckl, who had six points when he departed with the score 19-18 (North ahead), had been the most consistent Zephyr until that time. His place was adequately filled by Bill Becker.

left to play and North made the difference a final seven by making the game's last eight points.

Scoring Honors
Honors in the balanced attack went to Pete Vanderhyden, who in addition to his 15 points, played a fine floor game. Mike Herlache was next with 13 and Dean Schreiner and Koerner each dropped in nine.

Bill Lawrence paced the Blue Devils with 13. Bill Brooks, the lone regular returnee from last year's state finalist team, added 12. He had four fouls in the first half but played all of the last two periods without getting his fifth.

St. Mary hit 38 per cent from the floor on 23 for 61. From a poor 4 for 17 in the first period, the percentage went up with 8 for 18 in the second and 6 for 12 in the third.

The visitors also were sharp from the free throw line, collecting 17 for 23. North had a weak 6 for 19.

North Leads 12-11
The lead traded hands a couple of times in the first period and North was on the top end of a 12-11 score at its conclusion.

Coach Ralph McClone's athletes were down 19-15, their biggest deficit of the contest, early in the second period when they exploded for seven straight points and after North made a goal, added 14 more in a row. One basket, tossed in by Bill Becker, dropped through as he was falling to the floor on the end of a fast break.

The score was a comfortable 36-21 at halftime. St. Mary abandoned the press in the second half and North stormed back. It got the difference down to eight points at one juncture and the score was 50-40 at the close of three frames.

6-Point Spread
With five minutes left in the contest, North had the margin down to six at 52-46 but a basket and free throw by Herlache, a jump shot by Shreiner and two baskets by Vanderhyden put the hosts out of reach at 61-46.

The loss was the first in non-league play for Coach Vic Anderson in the five or six seasons he has been head coach at North. The Blue Devils bested East Troy in their only other start this fall.

Outside Feeding Of Herds Topic Of Short Course

Oshkosh — With a trend to larger milk cow herds, dry lot feeding in summer as well as winter will become more common, County Agent Vernon W. Peroutky observed.

Efficiency factors in feeding the herd outside and the cleaning of the food lot will be discussed at an open meeting at the Beebag club on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

This is the third in a series of four farmer short course meetings in the area of dairy buildings. William Roper, Middleton, field representative of the Portland Cement association, will assist Ed Bruns with the silo phase of the program. Bruns is a University of Wisconsin agricultural engineer.

Menasha-Kaukauna hasn't won a Mid-Eastern conference football championship in the last nine years but the cushion it has built up through the years still keeps it far in front in the all-time grid rankings.

The Ghosts, who finished with four wins in six games, now have 140-43-11 for a percentage of .750. They dropped .003 from last year.

Menasha, in posting 1-5, dropped .015 to .622 but still manages to hold onto second place while Neenah kept the third spot with another successful campaign of 5-0-1. The Rockets boosted their percentage by .012. The Clintonville tie and a cancellation of the Shawano game kept it from hitting the 100-victory mark. It has 98.

Kimberly posted 3-3 to stay in fourth place, losing only .001, while Shawano, posting its first plus season in seven, boosted its average from .490 to .495. It is two games under the .500 mark.

Menasha — Within a week or so, Fox Valley Catholic conference basketball teams will begin their 1959-60 pennant chase in earnest.

However, Marinette Central and Fremont got the jump on the other four clubs by playing their league inaugural Tuesday night. Marinette scored a 48-44 win.

The next league game will be Dec. 1 when De Pere Pennington is at Fond du Lac. St. Mary plays at St. Joseph Dec. 3 and Little Chute St. John will be the last club to see league action, taking on the Bays on Dec. 10. St. Mary won the championship last year with 10 straight victories after sharing laurels with Fremont the previous season.

This will be the second last year the circuit will have six teams since beginning with the 1961-62 term. Xavier of Appleton and Oshkosh Lourdes will up the roster to eight.

The defending champion Zephyrs have six able-bodied lettermen plus Norm Brown, still on the injury list. Marinette Central still has 2-time scoring champion Bob Pecotte, along with six other monogrammed players and a fine transfer, De Pere Pennington also is well stocked with veterans.

Three new coaches are making their league bows this fall. Clayton Maloney has replaced Ted Fritsch as Pre-montre coach. He formerly handled the jayvees.

Other New Coaches — Marty Crowe has taken over the reigns at Marinette, succeeding Gene Miller, and Don LaViolette, who formerly coached at Springs, is the new Pennington coach, succeeding Pat Wright.

Returning mentors are Ralph McClone, St. Mary; Lou Yugovich, Springs; and Bill Fitzpatrick, St. John. The league has its two highest scorers of last year back for another campaign. Pecotte succeeded himself as the top man last year with St. Norbert's Joe Schmitt second. Ed Hammen of St. John, who was runner-up two years ago as a sophomore, placed 13th in last year's standings.

St. Mary — Graduation took Gary Batley, who ranked fourth in the league scoring, but most of the other punch remains. Returnees and their conference point totals are: Pete Vanderhyden (121), Dean Schreiner (113), Jerry Laemmrich (56), Bill Becker (35), Jim Rueckl (34), Norm Brown (27) and Mike Her-lache (12).

Last year's Zephyr jayvee squad tied for second with a 6-4 record.

Springs — Only two lettermen, both of whom were regulars last year, are listed on the Springs roster. They are Paul Kremer (109) and Mike Keenan (81). Tom Flisch, a high scorer at North Fond du Lac, and Tom Huhn, who saw some action at St. Norbert last year, are transfers.

Last year's jayvee squad had a 3-7 mark and Jim Flisch, its high scorer, has been doing well with the Springs varsity in early season tilts. Graduation took Gary Steinke, Mike Scott and Bill Nuss, all of whom finished in the top 10 scorers.

Springs beat Wayland academy and lost to St. Catherine of Racine and Cedar Grove. St. John — St. John has three returning lettermen, Hammen (116), Andy Ebben (97) and Mike Bongers (69). Biggest graduation loss was Tom Geerts, an all-conference choice and the league's sixth ranking scorer.

At the jayvee level, the Dutchmen closed with a 6-4 record last year. The Chuturs bowed to Wayland in their first non-league start.

Marquette Central — Pecotte scored 239 points in league play last year while other totals included Ken Johnson (51), Bill Early (49), Dick Kiefer (46), Pat Bradley (26), Don Szymik (18) and Bruce Christnagel (16).

In addition, Mike Donovan, reported to be a fine prospect, transferred from a Minnesota school. Last year's jayvees had 2-8. The biggest loss was Don Cook, who scored 120 league points.

Pennington — The Squires (St. Norbert last year) only won one FVCC league game but their jayvee team reversed that record. Returning players include Joe Schmitt (180), Larry Schmitt (77), Rolli Rottier (49), Mark Vander Zanden (38), Paul Helsecamp (29), "Corky" Clumppner (10) and John Heller (4).

Tom Parenteau, the leagues eighth ranking scorer, graduated but there were no other serious losses. The Squires beat Stevens Point Pacelli after losing their opener to Brussels.

Fremont — The Cadets lost their two leading scorers in Bob Brusky and Gary Kroner but three regulars return. They are Daryl De Steffen (82), Scott Dennissen (17) and Mike Roeder (13).

Other lettermen are John Craig (37), Dave Dobesh (20) and John Streau (8). The jayvees had a 4-6 record but furnished two good prospects in Bill Ehlinger and Larry Hermes. In early season games, the Bays beat Sturgeon Bay

St. Mary 'B' Squad Loses To North '5'

Menasha — St. Mary's jayvees were outscored by nine points in the final period and dropped a 41-30 decision to the North division reserves here Wednesday night.

St. Mary had a 7-7 deadlock at the close of the first period and was on the long end of a 15-13 advantage at halftime. The Menashians fell behind 27-25 at the 3-period mark and then were outgunned 14-5 in the last session.

North's Jim Lawrence and Dave Eckholm of the Zephyrs tied for scoring honors with 12 points apiece. Bob Stumpf of St. Mary added nine.

The Zephyrs have two losses to high school teams and an overall 0-3 mark. They meet the Milwaukee St. Benedict reserves Friday night at the Appleton St. Joseph court.

Police, C of C Outline Precautions in Shopping

Neenah — Now that the Christmas holiday shopping season is about to begin Police Chiefs Peter P. Clark of Menasha and Irving Stulp of Neenah today warned local merchants and shoppers to guard against thieves, pickpockets, check forgers and shoplifters.

In cooperation with John G. Konrad, executive secretary of the Neenah — Menasha Chamber of Commerce, the chiefs issued a series of security suggestions designed to aid local merchants in preventing crimes worked against them during the Christmas shopping season.

Many of the crimes perpetrated in the past against business and the public could have been very largely prevented if the sensible precautions which Chiefs Clark and Stulp recommended had been followed, Konrad said.

The precautions jointly suggested by the local police departments and the chamber of commerce are:

Precautions — Do not carry large sums of money and do not display your money unnecessarily.

Announce the denomination of large bills when paying store clerks. Count your change in the presence of the clerk giving change.

Do not lay your handbag on a counter while examining or trying on merchandise. Thieves seek just such opportunities.

Do not carry your handbag in a crowd suspended from your shoulder or wrist. Hold it tightly by the clasp. Men should carry wallets in their left rear pocket, which usually has a button closure.

Be suspicious of jostlers. Those who push in crowded stores or buses may attempt to pick your pocket or purse.

Deal with firms of known reliability or with firms whose reliability can be readily established.

Do not buy merchandise from strangers at your door who give unusual reasons for wanting to sell you something at a fraction of its worth.

Such merchandise may either be misrepresented or stolen property.

If you leave packages in your car while parking to shop, make certain that you put them in your locked trunk where they will be out of sight.

No Notes on Doors — Do not put notes on doors, in letter boxes or in milk bottles announcing your absence from home and time of return. Do not leave your house key under the door mat or any similar place but carry it with you.

Do not advertise your absence by drawing your shades all the way down when you go out in the daytime. Always leave some lights lit in front and rear of your home if you expect to be away after dark. Be certain doors and windows are locked.

If you are going to be away over the holidays, notify the police department of your absence so that they may check your house periodically. Remember to stop all daily deliveries and to have the post-office hold or forward your mail.

Do not accept COD packages for absent neighbors except by special arrangement with them.

On Cold Nights, Few Gifts Surpass Warm, Beautifully-Designed Robe

BY PATRICIA SCHULTZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Wintry winds will whip about the windows a goodly number of nights after Santa has lifted the last parcel from his Christmas pack. With the feminine members of the family in mind for those cold evenings, few gifts will surpass a warm and beautifully designed robe.

For the college girl or young woman who likes a dash of adventure in her "at home" wear, one of the newest robes on the market is an oriental, obi-styled wrapper. One robe fashioned from a pink silken material is belted with a cherry red sash. Every lady in the house, from grandma to the youngest moppet, loves the elegance of fur. Fake mink, fluffy fox and real furs, fitting every budget, form luxurious collars and trim cuffs on some of the most elegant gowns in the robe collection.

False Fur
One manufacturer describes its man-made furred collar gown as "moon yellow." Cut from corduroy, the trench coat style is washable. Acetate and cotton moire give a rustling tone to a full length, flowing robe, designed as though it were meant to enter a ballroom rather than grace a dressing or sitting room.

Waistlines rise and lower robes fasten abundant fullness feature the empire line and some let fullness swing freely in the back and are tightly tied in the front.

The perennial favorite for its easy care, warmth and comfiness, the terry cloth robe, again is in abundant stock with a few new touches. Pink nosebags are sprinkled over white backgrounds, monograms are added to to bed. Buttoned from collar to toe with long, cuffed sleeves, the coat combines warmth and comfort with style.

Miracle Fibers
Miracle fibers have been uncovered that seemingly are light as thistle-down, soft and delicate as spun sugar and will withstand countless launderings.

These fibers have been meticulously tailored into cuddly robes of varying lengths and hues.

Rose, mint or blue stripes give a long line to one of the classically cut lounge robes. Deep pockets are roomy enough to tuck a book or apers in the pocket on the trek

Add Machine to Duplicate Bills At Hospital

Neenah — So many people now need extra copies of their hospital bills for income tax and multiple insurance claims that the Theda Clark Memorial hospital has been forced to buy a special machine to make duplicates.

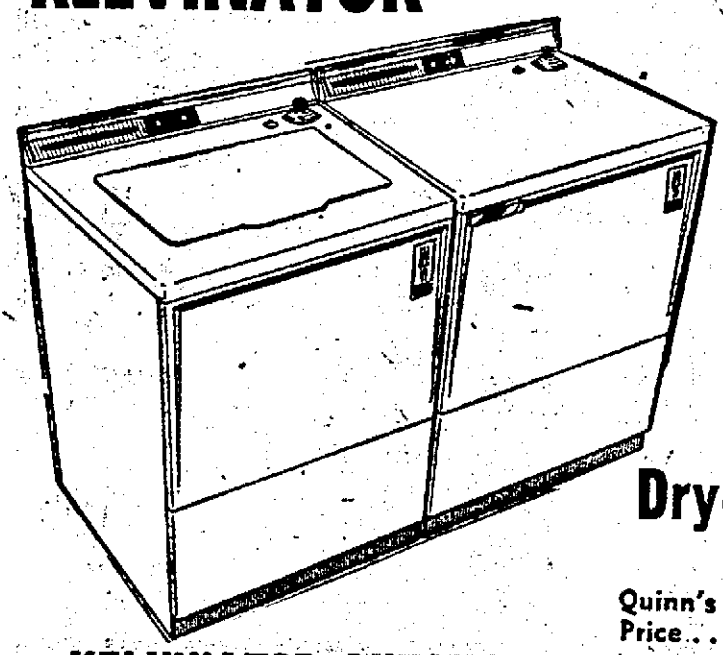

Hospital Administrator Gerald Aldridge said the demand became noticeable over a year ago, and special duplicates were made out by hand when patients needed them, but the requests became so frequent that something greater had to be done.

The hospital considered duplicating all bills on the regular billing machine, but not all patients need the extra copies and the records room is already under considerable strain.

"We didn't want to become engulfed in extra paper, so the duplicating machine, which copies a bill almost instantly, was the answer," Mr. Aldridge said.

Buy as You Use Method Stays Popular

Enables Families
To Get Appliances
They Need Quickly

Having the appliances they need when they need them is made possible for most families by installment buying.

Instead of waiting until all the cash is saved before buying the appliances you need, it makes sense to get them now and "save" the money in installment payments.

In short, that is the principle of all appliance loans: You save your money in durable goods and enjoy the use of them while you get together the cash to pay for them.

May Be a Must
Sometimes the immediate buying of appliances is a must. With a new baby in the house, for example, a washer and dryer are invaluable for a new mother who is taking on the additional work of a baby and needs all the extra time and energy she can get.

There is no formula for determining how much of a family's income can be spent on monthly payment plans. However, it is known that middle income families average about 13 per cent of take home pay for this purpose.

Even if you have cash on hand, there may still be good reason to buy on installment. You can keep your savings intact, and regular installment payments discipline you against frittering away your income on unnecessary items. You may not need credit or want to buy on time. Still, there are important reasons why you should establish a good credit record for yourself. Obtaining a mortgage on a house is an example.

Good Record Helpful
Your application can be expedited if a past payment record proves you are a good credit risk. If no such previous record is available, it is much harder to judge character and capacity to meet obligations.

If you're wondering how installment credit buying affects the saving habit, a special study of consumer installment buying by the Federal Reserve board reveals that: "Consumers' desire to save and the importance they attached to the accumulation of savings were not impaired by their extensive use of installment buying."

Outdoor Wool Sweater Has Man-Appeal

Zip-Front Cardigan
One of Most Popular
On Market Today

The best gift compliment you can pay to his rugged manhood this Christmas is a sturdy and lively outdoor wool sweater. He doesn't have to be a ski pro or fancy figure-eighter to find an excuse for wearing it and enjoying the ego boost of its soul-warming colors and man-of-action appearance.

One of the newest favorites is the zip-front cardigan, performing as a dress-in-a-flash jacket for practically every casual occasion, worn or zipped up to a throat-warming turtleneck. Supple easy-fitting wool pullovers feature semi-shawl collars or classic crew necklines. Broad panels or colorful patterns cut a swath across the chest or down the front with an heroic muscle-man effect. Matching woolknit caps are for fun and shows as well as warmth.

Some of the points of appeal that guarantee your wool sweater gift will ring the gong with him are: 1. Status appeal — a sweater of all-American wool has that look of top quality that tells volumes. 2. Eye appeal — rich colors, texture and imaginative design are a spirit-lifting contrast to the conventional male workaday garb. 3. Wear appeal — so comfortable and relaxing, the flexible wool fiber offering complete freedom of movement. 4. Practical appeal — durable wool wears like iron, and washes in a whisk with the new cold water soaps. 5. He appeal — it's all man.

And the final clincher — men themselves have given the word that they prefer wool sweaters, as revealed in a recent Christmas gift survey in which they listed them as first choice. Never can have enough of them was the consensus.

Auction Successful, Costs Church Money

Cockeysville, Md. — (AP) — Business was really brisk at a church auction in the community health center. The auctioneer not only sold the old lamps and other objects donated by church members, she accidentally disposed of a box of toys left there for children visiting the center to play with.

Church members are now raising a special fund to replace the toys — probably at retail, instead of auction, prices.

Toys Keeping Pace With Changing Times

Associated Press Women's Editor

Modern-minded Santa is all set for the 1960s, with toys that mirror every facet of contemporary living, from shooting the moon to raising babies.

No matter how breath-taking the advances of modern science, children take them in stride, says Mel Freud, president of Toy Guidance Council. Small fry accept as routine the conquering of outer space, peaceful uses of the atom and all the other wonders of our jet age. As a matter of fact, nostalgic toys inspired by our historic past are just as popular as those of the space age this year. Antique automobiles and wild west paraphernalia are top of the 1959 toy pack. Model sports car kits are favorites with small boys, and little girls are taking up embroidery.

Up-To-The-Minute
Housekeeping in toyland is strictly up-to-the-minute, with models of the last word in all kitchen appliances, with electric dishwashers, washing machines and dryers that really work.

Playroom highways this year will have trucks designed to carry half-a-dozen motor boats, and a special vehicle for transporting horses, in addition to the more familiar wheel toys.

Carer-keyed toys include a drive-in movie theater and a printing press that prints in color. The junior builder gets the benefit of short-cut panel building to construct an apartment house or shopping center.

New, Old Trains
New in electric trains are replicas of frontier styles of the old west, as well as models of the latest streamliners. Plastic mosaic pieces provide the base for a new hobby kit. Another provides the materials for making bead flowers.

As to dolls—they are present in force and infinite variety, from almost-human baby dolls to fashionable teen-age types complete with high-style wardrobes.

Table Lamps Available in Many Designs

Range From Stark, Modern to Ornate, Hand-Carved Bases

Light, a word symbolic of the Christmas season, can be transferred to a handsome gift in the form of a lamp, the decorative accessory for almost anyone on the yuletide list.

Table lamps range from stark, modern designs to ornate, hand-carved bases. Many skillfully-crafted bases with simple, uncluttered lines will fit suitably into the decor scheme of any home.

Thursday, Nov. 26, 1959 Appleton Post-Crescent C11

or well polished silver, eighteenth century white glass and brass combinations and antiqued finishes may well convert gifts into treasured articles to be handed from mother to daughter to grandchild.

Lampshade Hues
Sophisticated colors of bitter green, black and white, soft muted shadings and the perennial favored white are among the hues for lampshades, contrasting and emphasizing colored glass bases.

For the do-it-yourself fan who wants to add a personal touch to holiday gifts, interesting-shaped bottles, baskets, driftwood, jugs and other containers can serve as the base. Forms for the lampshade can be purchased, with an abundance of fabrics available for the covering.

Some knowledge of the furnishings of the room the lamp

Color, Charm
While lamps are designed primarily to give good lighting, they also bring both color and charm to a room. Japanese designed lamps mix beautifully with modern woods. Lamp bases made of jugs and bottles often blend with the decor in a formal living room. Delicate china lamps can offset large, heavy pieces of furniture.

For the "pride and joy" of new parents, nursery lamps in pastel hues of pink, blue, green and yellow are decorated with miniature figurines of comic strip characters on the base. Pin-up lamps in the form of Mickey Mouse, western heroes and spacemen are available for the bedrooms of the grade school set.

Brillion Council Studies Church Plans Library Board Change

All Organization Policy Would Come Under Mayor Appointed Unit

Brillion — Members of the new library board will have exclusive control of all monies collected for library purposes. All land, property and buildings also will be under control of the board. A librarian will be appointed by the board as well as hire lecturers from the University of Wisconsin and State Historical society.

The Woman's club organized the library 30 years ago. A bequest from the late Miss Johanna Schwartz made book purchases possible the last several years.

If the ordinance is passed, the measure would provide for a board of six appointed by the mayor with city council approval. Terms of office would run two and three years.

City Disallows Tree Claim

John Haun Asked Damages at Brillion For Street Cutting

Brillion — A claim for trees removed during the Main street widening project submitted to the city council by John Haun was disallowed.

Haun felt he had damages due him because trees cut down on his property were not in the way of the project, he said. Haun had offered to re-plant the trees if they were in the way.

However, while he was out of town, the trees were cut down, he claimed.

Crossbuck sign posts at the Chicago and North Western track crossing will be replaced with steel pipe in the near future, F. C. Hajek, roadmaster, told the council.

Rotary Club at New London Has Talk on Resins

New London — The use of resins in gluing wood to make strong structures was explained to the Rotary club by Robert Hamre, Madison, a representative of Forest Products Laboratory.

Hamre showed samples of sliced wood pieces built into a veneer panel form for strength and ground up wood that was glued and pressed together to make panels out of the shavings which normally would have been waste.

He also explained the gluing process is used in making large beams to support roofs of auditoriums and gymnasiums in school buildings.

The club voted to approve a request of the Lincoln-McKinley school PTA to supply part of the equipment needed for the women serving as volunteer school safety patrolers. The request was presented by Henry Miles, Sr., president of the police and fire commission.

Robert Zaig spoke to the club on supporting the industrial promotion organizations here.

Services at the Manawa Methodist church will be 10:30 a.m. with Rev. Norman Lawton.

St. Mark Lutheran church will have services at 10:30 a.m. Sunday with the Rev. Louis Winter.

Masses at St. Patrick Catholic church, Lebanon, will be 6 and 8:30 a.m. Sunday, the Rev. Edward Kilsdonk said.

Brillion Tax Cut by Hike In Assessment

Brillion — An increase of $217,475 in the assessed valuation has helped the city to reduce its tax rate despite an increase of $2,206 in the levy. The 1960 tax rate is $21.28 per $1,000 to raise $172,902 compared with the rate of $21.59 this year that raised $170,696.

Next year the city will need $37,491 in taxes, the schools $77,841, the county $35,845 and the state $1,725.

The assessed value of the city is $8,123,725. Last year the value was $7,906,250.

Study Club to Improve Park

New London — The New London Woman's Study club voted to improve Taft park facilities by planting trees and providing park benches during a meeting at the home of Mrs. W. D. Schlafer, Dickinson street.

Christmas home decorations were displayed and exhibited by Mrs. Simon Jennings and Theodore Knapstein. Mrs. Frank Jennings was the co-hostess.

Next meeting of the club will be a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Gordon Meiklejohn, Jr., Wyma street, Mrs. Richard Dorsey will be co-hostess. Gifts will be exchanged.

Prisoners on Side Of Law in Florida

Tallahassee, Fla. — A convict trying to escape from prison road gangs in Florida have to outrun fellow inmates as well as prison guards.

Every man in a road gang is given 18 days off their sentences for every 6-month period in which there are no escapes.

After one recent escape, Pompano Beach Prison Warden J. J. Albritton said he thought one escapee "would have gotten hurt if he'd come back here." Other inmates, the warden said, were furious.

In another camp recently, a road gang member broke to run, but other prisoners collared him before he got far.

Skin Divers From Appleton, Green Bay and Kaukauna vainly probed under the ice of the Wolf river at New London Wednesday for the body of Gregory Fischer, 3, missing since last Thursday. Another diving try will be made Friday.

Operate in Freezing Weather

Skin Divers Probing Under Ice of Wolf Fail to Find New London Boy

BY RICHARD McDANIEL Post-Crescent Staff Writer

New London — Although the Wolf river failed to give up the body of Gregory Fischer, 3, who has been missing since Thursday afternoon from his home on the bank of the river, it was not because of the lack of enthusiasm of 12 skin divers who braved the icy waters Wednesday in an extensive search of the bottom of the river.

The divers, from Green Bay, Appleton and Kaukauna, volunteered their time and equipment to take part in the hazardous under-ice search.

All of the elements were opposed to the operations and the divers met the handicaps with courage and stamina to win the praise of all local volunteers who gathered along the river bank to assist them.

The ice and the current of the river were the two main obstacles. Divers submerged in places free from ice and swam into the current of the river, estimated at about three miles per hour, and gradually worked out toward the center of the river.

Worked in Pairs The divers worked in pairs. They were tied together by a short piece of rope on their wrists and this rope was connected to a life line to the shore where New London volunteers tended the lines.

There were times when the divers would be under the ice for 15 or 20 minutes at a time, giving the volunteers on shore ample time to worry about their welfare.

Signals were arranged between the divers and the men working the life lines, but the signals were more for emergency use and there were long periods of time when the men on shore felt little or no activity on the long ropes. These were the periods when the divers were searching through fallen trees in the bottom of the river.

The temperature of the water also hampered the operations. Some of the divers emerged from the river without the use of their hands which were nearly frozen. Two of the divers were forced to quit the operations when their water-tight suits developed leaks.

Freeze Regulator

The cold air also added to the hazards as the oxygen regulators were in danger of freezing whenever the divers left the river.

While some of the men on shore were not dressed to withstand the rigors of the operations, all showed their appreciation to the divers by doing whatever they could to help them.

Some had towels for the divers to dry their faces when they came out of the water into the freezing air. Others gave them lit cigarettes as the swimmers hands were too numb to handle them.

Some took off their gloves and mittens and put them on the divers when they came out of the water.

Helped Divers All helped the divers take off their equipment and ushered them into cars that were kept running to give the divers a warm place to rest.

Sheriff Artley Skenandore, Green Bay, and one of his assistants, Wayne Trutman, brought a large steel boat from Green Bay to use to help break up the ice on the river. Most of the ice, however, was too thick for the boat, although in many places the ice was not strong enough to support the weight of a man.

Other operations also were being conducted while the divers were under the ice. Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin reported a group of volunteers starting breaking up the ice above the two nets that have been stretched across the river in an effort to catch the body if it floated downstream.

Chief Macklin also pointed out that the diving operations will be continued today on a smaller scale and a major skin diving effort will be held Friday and Saturday when the volunteers will return to help in the search for the little boy.

Super Stocking Stuffer

New Cookbook Sure to Please Homemakers

When Santa stuffs a cook's stocking this Christmas he might well put a thick paper back in it. "The James Beard Cookbook" (Dell).

Jim Beard has eaten and cooked his way around the world; he knows just which international recipes will most please Americans, and which of Uncle Sam's old favorites should go into present-day kitchen repertoires. Cooks will find these dishes practical and delicious.

Inspired by Daughter

A series of letters to young housewives precede the recipes in "Cook, My Darling Daughter" by Mildred O. Knopf (Knopf) because this book was inspired by the author's married daughter.

Any cook who is delighted by Mrs. Knopf's previous "The Perfect Hostess" will be even happier with this latest compilation of recipes for all the courses of a meal.

These rules are ones that were enjoyed by a family of discriminating taste and are written with clarity so that other families may benefit.

'Diner's Club'

Travelers who want to duplicate certain dishes tasted in American restaurants should be happy with "The Diner's Club Cookbook" by Myra Waldo (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy).

After gathering the recipes from wide sources, the author put them in good form so they could be duplicated successfully. Her book should be of particular help in planning meals for guests, to be entertained at home.

"Blueberry Hill Cookbook" by Elsie Masterton (Crowell) is an inviting homespun collection of recipes.

The author is the same Elsie who some years ago went with her husband John to Vermont to open a ski area, then found snow could not be relied upon to appear. So Elsie learned to cook and opened a summer inn and dinner place. Those who came to eat asked for recipes; now Elsie gives them.

Here is a friendly book, with the sort of comments one interested cook likes to hear from another and with hints on serving.

For Teenagers

Teenage cooks might like to have "A Baker's Holiday" by Robert E. Koran (Vantage). It's a small book of recipes for cakes, pies and desserts, cookies and sweet breads—all of them created and tested by the 18-year-old author who several years ago was a junior prize-winner in a country-wide cooking contest.

Squirrels Vicious

Richmond, Va. — There is a trap baited with peanuts on the back porch of Mrs. T. Byrnes Barry. And when Mrs. Barry goes to hang out the clothes she is armed with a broom. She is profiting by experience after being attacked in the back yard by a squirrel.

This is an Architect's sketch of the proposed $800,000 men's dormitory on the Lawrence campus. Construction is expected to begin in late spring or summer. The structure will be erected on the north side of College avenue between Union and Lawe streets.

Lawe-College Location

$800,000 Dormitory Planned for Lawrence

A new men's dormitory for 167 students, costing $800,000 exclusive of furnishings, has been approved by the Lawrence college board of trustees.

It is expected that construction will start in late spring or summer of 1960, pending approval of a government financing loan. The government has accepted the Lawrence application, the major step in the negotiations.

The building, designed by college architects Frank C. Shattuck and M. F. Siewert and Associates, will be on the north side of College avenue, between Union and Lawe streets, and will replace three aging frame buildings, Peabody, North and Lawrence houses, currently being used for men. Several years ago a frame building on the corner of Lawe and College avenue was razed to prepare part of the site. This spring a second body, the old Hamar union house, will follow.

The new dormitory will stand three stories in front and four in back. It will occupy 391,600 cubic feet and contain, in addition to public areas, 37 single rooms and 63 doubles.

Since most of the residents will take their meals in fraternity houses, there will be no dining room, and lounge areas have been cut to a minimum. The pale blue living room will measure 26 by 17 feet, with a glass south wall, and a wood-paneled west fireplace wall. A larger recreation room in the basement will be big enough to accommodate all the residents for house meetings.

Grillwork Wall from College avenue will be distinguished by a terra cotta grillwork wall, to diffuse the light into the main lobby.

Other public rooms on the first floor will include a study room, a suite for the house-mother, three guest rooms and a reception foyer.

The average single room is 9 by 16 feet, while the average double is 12 by 16. There will be built-in desks, and storage chests built into closets instead of free-standing furniture. The walls will be painted concrete block. Shower, towel and central washrooms will be placed in the center of each floor.

Bicycle Room The basement will contain a complete laundry with washers and dryers, a food dispensing room, trunk storage, a bicycle and ski room with separate ramp entrance and a 51-by-24-foot recreation room with fireplace.

Exterior will be tan brick, similar to Colman hall and the Music-Drama center, the campus' newest buildings.

In addition to replacing the three remaining frame dormitories on the campus, the new hall will relieve overcrowding in the fraternity quadrangle, where basement rooms presently are being used by students.

Thursday, Nov. 26, 1959 Appleton Post-Crescent C13

This is the fourth major building project during the administration of President Douglas M. Knight. In his seven years at Lawrence, he supervised building Lucinda Darling Colman residence hall for women at a cost of more than $985,000; a sixth quadrangle house for $173,000 and the Music-Drama center for $1,400,000.

Chickens Indirectly Cause Him Trouble

Casstown, Ohio — Carl Kirk's trouble is tied indirectly to his neighbor's chickens. The chickens run loose through a number of neighborhood streets, Kirk told sheriff's deputies, but he doesn't much mind that. It's the bullet holes in his garage from other neighbors' shooting at the wayward chickens.

Post Office Prepares for Mailing Rush

Need Space for Handling Packages, Postmaster Says

Preparations for the Christmas mailing rush already are well underway at the Appleton Post Office. Forty additional pigeon-hole racks and tables will be set up to facilitate routing to primary and secondary delivery areas. Plans have been made for delivering "out-of-town" and "local" mailing labels with regular mail deliveries beginning Dec. 1.

Arrangements have also been made for 12 army and national guard vehicles to deliver packages. This will bring the total vehicles in use to 23.

Applications for jobs at the post office for the Dec. 7 to Dec. 24 rush period are open, but there already are 110 applicants for 135 jobs. Interested workers may apply at the post office. Preference for employees is given to disabled veterans, veterans, and unemployed persons, in that order. College students are classified as unemployed persons.

The Appleton post office also is looking for extra space for handling parcels. It needs 2,000 to 3,000 square feet, and warehouse space would be ideal, Summich said.

The post office will be open on Dec. 5, 12 and 19 for a full day instead of the usual Saturday hours, and mail will be delivered twice a day and Sunday when necessary, he said.

List Skating Hours for Brown County Arena

Special holiday public skating hours have been announced at the Brown County Veterans Memorial arena in Green Bay.

Today the arena ice will be open to the public from 3 to 5 p.m., and from 8.15 to 10.15 p.m., in a special evening session.

Friday's schedule will be the same as Thursday's, except there will be no morning skating. One session is scheduled for this Saturday, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Because of a hockey game, there will be no public skating on Sunday. The rink can handle more than 700 skaters at one time without crowding. Special coat racks and dressing areas have been provided. Prices are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Makes Conversation

Conversation piece for host or hostess is cigarette box that holds six packs in regular and king sizes, from which guests may choose.

People Who Mail Their Christmas cards and packages early won't get caught in crowds like this. Appleton Postmaster Francis Summich estimates the mailing-rush will begin Monday, Dec. 14, but says receipts already are up 6 per cent. Lines often stretch to the front door of the lobby during busy times.

Basic Best

Here's a List of 50 Stereophonic Records for a Music Library Start

Any record library needs a base or a starting point. There are a great many lists of what records make up the backbone of a music library and this is one of them.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Occasion Hairdo

To look especially delicious of a festive evening, swoop up your locks — high, high, high, like a meringue. It is easily done, even though the hair is quite short.

In short hair, the transformation is made this way: Dampen the head with setting lotion and comb it through. Working for height over the brow, smoothly comb the hair up and back from the face; pin curl or wave the back hair. When the lotion dries, dress the hair with a brush. Then secure the arrangement with swishes of hair spray.

For longer hair, the switch is to the top of the head. Simply apply pomade, brush the hair up all around, and secure it on the crown with an elasticized band. Arrange the ends in a pouf. Then pin and spray.

In dressing either style, try to eliminate bangs or fringes by weaving them into the body of the hair. Should this prove impossible, flat-curl escaping tendrils.

A devotee of convertible hair-do's would find her solution in a pin-on topknot of real or synthetic hair. That way, you can achieve numerous variations, night and day.

Expect to Put Masterpieces on Public Exhibit

Beverly Hills, Calif. — Paintings which an Italian art specialist says are Renaissance masterpieces worth $8 to $10 million will go on public exhibit soon.

Some art authorities have expressed scepticism on the value given the paintings by Amadore Porcella of Italy, pending examination of the pictures by other experts.

Attorneys for the owners and their agents said Tuesday night that differences among them are about smoothed over.

In a few days, they said, the 10 paintings found in possession of Alfonso Folio, Italian immigrant, will become available for inspection by qualified art experts and the public.

Boy Scouts, Friends Offer to Pick Corn

Richmond, Va. — When Policeman J. Waverly Applewhite wounded himself with a pistol while target practicing, his greatest worry was about six acres of corn ready for harvest.

A Boy Scout troop offered to pick it on a Saturday. A man offered a tractor and farm wagon and a member of Chesterfield county's board of supervisors brought over a mechanical corn picker.

Housewife, President Share the Same View

Atlanta — How does it feel to cruise around in the car President Eisenhower uses on his visit to Georgia? "Things look the same outside from this car as they do from ours," was the reaction of Mrs. Sandy Orowski, who recently took her first limousine trip — in the presidential car.

The ride for Mrs. Orowski, an engineer's wife, was arranged by a newspaperwoman through a motor company publicity man. With a reporter as chauffeur and the newspaperwoman for company in the back seat, Mrs. Orowski stepped into the black air conditioned car at her home in nearby Sandy Springs.

The first place she wanted to go was to school to pick up her 12-year-old son, Stanley. The gadget-loaded car caused a near riot as his classmates sought a closer look at the shiny auto.

"Ha! You didn't believe me when I said it was coming for me, did you?" Stanley gloated at a chum.

"Aw, nuts," replied the classmate as Stanley hopped in the car, "thought you said the president was coming for you."

The $6,500 auto purred to a stop at another school to pick

Stuffed Deer Shot 29 Times

Idaho Falls, Idaho — There are two types of sportsmen in the woods near here. One hunts deer and the other watches hunters hunting deer.

A stuffed deer turned up in the woods and residents began going to the area to watch determined hunters sneak up and blast at it with rifles; sneak a bit closer and fire again; then creep up close enough to discover the joke.

One angry hunter rammed his car into the stuffed deer after bullets failed to bring it down.

But the "deer" was still standing there yesterday—punctured by 29 bullet holes.

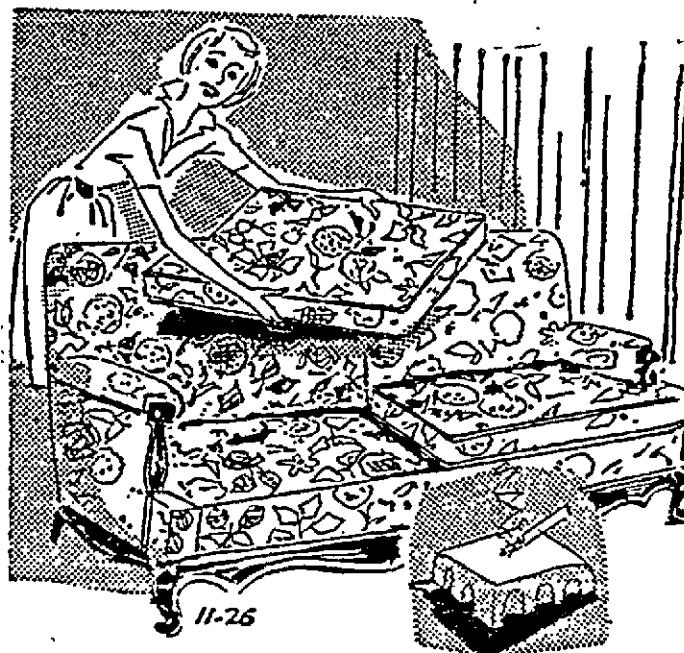

Not Drunken Driver, Just Sociable Accident

Toledo, Ohio — William Bennett, 37, won acquittal on a drunk driving charge with this explanation to Municipal Judge Frank D. Wiley:

After he was involved, cold sober, in a 2-car collision, he went into a nearby tavern to talk to the other driver, got along so well that they drank for 45 minutes before phoning police.

Furniture Filling Fights Fire

Fire resistance is another quality that recommends Vinylfoam for upholstered furniture—in addition to its economy for deep cushion seating, ability to keep its shape and imperviousness to cleaning fluids, moths, mold and mildew. In recent tests made for furniture manufacturer Vinylfoam extinguished itself in 74 seconds after the direct application of the intense flame of a bunsen burner. And if that bunsen burner couldn't stand rugged wear and uses start anything, it certainly looks as if a lighted cigarette abandoned on a chair or sofa becomes less of a hazard, as this new material is finding its way into much new furniture. Complete cushions are molded of Vinylfoam, in shapes that gently round edges for the new softer look in furniture styling, and the foam also is used for the covering of backs and arms. The sleeper sofa sketched is good example of the piece of furniture that's designed to withstand rugged wear and uses Vinylfoam to do it—although there's no more outward ap-

Cost Too High To De-Salt Lake

Salt Lake City — Utah's Great Salt Lake cannot be considered a possible fresh water resource at present because of the high cost of desalting, says Gov. George D. Clyde.

Clyde told the U.S. senate subcommittee on water resources Tuesday that the cost of desalting ocean water with only 8 per cent salt content has been figured at $1.20 per thousand gallons.

He said Utah's 2,000 square mile lake has a salt density of about 23 per cent, second only to the Dead Sea.

The salt is so thick in the Utah lake swimmers cannot sink.

Clyde said, however, the federal government and the states should make greater efforts to utilize the water which now waste into Great Salt Lake.

Social Security

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Are all household workers covered by social security?

A. Household workers are covered by social security only if they are paid cash wages of $50.00 or more in a calendar quarter by the same employer.

Q. How can I be sure my earnings have been properly credited to my social security account?

A. Contact your nearest social security district office and tell them you want to check your earnings record. You will be furnished a special postcard with which you can request a statement of earnings. When the statement comes in the mail, check it carefully against your own records. If you believe that there are any errors, take the statement and your records to your social security office.

Q. Is it necessary for me to check my earnings record with social security?

A. It's good business to verify that your earnings have been properly credited to your account just as you make sure you receive credit for your bank deposits and insurance premiums.

The social security administration office is in the courthouse annex, 401 S. Elm street, Appleton.

Succulents Root Easily, Baby Plants May be Potted Singly

By Katherine B. Walker

Succulents are among the easiest of all plants to propagate, with assurance that the cuttings will root and flourish.

Many times, as with some of the kalanchoes (notably, K. tubiflora, K. daigremontiana, and the cross between these two), tiny plantlets form along the leaf edges, to fall of their own weight and take root. Another of the very easiest to propagate is K. pinnata, sometimes called Magic Leaf or Air plant because a leaf pinned to a curtain or window frame will form little plants with roots at each leaf notch as it begins to shrivel. As soon as these are of a convenient size to handle, they should be cut off with a small portion of the parent leaf attached, and potted individually. (These leaves are sometimes sold as novelties. If you are unable to find them, send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope for the name and address of a mail-order source for them.)

Many succulents, like the well-known Hen-and-Chickens, will send out baby plants that may be separated and potted singly. Others, like some of the trailing sedums, will form roots wherever the stems are in contact with the soil, and these stems may be cut into sections to establish new plants. Still others, for example the aconiums may drop single leaves that will soon root and start new plants without help.

If you are planning to propagate succulents by more conventional means, by leaf sections of leaf cuttings or tip cuttings, allow the plant parts to dry for a week or more before inserting them in either sand or ordinary garden soil. This curing period is very important. Without it, cuttings will be more apt to rot than root. Remember how successful you were with geranium cuttings after you allowed them to callus on the cut ends? It is equally important to let succulent cuttings dry just as thoroughly.

By the way, if you plan to cut a sansevieria leaf into several sections, be sure to keep the upper part of the cutting upright when inserting it into your rooting medium. Upside down planting of these leaf sections is seldom successful.

Questions and Answers
Will the lady who wrote last summer inquiring about where strawberry-jars might be purchased, please write again? You sent a postage stamp, but no address, and we have been waiting to hear from you again.

Could you please do a column on plants with names having religious significance, like Angel Wing begonia, Jacob's Coat, Moses-in-the-Bushes, etc?

I doubt that a column listing the common and proper names of a variety of plants would mean much to the average reader. However, Roehr's Exotica has a fairly complete listing of plants by their common names, and if you consult it (at your public library) I'm sure you will find a number of the plants in which you are interested.

What makes fuchsias and impatiens drop their buds before they open into flowers? I buy plants with some buds and some open flowers, and within a few days all the buds drop off.

Usually, bud-drop is a result of too little water at the roots, or too little moisture in the air. In addition to giving these plants ample water, spray the tops with plain water once a day, and keep the pots set on pebble-trays.

Please write an article on how to root different kinds of house plants. I've got your little printed sheets on geraniums and poinsettias and African violets, and have had fine success following your directions. But how can I take cuttings of philodendrons and jasmine and caladiums?

One question like this would require a whole book to answer it completely. Therefore, may I suggest you consult one of the many fine books on propagation, many which are probably at your local library? Or send for our new book list, the revised 1960 one, for the address where the Brooklyn Botanic Garden handbook on propagation may be obtained. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

My wax begonias, bloomed fine all summer, outdoors, but now they aren't doing so well. The flower bed was well fertilized with cow-mano, and I used that soil to pot them in.

If wax begonias are given rich soil, they must also be given lots of sun and not too much water. Fertilizer often makes them develop lush foliage at the expense of flowers, but they can use it only if it is absorbed with the water they take in through their roots, so keep them on the dry side.

Katherine Walker will be glad to answer questions pertaining to house plants, but regrets she will be unable to answer those dealing with outdoor varieties. In writing her, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Pre-Teens Get Early Foothold on Fashion

Pre-teen girls—from 10 to 13—need no longer wish they were in their sister's shoes. A new category of smartly styled leather shoes has been created for what used to be called the awkward age.

The new shoe styles are specially constructed for the in-between girl who is still a child physically but is beginning to develop the tastes of her more sophisticated seniors.

Pre-teen shoes range in size from about -3 to 7½ in most stores. Teen styles generally go as high as size 10.

Because active, growing feet still need extra support and protection, pre-teen shoes have sturdy, relatively hard but flexible leather soles and moderately tapered plain or moc toes. Also, trim leathers soled saddle oxfords in subtle gray or green suede with a smooth saddle in a slightly darker shade of the body color.

For her first dress-up pump, the pre-teen can wear a firmly constructed leather slip-on set on a 1-inch heel—with vamp strap or a narrow detachable instep strap. Other dressy shoes in gleaming black or colored patent leather, glazed kids lustered calf or velvety suede leathers, feature fancy T-straps, pearl or rhinestone trim, and miniature buckles or bows at the vamp.

Basic Rule on Various Suit Breaks Important

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
U.S. Masters Team Champion

You needn't remember exact figures for various suit breaks. Just remember this basic rule: When the opponents hold an even number of cards, the odds are against the best possible break; when they hold an odd number of cards, the odds favor the best possible break.

East cleverly finessed the nine of clubs at the first trick, and South won with the king.

How to proceed?

break 4-3, South could afford to give up the ace of hearts and three clubs tricks. The alternative was to try for five diamond tricks.

South couldn't rely on the opening lead to show a 4-card suit because West was known to be a crafty cove who often led fifth-best just to deceive a trusting opponent.

Calculations
Declarer calculated the chance of a 4-3 club break, of a 3-3 diamond break, and then added the possibility of dropping a doubleton jack of diamonds. Somewhere he added his wife's age to one of the figures and came up with the wrong answer.

South went after the diamonds and lost a cold game. The opponents eventually got the ace of hearts, three clubs, and the jack of diamonds. The basic rule would solve South's problem. The opponents held six diamonds, an even number, so the odds were against a 3-3 break. They held seven clubs, an odd number, so the odds favored a 4-3 break.

What about the doubleton jack of diamonds? After winning the first trick with the king of clubs South should cash the ace and king of diamonds to see if the jack drops. If it does, he can run the diamonds; otherwise he switches at once to the 10 of hearts.

Hands of this sort may take a bit of horse sense, but you don't need a slide rule any more than you need a horse.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S-4 3 2, H-10 7, D-K Q 10 7 2, C-K 8 2. What do you say?
Answer: Bid one diamond. You can afford to show your suit at the level of one. If partner opened with one spade or one heart you would not be strong enough to show the diamonds. A response at the level of two shows a better hand - usually at least 10 points. (Copyright 1959)

Ex Wife Making Life Hectic, Miserable for Married Couple

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I, married a divorced man. His former wife is making my life miserable.

First, I am not jealous. I'm sure my husband no longer cares for her. The trouble is she recently launched a campaign to get in good Ann Landers with my in-laws and is succeeding.

Whenever we go to my mother-in-law's home she is there. She has sugared up my sister-in-law and gets herself invited to dinners at her place. My husband's brother's wife includes her in family parties as if she is still a member.

Last week she had the nerve to call me and ask how

Ed and I were getting to his cousin's funeral. She wanted a ride. I told Ed and he was furious. He phoned her back and suggested she hire a taxi.

Twice since our marriage she has had Ed in court trying to get more alimony. We don't want to be in this woman's company, yet she is likely to turn up at any family affair. What do you suggest?

— Sylvia
Dear Sylvia: If your husband's family are such insensitive clods that they don't know better, they should be told — by him. He ought to explain he has no desire to dictate with whom they should socialize; but please exclude the two of you when his former wife is invited.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There is quite a lot of flap around our campus about cramping for exams "the easy way." Several kids say they've had good results with the night-time tape recorder process. I'm sure you've heard of this advanced method of learning — playing a tape recorder during sleep.

The theory, of course, is that the subconscious mind picks up the information. In this age of scientific progress with so much to learn in school, we students are looking for anything that will make the learning process easier. The institutions of higher learning have so burdened us students with work that there's hardly time for anything else.

Do you approve of this academic short cut? — No Phi Beta Kappa
Dear No: My heart aches for you poor overworked students who hardly have time for "anything else." But the tape recording method of learning while you sleep does not work in the way you seem to think.

Information heard during sleep merely familiarizes you with the material. This isn't the same as learning it.

So, for the time being, you poor abused slaves are going to have to use the antiquated method of staying up and studying which probably means cutting down coffee dates to four nights a week.

DEAR ANN: We moved to this awful dump two months ago because my dad got a good price for our nice home. I am ashamed of this terrible place and don't want to bring any of my friends here. I am afraid they will lose respect for me if they see the kind of place I live in. A certain boy has been asking me for dates. Shall I meet him at the movie? Maybe if he gets real sweet on me he could take the shock of this house. Please help. — Living in a dump
Dear Living: If the house would turn your friends against you they aren't worth much. Invite people over and make no apologies.

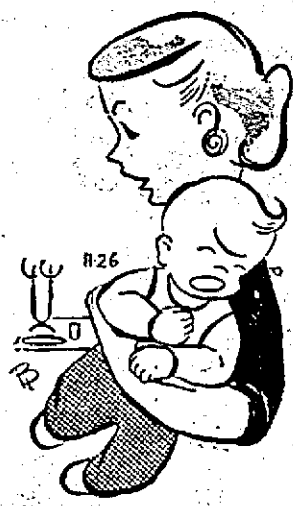

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Question on Etiquet for Plane Travel

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I plan on flying to the coast next month to visit relatives. This will be my first flight and I would appreciate any pointers you can give me so as not to be awkward or impolite.

Answer: General rules of courtesy are the same in a plane as in a pullman or bus. On a plane no definite seat is reserved for anyone. First-come has first choice, of any seat not marked "occupied." In a plane, people are inclined to be friendly and you are entirely free to talk to a fellow passenger unless that person indicates by her (or his) manner that she (or he) would rather be left alone. At meal-time the stewardess brings you an ingeniously equipped tray of food. There are no extra charges for food, and an airline employee is not permitted to accept gratuities. Cigaret smoking also is permitted. Remember that the only luggage that may be taken with you in the cabin is something that you can hold on your lap, or that can be put in the small rack over your head. Anything else must be checked — and excess weight paid for.

Ideas For Mirror "Magicians"

Vast Selection of Davenport, Fireplace, and Door Mirrors.

Also Custom Mirror Work DONE PROMPTLY

Mirrors can be used in ever so many miraculous ways to do wonders in a home. Perhaps these few suggestions, which just skim the surface of possibilities, will inspire you to think of ingenious ways to use mirrors effectively in your home.

Select a place where the "pictures" in the mirror are interesting, pleasing.

Small Rooms

seem larger. Mirrors open up a room and create new vistas. If your room is long and narrow, widen it by using a mirror.

Brighten a Hall ...

If you have a blank wall at the rear of your hallway, mirror it and see it spring to life. Also, it gives a tip-toe view of your attire. A large mirror hung above a table is an alternative.

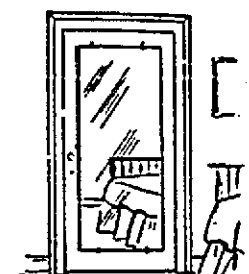

In the Bedroom ...

Mirror the wall behind your bed from floor to ceiling. Or the wall opposite your bed, if you prefer. The effect is luxurious and, by multiplying each unit of furniture, you obtain the fullest effect. Aside from that, where else are big mirrors more utilitarian than for dressing?

Remember at HOFFER you get the finest in quality and workmanship. Only select Mirror Quality Plate Glass can give you distortion-free reflections.

Low priced mirrors offered in many places are only sheet glass — which is not sensitized to receive long lasting silver nor is the glass distortion free.

City Continuing Negotiation With Fox River Tractor

The city is continuing negotiation with Fox River Tractor company for sale of all or part of 1.75 acres of city land east of the company.

The company has made a cash offer; the board of public works has instructed Mayor Mitchell to make a counter-offer.

According to the latest discussion, the city will retain about .07 of an acre of the 1.75-acre tract which would lie east of the road into Belaire ravine.

The company has agreed to permit the park board to remove some $8,000 in dirt which it had placed on the land in hopes of building a playground.

The company also has agreed to furnish an easement for two sanitary and two storm sewers which cross the tract.

Mayor, Clerk May Sign First School Architect's Contract

The mayor and city clerk may sign a school architect's contract for the first time in recent history when Architect Raymond N. LeVee is given the contract to design the new Edison school.

Previously, school architects' contracts were shaped and signed by the board of education.

Reason for the change, the board of public works has been told, is a legal opinion furnished the board of education by City Atty. Don L. Jury.

A report of the opinion has caused the works board to question further whether it ought to control building of the school.

Little Likelihood Board members said they will submit the question to Jury when he returns from a vacation at Nashville, Tenn.

There appears little likelihood that a legal opinion will give the works board such power, because state statutes appear to give the school board powers of the board of public works in building of schools.

Pending Jury's ruling, the works board is withholding authorization for the mayor and clerk to sign the contract submitted by LeVee.

Mayor Mitchell said the school board hopes to hold cost under $1 million.

State's Job, Pay Survey for City to Cost About $2,300

The state bureau of personnel's job classification and pay survey of city employees will cost the city about $2,300. Actual cost may be somewhat less, Robert George, of the state bureau, informed City Clerk Broehm by letter Wednesday, since the job classification booklet is not yet finished.

The state bureau originally estimated the survey would cost about $1,300. The money to pay the bill will be taken from the 1960 salary adjustment appropriation for city employees, Broehm said.

Furs in Many Colors, Styles, Available as Christmas Gifts

Although fur-bearing animals may not appreciate it, their hides have undergone a tremendous evolution in the last 25 years. The day of the uninspiring black or brown full length coat, which for years was the only type available, has passed. The mutation shades with increasingly imaginative styling now are in the front row of the fur salons. Mink is still the favorite. There are dozens of shades of mink from silver gray to black. The shades are produced by selective breeding of generations of mink, although in a very few instances the hide may be dyed for a novelty affect. No matter what the color, no man can go too far wrong

if he puts a mink garment under the Christmas tree. Furriers have made determined efforts to make this possible, and "small" fur pieces designed for Christmas giving are now available. The mink scarf is one of the most popular small items, and is available in the Appleton area in mink, martin, and Russian sable. Prices for the scarves start at less than $200. Fur capes and jackets are becoming increasingly popular, and the styling of these pieces evidences innovations in fur handling. Most of them have a molded look and there are changes to the collars, back design, and shoulders that give pieces a touch of individuality. When choosing a fur there are several things to take into consideration. Function of the piece should determine the type of fur. For general wear a fur should be durable and as well as stylish. Mink, Alaska seal, beaver, otter, Persian lamb, and muskrat are attractive and will wear well. Leopard, ocelot, raccoon, opossum, mouton lamb, unplucked, otter, calf and pony are more suitable for sports and casual wear. Fur Selection The furs for evening dress or as trim should be soft. Chinchilla, ermine, squirrel and mole are appropriate. Pelts are graded from first to sixth quality, and there can be several hundred dollars price difference for coats of the same type. A good coat is thickly furred, and coats with pale, yellow or red skins should be avoided. Lustre indicates health. Heavy, stiff hairs should be avoided. Keeping a coat in good condition is as important as selecting a good one. Here are a few do's and don'ts: Do: have your fur cleaned once a year and have it glazed after cleaning; shake the fur thoroughly to remove dirt; repair worn garments immediately and store furs in the summer. Don't: soak furs unnecessarily, even skins from animals who live in water can be damaged by moisture after they are cured; dry furs too rapidly; crowd them with other clothing when they are hung up; expose furs to bright sunlight unnecessarily or buy furs so tight that strain will cause seam separation.

"Lady, you took the words right out of my mouth," the judge declared as he fined Lynch $175 and sentenced him to 30 days.

Alderman Pleads for Committee Action on Shopping Mall Report

Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings has made a spirited plea for the city council's public safety committee to come to grips with the shopping mall report furnished by a joint city chamber of commerce delegation.

The delegation toured Kalamazoo, Mich., and Toledo, Ohio, shopping malls in early October and subsequently filed a report of findings with the council.

Councilmen referred the report to their public safety committee for some recommendation. Until Tuesday, the report was not discussed, except to order copies furnished all aldermen.

Where Headed? "This report seems to need some disposition other than we have taken," said Mrs. Stillings. "Are we heading toward something? Taking parking off College avenue? I'm wondering."

The report had suggested the city study possibilities of converting some section of College avenue into a shopping mall—and soon, because there are plans to reconstruct the College avenue pavement shortly.

A shopping mall would require taking all traffic and parking off the street, replaced by such things as trees, shrubs, flowers, enlarged, scenic walkways and playgrounds.

Comments Mrs. Stillings plea and the report combined to produce these comments from safety committee:

"It would be foolish to close College avenue. We build a $1 million bridge (the College avenue high level bridge) and then take the street away. "I don't think the public should pay for this kind of thing. If they (the merchants) want it, they should pay for it."

"It would be useless to draft an overall plan for downtown development," since some of the recommendations won't come up to vote for several years and the city administration and council will have different people by then.

"An overall plan is essential, since any drastic change in downtown should be made with the total effect in mind. We must have a plan."

3 or 4 Years Away The advocate of withholding an answer because decisions would be years away said that the entire problem seems to hinge on when the city is going to build a parking ramp. "And we know we're not going to do that in the next three or four years."

Principal reason why the city will not build a ramp "in the next three or four years," Mrs. Stillings said, is because the city's parking revenues do not produce enough money to pay annual interest and principle on required bonds. This line of reasoning would force postponement of mall construction nearly indefinitely, since the College avenue reconstruction will not wait that long and, as one committee member said, "we have got to have a ramp before we take parking off College avenue."

Need More Parking The logical sequence of events, said one alderman, is this: (1) reconstruction of College avenue, (2) conversion of angle parking to parallel parking on the avenue, (3) extension of Franklin street west across the Packard street ravine, and (4) construction of a parking ramp, probably in Jones park.

One committeeman said he's sure nothing can be done about a mall until the city has more off-street parking.

Another solution to providing more off-street parking might come in the extension westward of Franklin street, he added, since the board of public works is considering an extension plan that includes provisions for 650 stalls, 350 north of the extension and 300 to the south.

Angle, Parallel The discussion dwelled at length on angle versus parallel parking on College avenue. Traffic Lt. John Gosch admitted "meter maids" might be the answer to enforcement of time limits on the parking stalls, one of the keys to making more parking stalls available to more people.

Gosch said he believes present parking lots could handle the 100 stalls the city would lose by converting College avenue now from angle to parallel parking.

Cite Barton Plan The discussion finally came down to consideration of drafting an overall downtown plan.

One committeeman said the same thing would happen to the plan as happened to the Barton plan for street development: Very little.

Another said the problem with the Barton plan was not the plan itself, but the people who administer it, city councilmen. "The difficulty is that we sit around and say something cannot be done, or that we will do it tomorrow," the alderman said.

Stoneware Pottery and Custom silver jewelry are on display at the front display case of the Appleton Public library. The pottery was made by Michael Brandt, Appleton High school art instructor, and his son, John. Studying the exhibit are Michael Mytas and his mother, Mrs. John Mytas, 906 W. Winnebago street.

Tony Bok, Lawrence College senior, is following the lead of a long list of illustrious ancestors in his career as an undergraduate creative writer and folk music expert. Among his forebears are Edward Bok, former editor of the Ladies Home Journal; his grandmother Mary Curtis Bok Zimbalist, who founded the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia; and several others accomplished both in pen and song. Tony runs a folk music program on Lawrence's WLFM, and his brother Diis will present a folk concert in Stansbury theater after the Christmas holidays.

Lawrence Senior Following in Steps of Journalistic Ancestors

BY MARGUERITE SCHUMANN

"The stairway of time ever echoes with the wooden shoe going up, the polished boot coming down," wrote that poet of the melting pot, Carl Sandburg.

Certainly all of America (or at least all of America's women), heard the clatter of Edward Bok's klompens as he hauled his Ladies Home Journal up the heights of national circulation.

But they will have to wait awhile to hear such effete noise as polished boots out of the third generation of Boks, if Lawrence college senior Tony is a sample of the family. Even the dirty white bucks revered by collegians are not Anthony S. Bok's style — he is a Maine lobsterman by day (his family forsook Philadelphia for Camden, Maine, several years ago), a writer and folk music devotee by night, an adventurer around the clock.

While grandfather Edward promoted the quick absorption of the immigrant into society (his Pulitzer prize-winning autobiography was, in fact, titled "The Americanization of Edward Bok"), his grandson Tony is more exercised over the need for disparate national types to retain their identity but live in harmony. His Thanksgiving vacation, for example, was spent as best man in elaborate Buddhist-Mongol betrothal ceremonies for one of his best friends, a young Kalmuk living in Philadelphia. And a summer ago, while visiting the branch of the Bok family that emigrated to South Africa instead of the United States, he made an incredulous acquaintance with the practices of apartheid.

Edward Bok Energetic

Edward Bok was a youngster brimming with energy and ideas. His first money-making enterprise was peddling cold water on the public horsecars at a stopoff point on the line. His shiny tin pail and three tin cups soon earned him enough money to buy a set of encyclopedias. It is ironic that one of his later journalistic campaigns was directed against the same public drinking cup that set him off on his business career!

There was nothing haphazard about his perusal of the encyclopedia. He had been obliged to leave school while still in the grades, and was industriously educating himself in the evening. Noting that many inaccuracies appeared in biographies of famous men, the boy set about writing each of the public figures in question and asking them about the disputed facts.

In the space of a couple of years, he not only had a fantastic collection of letters from the nation's great, but he had visited them in their hotels as they passed through New York. One evening—surely the red letter day in his life—he had supper with Gen. and Mrs. Ulysses Grant, then called upon Mrs. Abraham Lincoln in her sanitarium, and has distributed organs throughout the country in memory of her father, while Edward Bok combined his enthusiasm for ornithology and carillon music in the Singing Tower in Florida.

Where one generation of Boks espoused the Philadelphia orchestra and Curtis Institutes on the guitar, Tony, the present generation, is promoting folk music. The family of Tony's mother —

Boericke by surname — has been extremely knowledgeable in the folk arts, and an uncle and aunt played with the great Negro singer Leadbelly. Tony's younger brother Diis Bok will sing a concert of folk songs in Stansbury theater on the campus Jan. 6, playing his own accompaniments on the guitar. Tony himself, making no claims as a singer, runs a program of folk music on Lawrence's WLFM, specializing in American folk songs every other Wednesday evening. He writes a tight, smooth script analyzing the literature of the songs and reads it with easy, respectful formality.

Words Bok Art

Music is an avocation for Tony, however. Words are the traditional Bok art. "I would like to write, but as all people who would like to write,

I probably won't," Tony smiles ruefully. At least one member of the family has combined writing with another career, however. Uncle W. Curtis Bok, a justice on the supreme court of Pennsylvania, has produced three books of fictionalized legal criticism titled, "I, Too, Nicodemus," "Star, Wormwood," and "The Backbone of the Herring." Tony's father Cary W. Bok followed the family career of

Thursday, Nov. 26, 1959 Appleton Post-Crescent D12

Tony Bok won't pretend he doesn't admire his ancestors who have left such imprint on journalism and the arts. But his way home for lunch, was stopped by one of his officers with a message. The chief said through the mouth of Poor Richard "Let our father's bejrage was on fire."

Demonstration Teacher

Understanding Figures Called Arithmetic Aim

A soft-spoken woman from Tennessee was in Appleton recently to demonstrate to city teachers and students that learning arithmetic is not a painful application of rules but a question of understanding numbers.

Mrs. Helen Branham, arithmetic consultant with the Silver Burdett company, through a combination of southern charm and teaching skill, gets students even those who have trouble with the last of the three R's, to add, subtract, multiply and divide with comprehension rather than fear. In the old days, she recalls, we were told what steps to take in multiplying, and we did it because the teacher said so. "Now we aim for understanding, even by the slowest children."

Appleton System OK
Appleton teachers have been aiming for that goal for many years now, but it is still difficult to achieve complete understanding, she pointed out. Mrs. Branham demonstrated the technique of understanding when she gave a lesson in subtraction in an intermediate classroom at Huntley school. About 10 other teachers were in the room, ordinarily supervised by Miss Alice Moehring. Mrs. Branham also visited five other classrooms in the system and talked to about 75 teachers in three days.

Subtraction, she explained, to the children, is just a matter of knowing that each number is made up of 1s. Three, for example, contains three 1s. Larger numbers are built on series of 10s, 100s and 1,000s.

To get children to understand this concept, she has them "round off" numbers to the nearest 10 and 100, so that 398 is "about 400," as she puts it.

From this step, it is an easy matter for children to understand how to subtract 2,437

Wins $742,904 To Set Record In Soccer Pool

London — Arthur Webb, a 70-year-old pensioner, Tuesday hit an individual world record jackpot of 265,323 pounds ($742,904) of the British soccer pools.

Another better, 55-year-old London printer Sydney Phillip Keen, pocketed a second prize of 102,511 pounds ($287,030).

Both are tax free. The overnight fortunes came to both men for bets of only two pence (two cents). Four out of every five British families play the pools each week, based on games in the British Soccer league.

Millionaire Deputy Sheriff Quits Job

Akron, Ohio — Akron's millionaire deputy sheriff has quit his job. Summit county Sheriff Russell Bird said Tuesday Frederick H. Hale of Akron, who inherited $1,200,000 two years ago, resigned after an argument with another deputy.

The money in Hale's estate was left by his foster father, the late James E. Hale, inventor of the balloon tire.

Reds Say U. S. Wants To Take Over Formosa

Tokyo—A Communist China Tuesday charged that the United States plans to withdraw its support of Chiang Kai-shek and take over control of Formosa as a trusteeship territory.

The official New China News agency, quoted by Peiping radio, called this a "two Chinas" plot and said Peiping would never accept it. The news agency asserted: "To maintain permanent possession of this piece of land, the United States is conspiring to isolate Taiwan (Formosa) and next to put it under trusteeship, and plotting to renounce the Chiang Kai-shek clique instead of 'supporting' it, and turning Taiwan ultimately into a colony and war base of the United States."

Mead Predicts '59 Sales, Earnings Will Exceed '58

St. Louis — Mead corporation is anticipating earnings of slightly over $2.70 per share on sales of approximately $315 million in 1959, H. T. Mead, financial vice president, said.

The earnings estimate is slightly less than September estimate of between $2.75 a share and $2.85 a share. The decline in income comes solely as a result of adverse effects from the nation-wide steel strike, Mead said.

The anticipated 1959 results compare with a net income of $10,690,879, or $2.30 a share, on sales of $256,244,183 reported for 1958.

"We hope that our earnings this year will increase about 20 per cent per share over 1958," Mead said. "This is in spite of the fact that the corrugating shipping container industry, as well as the corresponding segment of our company, has operated at unprofitable levels for the year to date. This 20 per cent figure may be tempered by the steel strike, Mead said."

For 1959 Mead hopes to manufacture and sell more than one million tons of paper and paperboard. This compares with a total tonnage of 805,000 tons in 1958.

Stamp Booklet With Waxed Paper Pages Useful Gift

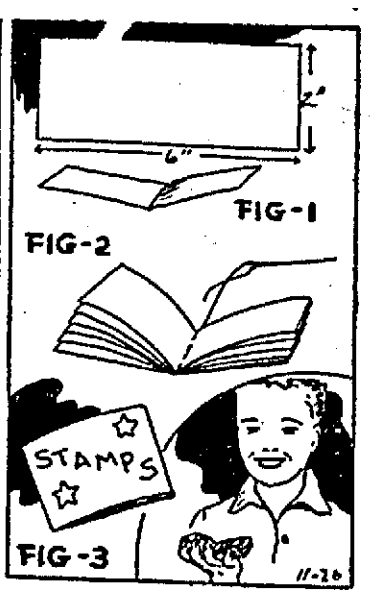

BY CAPPY DICK

A little book in which to keep unused postage stamps so they cannot stick together is a useful gift to make for someone, including any service man who is away from home. If the booklet is for a friend in the armed forces, fill it with air mail stamps before sending it to him. He can use the stamps to send his letters home faster than by ordinary mail.

First make the cover of the booklet. Use a piece of construction paper six inches long and two inches wide. Fold it across its width at the middle as in Figure 1.

Next, cut six pieces of waxed paper of the same size as the cover and also fold these as you did the cover. The kind of waxed paper used for wrapping sandwiches will do, but if you have none, use the printed waxed paper in which loaves of bread are wrapped.

The next step is to fit the folded sheets into the cover and with needle and thread sew them all together as in Figure 2. Finally, with cray-
